

OF GREAT PROMISE

The Nippeno Mining Company Has Every Evidence of Having a Great Mine.

DEVELOPMENT VERY RICH

What Daly and Clark Made Out of Butte Can Be Done at Crescent.

COURAGE AND CONFIDENCE NECESSARY

One of the properties in the Crescent Mining district, that has all the earmarks of making one of the greatest wealth producing factors in the country is the property of the Nippeno Mining company. This promising property is situated in what is known as the golden triangle of southern Nevada.

The district in which this promising great property has its being is in the center of that immense mineral zone which today astonishes and fascinates the world with its golden stream—a harvest that has since the days of old been an accelerating factor in the onward march of mankind.

The company owns four full claims the Neppeno, Susquehanna, Cumberland and Pennsylvania, of twenty acres each or six thousand feet by six hundred feet of mining ground. These claims have their home from a geological point of view in a formation that is kindly disposed towards supporting its fissures and veins with those wealth giving minerals, gold, silver, galena, copper and that most useful of all metals—iron. It is principally a granite, diorite and porphyry. The predominant mineral of the Nippeno group with the present development is gold, the fortune builder of many a prospector and courageous investor. The lowest depth attained on this property is ninety feet. It has not gone beyond the point of a good prospect but from this uncovering, ore has been taken that has returned values of from $10 to $30,000 per ton. It is the determined purpose to attain a greater depth and as a certainty establish uniformity of the mineral wealth that invariably inhabits these mineral formations, granite, diorite and porphyry.

The Crescent district and the Nippeno mine, development is the best evidence of it, has that which made Butte, Montana, the greatest and most famous mining center in the world; it has that which made Roseland, B. C. so famous a producer as to turn abroad into the world as millionaires, a host of men who ten years ago were of the pick shovel and hammer brigade.

Had it not been for the tenacity of Daly, the confidence of a Clark, Butte today would be a roost for owls and his and the howling sage brush mounds of the coyote. Had it not been for George Gooderham stepping in when darkness commenced to overshadow the Roseland prospects that camp would have become a synonyme of mining failures. But Gooderham backed up his confidence with resources that has since been the means of enriching him by $20,000,000 and brought into that northwest country the miner, the farmer, the road builder and those factors that have so enormously developed the north resources and practically enriched a population out of which a nation has its rearing.

We simply cite these instances, when if the croakers had their way, nought but destitution and poverty, instead of wealth prosperity and a vigorous soul inspiring population would have its way.

It is the candid opinion of men who have had experience in mining and who have some knowledge of mineral formation that Crescent with proper development and depth will make a great mining center. All that is necessary is determination to go after it as they did at Butte, Roseland and as they are doing at Leadville today. After the funeral oration had been proclaimed over Leadville, more than once, it breaks forth into the lime light again with greater and richer developments, than it has ever had more tremendous wealth than it ever produced in its sensational days. Development did it, courage brings its reward and this spirit actuates the managers of the Nippeno Mining company and with the same perseverance they will make the Crescent district so objective a point as to make the average man say the eyes of the world are resting upon the Crescent mining district, for its production of commercial wealth is soaring into the millions. In this great work Grant D. Halfpenny and his conferees realize their fortunes and praise for that determination that will redound not only to their own profit, but also to the enriching and enlarging of a prosperous people in the southwest.

Mark the spirit of Clark, Daly and Gooderham applied to the Crescent field will unravel nature's wealth in that field and make Las Vegas valley a "bee hive".

MORE CRESCENT FACTS.
For some weeks this camp has been cursed by the professional scheme and town lot promoters. To read some of the fairy tales that has been written about the camp one would be impressed with the idea that the whole district was composed of gold and all that was necessary would be to pick the gold up. These yarns have had a very damaging effect on the camp and has had a tendency to retard its progress and growth.

Now that these fables have been exploded by the better class of our people the camp is on the high road to progress and success. There never was any question as to the values of the country, but it was the overzealousness of the town lot boomers who were so greedy and the promoters who were anxious for easy money.

Of late there have been several very good indications discovered and these show well. These discoveries were from the grass roots and the gold certainly showed up plentifully, that would be no question at all of their being able to return a fair and reasonable profit to the investor. These hills are ribbed with leads and there is not one in the whole district but what does has the promise of being a mine.

Some of the rock on the surface is rich, and what little work there has been done shows that the ore gets richer as depth is attained. The rule does not apply to one mine, it applies to every ledge of any size in the camp. Porphyry abounds all over the district and it is that kind of porphyry that looks good to every miner this is the kind that a prospector likes to find, and when he does, he is certain then of what the future will produce for him.

moved from where it was formerly located, about a quarter of a mile north of the depot, or where the depot saloon is located to a mile south of that place. The depot is in an old box car caboose and the company can change the depot from place to place as it meets their convenience and the placer locators and ample employment changing after the car making placer locations on both sides of the track, wherever the party ambling railroad station happens to be picketed out for the time being. It is a merry chase by all the promoters—placer miners—for the sake of town-site locations to keep step with the fluctuating notions of the railroad company.

Jack Crowley, has one of the coziest and comfortable saloons above Crescent and in a townsite all to himself.

Pat Sullivan, a well known miner from Butte, Montana, and Tombstone, Arizona, is in the Crescent district inspecting and securing a hold on properties which will assure the world with bonanza results in the near future. He is at Crescent to do business and will succeed, for Pat has that in him that means success.
