

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Boston and One in Nashville, Tenn.

All women work; some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in stores, mills and shops tens of thousands are in the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical ills; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbance, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly lifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, leucorrhoea, perhaps irregularity or suppression of "monthly periods," causing backache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

Women who stand on their feet all day are more susceptible to these troubles than others.

They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

Miss F. Orser of 14 Warrenton Street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"I suffered with painful periods, severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen; was very nervous and irritable; and my trouble grew worse every month. My physician failed to help me, and I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found it was doing me good. All my pains and aches disappeared, and I no longer fear my monthly periods."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for all these troubles. It strengthens the proper muscles, and displacement with all its horrors will no longer crush you.

Backache, dizziness, fainting, bearing-down pains, disordered stomach, moodiness, dislike of friends and society—all symptoms of the one cause—will be quickly dispelled, and it will make you strong and well.

You can tell the story of your sufferings to a woman, and receive helpful advice free of cost. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

HOW DESDEMONA DIED.

The Curiously Contrived Ending of Shakespeare's Heroine.

The tragic death of Desdemona, according to the Paris Menestrel, which has recently completed some interesting researches among the archives of the Querini family, of which Shakespeare's Othello was a member, really occurred in Crete in the year 1523.

Desdemona, whose name signifies "damsel of the house of demons," met her death, according to this new version in a singular manner.

Othello had charged his valet with the carrying out of his revenge. The valet accordingly took up a position close to Desdemona's apartment, where he started groaning and shuffling with his feet.

Othello thereupon requested his wife to rise and discover the cause of the noise.

As she crossed the threshold a sackful of grass was flung at her head. She fell to the ground, and was then assailed with a succession of similar grass-filled sacks, being finally smothered under the falling ceiling and masonry of the walls, which had been specially loosened at Othello's orders.

MARRIAGE A HARD PROBLEM.

How Long Should Man Wait for Psychological Moment?

Marriage is a never-ceasing problem: it is impossible to tell just when the moment of extreme regret will come and the limit of human endurance will be reached. Down in Missouri there is a man who has filed an application for divorce because his wife "called him names" back in 1868. Undoubtedly he has good reason for his delaying taking determined measures. Possibly he felt that the psychological moment had not arrived. Perhaps the enormity of the offense and the knowledge that the law gives him recourse did not immediately present themselves. And it may be that the other woman did not come along until 1905. The average husband is so considerate and tender-hearted that he shrinks from complaining of his domestic lot until the other woman heaves in sight, and it does not take her long to convince him how absurd it is to continue to live with a wife who called him names thirty-seven years ago.—Exchange.

Women and Love.

We women take love too seriously. Men wish to be loved with laughter, not with sighing. So, laugh, sweethearts, laugh, or soon you may be weeping.—Exchange.

VENTILATION FOR THE STABLE.

What is Known as the King System is Most Effective.

The accompanying cuts illustrate what is known as the King system of ventilation which is eminently suitable for stables. Fig. 1 shows how the system operates. The air is drawn from the rear flow, thereby taking the colder air. The air can be changed four or five times as if the outlets were near the ceiling and yet not reduce the temperature more. There should be openings B near the ceiling also, but they are to be used only in summer to reduce the temperature. The openings at A and B should be so managed that the amount of opening can be regularly regulated. The flues are between the walls of the barn.

The air enters at A, passes up, as shown by the arrows, and out through the cupola. In some of the barns the lateral flues follow the roof of the barn, which is a more convenient arrangement, considering the use of the upper part of the barn, but it has been found that the draft is not so sure as when the lateral flues meet low down, C, giving considerable distance to the outlet D.

Fig. 2 shows the principle of the intake. It is a cross-section of the wall of the barn, showing the inner and outer boarding—the space between into this flue is from the outside A near the ground. The air passes up the flue and into the barn near the ceiling at B. Notice that there is no opening in the outside wall opposite B. The opening A must be near the ground.

The opening at B should be so arranged that the amount of incoming air can be regulated. The opening at A should be so arranged as to let the rain out.

The fresh air entering at B should flow across the ceiling and gradually fall more or less along the center of the barn, where cows are headed, pass on across the lower part of the barn and up the out-take flues. If the air entering at B falls immediately to the floor it is an indication that it is coming in too fast.

There should be an intake every fifty feet or twenty feet along the side of the barn and the area of the out-take flues should about balance the intake. Out-take flues made of two layers of boards with paper between are more satisfactory than those of galvanized iron, because they do not condense the moisture of the stable air unless it is extremely cold.

Sources of Wood Pulp.

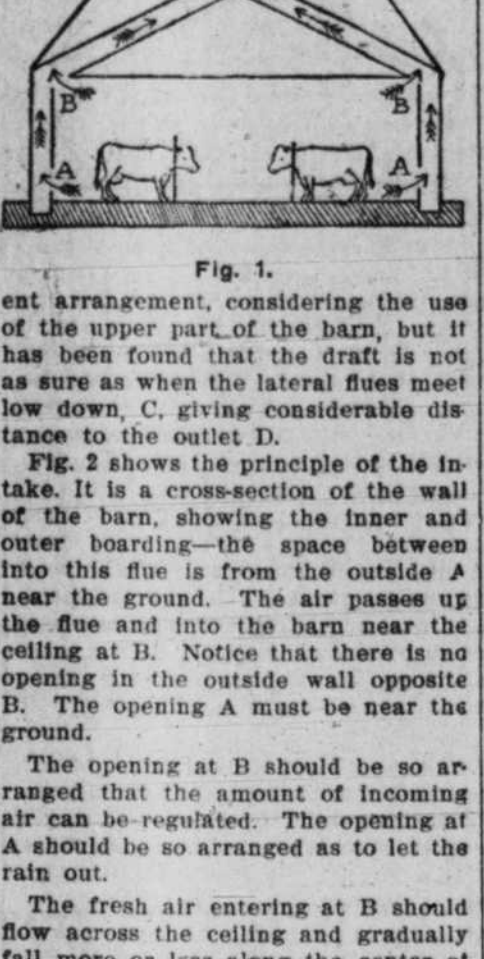

The Virginia pine, commonly known as scrub pine, is no longer regarded as worthless except for cordwood. Within the last four years the manufacturers of wood pulp have tried the wood with success and several mills, in Pennsylvania especially, are using it in considerable quantities for this purpose. One Pennsylvania mill consumes in this way 20,000 cords a year.

The scrub pine, whose range is chiefly in Tennessee, North Carolina, Kentucky, Maryland and Virginia, is found in large quantities on old fields, in the last two states in particular, where it has reproduced itself, unheeded, since the civil war. It has recently been found in commercial quantities also in central Pennsylvania. Since it is a tree which thrives on even the poorest soil and reproduces itself with great ease, its entrance into commercial importance will offer a very interesting problem in forest management and one which promises quite unexpected results.

The forest service is engaged upon a study of the scrub pine, which will seek to develop the possibilities of the tree from a commercial standpoint.

The Vanishing Home.

People who know what a home is are not so many as middle-aged men and women think, and they who never had one will hardly be expected to join in the lament at its gradual disappearance. That it is going out of fashion there is not a doubt. Every new pile of flats, every conversion of a dwelling house is evidence of the circumstance. The modern family shifts from one tenement to another, loses or damages its goods in the transit, is constantly making new acquaintances, but as constantly losing the old, and is without quiet and retirement and peace. The older people regret the change; the younger have no standards by which to measure it.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Children of a Larger Growth.

When several women meet together on a strictly society basis, one is irresistibly reminded how little girls "play lady." The miniature dames, with shawl trains flowing from their pinafores, sit in fashionable attitudes, and in fashionable accents utter the fashionable sentiments of the moment, stopping now and then to giggle at the absurdity of it all. And the grown-ups do exactly the same, only they have not humor enough to laugh at it. The old term "playing lady" has been changed for "doing society," but the main elements of the game are the same.—Exchange.

Visit Scott's Estate.

It is said that last year no less than 7,000 visitors were recorded as having been at Abbotsford, Sir Walter Scott's estate, though people of fine taste in their time had little enough to say in its praise. Dr. John Brown called it "ugly Abbotsford;" Ruskin described it as "the most incongruous pile gentlemanly modernism ever designed;" Dean Stanley said it was "a place to visit once, but never again."

BABY ONE SOLID SORE.

Could Not Shut Eyes to Sleep—Spent $100 on Doctors—Baby Grew Worse—Cured by Cuticura for $5.

"A scab formed on my baby's face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure. Doctors and medicines had cost over $100, with baby growing worse. Then we spent less than $5 for Cuticura and cured her. (Signed) Mrs. G. H. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Ave., Milwaukee, Wis."
