B'nai B'rith Moscow President
Warns Of Anti-Semitism
In Soviet Union

WASHINGTON, DC — B'nai B'rith International Moscow Unit President Alexander (Sasha) Schmuckler told a Washington audience recently that anti-Semitic organizations in the Soviet Union are receiving official recognition, at the same time that B'nai B'rith is being denied such recognition. Such status is vital, he explained, since it entails permission to publish and fundraise.

Schmuckler, 29, who heads the first B'nai B'rith unit to be established in the Soviet Union, predicted that 250,000 Jews will apply to emigrate this year. "I would call it an evacuation," said Schmuckler, noting that the anti-Semitic PAMYAT has racked up impressive political gains and Jews are beginning to fear for their physical safety. "If pogroms start," he asked, "who knows whether the government will protect us?"

Schmuckler, a leader of the Jewish Independent Movement who is active in the Jewish Cultural Association of Moscow and the Society of Friendship with Israel, said that the new Congress of Deputies law that is expected to allow free emigration still lacks some crucial provisions relating to the categories of state secrets and poor relatives. There are still 500 refuseniks trapped by the poor relatives restriction, he said.

Schmuckler's appearance at a luncheon at B'nai B'rith International headquarters was sponsored by the B'nai B'rith International and Public Affairs Department and the National Conference on Soviet Jewry.

RABBI SANFORD D. AKSELRAD, M.A.H.L.

An open letter to the Jewish Community:

We would like to acquaint you with Congregation Ner Tamid, a family congregation, practicing Reform Judaism in a traditional mode.

Our spiritual leader, Rabbi Sanford D. Akselrad, fervently practices the beauty and warmth of century old traditions in a moving and easily understood service for the entire family.

Our Shabbat and Holiday services are truly family oriented and every member of the family is welcome. During July and August services will begin at 7:00 p.m.

A Temple affiliation is an important aspect of Jewish life and in the community in which we live. If you are not affiliated with a congregation, we would like to extend an invitation to you to join us for a Friday night service and see what Congregation Ner Tamid has to offer you and your family.

Please contact Ruth Fite, our Executive Director at 733-6292. She will be happy to make the necessary arrangements and answer any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Noreen Sternberg
