

STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are considering your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me."

DROWNED OUT THE WHISTLE.

Bandmaster Saw But One Way to Achieve Victory.

Sousa was once conducting a concert, and was so engrossed in extracting from his organization the sweet, soft notes of an oriental love song. A loud and prolonged blast came from a steamboat on the Alleghany river. Instantly the director's baton was directed toward the disturbing whistle as though he would have a more dulcet tone from the offender. Instead he received a more deafening response from the huge steam whistle. The disgusted conductor now turned to ward his musicians, and, with a violent waving of his arms, brought forth such a roar from the drums and brasses that if there was any further demonstration on the part of the steamboat it was not heard in the music hall.

At the conclusion of the concert Sousa said to one of the directors: "The only way to overcome that steamboat's blow is to meet it with a more powerful one."

FORMS OF DISEASE GERMS.

Harmless Varieties May Suddenly Change Their Nature.

It is common belief that the germs of disease flourish only in the human organism, and that, if we could once eradicate an infectious malady, it would stay eradicated. It now seems very probable that this is untrue. According to a view held wholly or partially by many pathologists, and strongly upheld by Prof. Bodin, disease germs are only accidentally virulent, their normal existence being what is called "saprophytic," that is, independent of any other organism. When one of these harmless varieties changes its nature so as to become parasitic, we have a new disease. Observation has shown that many kinds of bacteria are very unstable, and are constantly forming new varieties. It is possible, therefore, that potential germs of typhoid, lockjaw, or consumption may be growing harmlessly about us, to assume, a virulent parasitic life at some future time.—London Lancet.

BABY GIRAFFE AT BERLIN

Attendant Makes Careful Nurse for Beautiful Little Stranger.

A giraffe was born in captivity in the Berlin zoological gardens a fortnight ago. At its birth the giraffe, a male, weighed 111 pounds, but it has since gained another 100 pounds, although the mother does not nourish it.

In an attendant at the "zoo" the beautiful creature has found a careful and tender nurse. He helps the young animal to get on its weak, straggling legs in the morning, and puts it snugly to bed at night.

The little giraffe drinks about four quarts of milk daily fresh from the cow, and the strangely assorted pair walk about the gardens together, the man watching over the uncertain steps of his companion with solicitude.

The tall-limbed youngster appears to reciprocate this tenderness, for it may often be seen rubbing his head against the man's shoulder. It sleeps apart from its parents. The father treats it with quiet unconcern, but the mother often peers over the tall partition at her offspring.

The attendant, saluting in military fashion, announced to Director Hick that the newcomer was already practicing the mastication of grass and cakes. The man looked as happy as though he had just discovered the first tooth in the mouth of his own child.

SOUP FROM RARE MEAT.

Meal of Brussels Sailor Not Likely to Be Duplicated.

Jacques Lebrun, a sailor of Brussels, enjoyed not long ago a dish that should make epicures envious. He had a soup the like of which may have been tasted thousands upon thousands of years ago, but which no man will probably taste again.

It reminds one of the case of the rude laborers who were disinterring Pompeii, who found the skins of wine and drank every drop as an accompaniment of the crusts that made the rest of their luncheon.

Never a connoisseur got a taste of that rare wine—rare and so mellow with age.

Now, Lebrun is a sailor, and he is temporarily working as a day laborer on the canal works at Ternezen.

The other day he found in the ground a large bone, which he took home to his wife to have it boiled down for soup.

The bone, which was unearthed at a depth of twenty-two feet, it has now been found, was part of the skeleton of a mammoth.

The "Horn Dance."

Among the quaint old customs and ceremonies still alive in country districts in England, there is only one "horn dance," and that is to be found at Abbots Bromley, in Staffordshire. Every year, at the village wake, the dance is still carried out. The origin of the horn dance is lost in the midst of history, but it has been traced back as far as the eleventh century. Until the seventeenth century it was practiced at Christmas, on New Year's day and on Twelfth day. In the time of Henry VIII, the dance was performed in front of the church every Sunday, and a collection for the poor taken up from the spectators.

Died as He Had Predicted.

About a year ago a Mr. Legare of St. Eustache, near Quebec, startled his wife by saying: "I am going to die to-night, but you must not trouble yourself about it. I am going to arrange everything in such a manner as to give you as little worry as possible." Mme. Legare naturally thought that her husband, who appeared to be in perfect health, was joking; but, true to his word, he began to arrange his affairs, made all the necessary preparations for his funeral, and, when the last detail had been concluded, suddenly expired.

Down Sixty-Five Steps.

A sensational incident occurred recently at St. Hellen's, Jersey, when a horse harnessed to a cart bolted down sixty-five steps, which are shown above. Little or no damage happened to either animal or vehicle.

Presidential Ticket of 1861.

In tearing down the old courthouse at Lake Village, Ark., an election ticket used November 6, 1861, was found. The ticket reads: "For President, Jefferson Davis, of Mississippi; for vice-president, Alex H. Stephens, of Georgia; for electors, Edward Cross, of Hempstead; David Walker, of Washington; John R. Hampton, of Bradley; W. C. Bevins, of Independence; W. W. Mansfield, of Franklin; for congress, 3d district, A. H. Garland, of Pulaski." Judge Mansfield, of Franklin is said to be the only survivor of those named with him on this ticket.

Ask Reciprocal Policy.

A Sunapee, N. H., correspondent expounds the doctrine of reciprocity as understood by the people of that village in the following terms: "Bartlett & Rowell of the same shop kindly consented to omit the 5:30 whistle in the morning at the request of the city comers, and we do not think it would be asking too much of the city boys to omit singing, or rather trying to sing, through our streets at 12 and 1 o'clock at night, for there are working people in our midst who would be glad to sleep during sleeping hours."

Power Conveyed Far.

In the anthracite coal regions the transmission of steam power to distant machinery has been carried to extraordinary lengths because of the cheapness of coal relatively to the labor required for running engines. In one case the pipe is said to be a mile long and pipes from 2,000 to 4,000 feet in length are not uncommon near Scranton. Of course the metal is well wrapped in nonconducting material, usually asbestos or magnesia, to lessen the waste of heat by radiation.

Petition Six Miles Long.

Six miles is the length of a petition promoted by the British national canine defense league in support of the bill for the prohibition of the vivisection of dogs.

FOUND A PIRATE SHIP.

California Man Has Visions of Gold in the Buried Hulk.

While excavating for a cellar an eighth of a mile from the shore line at Larkin cove, Los Angeles, Welcome Riggs came upon the hulk of an ancient vessel, supposed to be a Spanish galleon. The anchor, which is badly rust-eaten, is of a pattern used a century or more ago.

The sea must have extended much farther inland at that point at one time, and the vessel was probably driven ashore in a storm and wrecked. It is believed that it is the relict of one of the pirate ships which preyed upon this coast about 100 years ago.

It is known that some of these vessels were wrecked upon the shore in this vicinity, and three of the survivors of one of the wrecked pirate ships made their way to San Gabriel mission and professed repentance.

Mr. Riggs will excavate the entire wreck and search for any hidden treasure it may contain. The iron portions of the ship are nearly rusted out, but the wood is in a fair state of preservation.—New York World.

Thunder's Warnings.

The "Prognostication Everlasting of One Leonard Digges," published in 1556, tells us that thunder in the morning denotes wind; at noon, rain, and in the evening a great tempest. He goes further still, and declares that "Sunday's thunder should bring the death of learned men, judges and others; Monday's, the death of women; Tuesday's, plenty of grain; Wednesday's, bloodshed; Thursday's, plenty of sheep and corn; Friday's, the slaughter of a great man and other horrible murders; Saturday's, a general pestilence plague and great dearth."

A Black Lily.

In the island of Luzon, one of the Philippines, a lily or tulip with a black flower, eight or nine inches across, has been discovered by an American. It flowers before the leaves appear, and has an odor of tainted flesh, which attracts insects to it for the purpose of cross fertilization. It stands under a foot high, and grows in the shade of dense vegetation. Altogether it upsets our notions of the pure lily, and reminds us of the vulture, among birds.

Little Girls as Stowaways.

Three little girls have the town of Millinocket, Me., a good scare last week. They disappeared mysteriously and search failed to reveal their whereabouts until some hours later when they were found in the town of Sherman, twelve miles away. They had played stowaway on a train in order to get there.
