WHY STONE WALLS ARE DAMP.

Sudden Changes of Weather Responsible—Easy to Remedy.
The walls of a stone house, and sometimes of a brick house, are covered with dampness. This is due to the very same causes by which dew is deposited on grasses or moisture on the side of a glass or pitcher that is filled with ice water and brought into a warm room. The walls become cold, and as stone is a nonconductor of heat, they remain cold for a long time. When the weather changes suddenly from cold to warm the air becomes filled with moisture, for the warmer the air the more moisture it will absorb. When this warm air strikes the cold walls the moisture is deposited on it from the air, which is suddenly cooled by contact with them, and as the warm air is continually coming in contact with the cold walls, the dampness accumulates until it appears like a dew upon them, and pours down in streams at times. It is easily prevented. No plaster should be put directly upon brick or stone, but furring strips should be nailed to the walls and laths put on these. Cellars are frequently made very damp in the same way by too much ventilation in warm weather.

First Apples Brought to America.
John Winthrop is usually held responsible for the introduction of the apple into the New World. But as a matter of fact when Winthrop anchored off Cape Ann the reclusive Blackstone already had apple trees growing about his cabin at Shawmut Neck. Some of the best of our American apples were brought over by the Huguenots, who settled in Flushing, L. I., in 1660, and planted there, among others, the pomme royale or spice apple.

Queen's Betrothal Kiss.
No more celebrated kiss was ever given than that bestowed on Nov. 22, 1581, in the gallery of Greenwich palace, by Queen Elizabeth upon the Duc d'Alencon, one of the suitors for her hand, whom, in the presence of Walsingham and Leicester, she kissed upon his cheek and, placing her ring upon his finger, presented to her courtiers as their future master.

OPEN PUBLICITY THE BEST GUARANTEE OF MERIT.
When the maker of a medicine, sold through druggists for family use, takes his patients fully into his confidence by frankly and fearlessly publishing broadcast as well as on its bottle wrappers, a full list of all its ingredients in plain English, this action on his part is the best possible evidence that he is not afraid to have the search light of investigation turned full upon his formula and that it will bear the fullest scrutiny and the most thorough investigation. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of the weaknesses, periodical pains and functional derangements of the organs distinctly feminine, is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for women's special use, the maker of which is not afraid to take his patients into his full confidence by such open and honest publicity.

A glance at the published ingredients on each bottle wrapper, will show that it is made wholly from native American medicinal roots, that it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs, no narcotics and no alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine of proper strength being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol, both for extracting and preserving the active medicinal properties found in the roots of the American forest plants employed. It is the only medicine for women's peculiar diseases, sold by druggists, that does not contain a large percentage of alcohol, which is in the long run so harmful to woman's delicate, nervous system. Now, glycerine is perfectly harmless, and serves a valuable purpose by possessing intrinsic value all its own, and besides it enhances the curative effect of the other ingredients entering into the "Favorite Prescription."

Some of the ablest medical writers and teachers endorse these views and praise all the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is composed—recommending them for the cure of the very same diseases for which this world-famed medicine is advised. No other medicine for women has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. If interested, send name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his little book of extracts from the works of eminent medical writers and teachers, endorsing the several ingredients and telling just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of. It's free for the asking.

PURSUED BY WILD ELEPHANTS.

Death of a Wounded Bull Saved the Hunting Party.
"I was kneeling, while my men lay flat on their faces," writes C. G. Schilling in his "With Flashlight and Rifle," of an elephant hunting incident. "I sent two more bullets into the male elephant. The whole herd then gathered around an old female elephant and broke away in a quick shuffle. Since they turned to the right I enjoyed the grand sight of twenty-four elephants passing at a distance of about 450 feet. The wounded male passed a little nearer to me and I could not refrain from firing at him once more. The whole herd stopped, took the young ones into their midst, looked around and sniffed the air.
"They discovered us, and, led by two females, they came to attack us. The situation became very critical. For 15 the long run the animals were bound to overtake us. I fled as fast as my feet would carry me in the wake of my men, who were running away from the animal at a right angle. They knew, as I did, that the elephant's sense of sight is weak and that our only chance of escape lay in changing, from time to time, the direction of our flight.
"We did not dare look around, but hurried on in breathless haste. The thundering, dull noise of the pursuing elephants came nearer and nearer. Then suddenly a piercing, trumpet-like sound was heard above the dull noise. Turning around I saw the wounded animal falling into a sitting posture and the rest of the herd in wild flight away from us."

The Retort Courteous.
The pleasant-faced young man stood in an aisle of the book department of one of the big stores. In his hand he held a volume which he had some time previously taken from the counter devoted to the display of the latest fiction. It must be confessed that the young man was devoting most of his attention to an exceedingly pretty, blonde clerk, who stood by his side. The pair were, in fact, so merry that they did not observe the approach of a haughty woman of middle-age who would probably have tipped the scales at 250 pounds, and who wished to pass them, an operation which, though simple for persons of average size, was rendered difficult, if not impossible, by her extreme plumpness.

The newcomer paused a moment, but the merry pair, oblivious of her presence, kept on chatting gaily.
"Can I pass you?" she demanded at length in tones of thunder, surveying the offending couple with a glance truly Gorgonian.
The young man turned, surveyed the speaker, noted her distended nostrils and wrathful eyes, likewise her overplump figure.
"Really, I don't know," he said, raising his hat politely. "I hope so, I'm sure."
Now, if looks could kill!—New York Times.

Comanche Counting.
A peculiar feature about the Comanche language is the method of counting. A Comanche will count up to 10 in the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 method, but there he stops. He does not use eleven but instead he counts it as "10 and 1 more," and so on, until he reaches 19, which he pronounces 19.
He then pronounces 20, but starts in with "20 and 1 more" until he reaches 29, which he counts 29, then starts in with 30, like he did 20, and counts to 39, and so on all the way up.
Counting is the most difficult thing to learn in the Comanche language. In fact, by the time a person has learned to count in that language he has pretty well mastered it.
As there is no alphabet in the language, the only way to learn it is by word of mouth. Any attempt to write it in the English alphabet would be absolutely fruitless, as the proper pronunciation could not thereby be transmitted.—Lawton Democrat.

Wynne's Foggy Weather Joke.
Consult George Wynne, formerly postmaster general, is back in Washington, having been recalled from London to appear as a witness in the trial of the indicted postoffice contractor, Crawford. Wynne was at the White House the other day, brilliant in a long English coat and a Bond street silk hat.
Wynne says he likes life in London first rate, and even enjoys the weather.
"An English chappie," he remarked, "said to me one day, 'I say, General Wynne, how do you like our beastly weather, the fogs and rains, you know?'"
"I like the weather all right," I replied. "Why shouldn't I, I am not a cab driver."
"Now, that's awfully clever," said my friend, "I had never looked at it that way."

Really a Sad Case.
A beggar accosted me to-day—
A woman disheveled and sad,
She asked for a penny and wept and said
That times were terribly bad.
With you and your class they always are,
As bad as bad can be,
"Come, now," I said, "and stop your tears;
They flow so easily."
She dashed her hand across her eyes
And told her tale of woe;
How things were worse than they used to be a month or so ago.
For then, she said, her only son,
A blind and helpless lad,
Went out and begged the daily bread,
But now, alas! twice sad,
"And so you lost your boy?" I asked.
"And hence your bitter plight?"
"Yes, even worse than that," she said,
"My boy regained his sight!"

AWFUL ITCHING ON SCALP.

Hair Finally Had to Be Cut to Save Any—Scalp Now in Good Condition Cured by Cuticura.

"I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment for a diseased scalp, dandruff, and constantly falling hair. Finally I had to cut my hair to save any at all. Just at that time I read about the Cuticura Remedies. Once every week I shampooed my hair with the Cuticura Soap, and I used the Ointment twice a week. In two months' time my hair was long enough to do up in French twist. That is now five years ago, and I have a lovely head of hair. The length is six inches below my waist line, my scalp is in very good condition, and no more dandruff or itching of the scalp. I used other remedies that were recommended to me as good, but with no results. Mrs. W. F. Gress, Clay Center, Neb., Oct. 23, 1905."

GOT MUSIC THAT HE ENJOYED.

Farmer Called for Popular Airs, and Leader Obeyed.
Uncle Jog Rich of Guildhall, Vt., was a character. He was a well-to-do farmer, and kept open house to his friends. Rotund and jovial, and dressed in his Sunday suit, blue swallow-tail coat with brass buttons, buff vest and black silk hat, he was a noticeable figure. He attended all the dances, could cut a pigeon wing to "beat the band," and was a great favorite with the boys.
One fall after the crops were stored they invited him to take a week's trip to Boston to see the sights with them. One night after supper, which was washed down with a liberal supply of champagne, "Uncle Joe" was taken to the theatre, the party occupying a box.
The old man was at his best. As he sat down and looked the audience over the orchestra struck up an operatic selection. He wanted to know "what kind of a cussed tune" that was, anyway. This selection was followed by another. He wiped his beaming face and bald head with a red silk handanna which he pulled out of his silk tile, and walked around unobtrusively.

Finally he could stand it no longer. Leaning over the box, he shouted, waving his hat: "Say, Mr. Fiddlers, if you've got those fiddles tuned give us 'Fisher's Hornpipe' or 'Devil's Dream.'" This brought down the house, and the band struck up the music the old man wanted.

"Bill" Was Out of the Smoke.
In the vicinity of Paris Hill, Me., a generation or thereabout ago, lived a man named William Young, who was known as "Bill" Young. Although it was conceded he was hardly up to par intellectually, and was accordingly the butt of jokes, his replies were always witty and sure to provoke laughter.
On one occasion, in celebrating a presidential election, it is said, the boys decided to put up a poke on the old man. They had an old "muzzle-loader," which they filled nearly half-full of black powder, wads, etc., and informed him he must fire it. "Bill" demurred, on the ground that the charge was too heavy, but on being told it was the only way he could show his loyalty to the Republican party he consented.

Taking the gun somewhat gingerly, he fired, and was, of course, bowled over and over by the recoil of the heavy musket.

One of the boys, a safe distance away, and doubled up with laughter, managed to gasp: "Say, Bill, what are you down there for?"

"Huh! To get out 'th' smoke," retorted "Bill" slowly and painfully picking himself up out of the dirt.

Upset Clerical Dignity.
The minister who had the reputation of never relaxing from his dignity was trying to prove to a few congenial friends that the reputation was not deserved. "Why, one day I laughed right out in the pulpit," he said, "and I did not get over the disgrace of it for several weeks. But it was one of those times when my sense of humor got the better of my ministerial calm."

"It was one-hot summer day, and my church was very close to a house. The windows of the church were open, and we could hear distinctly the murmur of voices next door. I had just offered prayer, and there was the intense silence which always follows an invocation. In the solemn silence a woman's harsh voice screamed: "John, where are the nails?" And a gruff voice answered: "In the coffee pot, you fool. You put them there yourself!"

Bad Company.
A Glasgow holiday-maker was brought up on a charge of drunk and disorderly.
"What have you got to say for yourself?" said the magistrate. "You look respectable and ought to be ashamed to stand there."
"I'm verra sorry, sir, but I came up in bad company from Glesca," humbly replied the prisoner.

"What sort of company?"
"A lot of teetotalers," was the startling response.
"What, sir!" cried the bailie (a teetotaler) in rage, "do you mean to say that abstainers are bad company? I thik they are the best of company for such as you, sir."
"Beggin' your pardon," answered the prisoner, "ye're wrang, for I had a hale mutchkin of whusky an' I had to drink it 'a' misel."—Birmingham Post.

And Thayer Got the Fox.
A member of the Worcester (Mass.) Fur Club once took the Hon. John R. Thayer for a day's hunt. A fox was readily started. Stopping at a cross-roads, the host told his guest to ride on to a certain tree at the bend of the road. Mr. Thayer started off, but went to a well known runaway. He and Reynard got there at the same time, and the latter was done for. Mr. Thayer then drove to the oak tree, and was beginning to skin the fox, when the host came up and said: "Well, well, I never knew a fox to run there before."
"Neither did I," blandly replied Thayer.

Not Enough Present.
"Hi, there, youse two!" yelled the steward; "handle that gunpowder careful!"
"Why?" demanded the two bandiers in chorus.
"Don't you know some o' that saw-powder exploded a couple o' years ago an' blowed up ten men?"
"Well" replied one of the workmen, "sure that couldn't happen now. There's only two o' us here."

"Vaudeville."
The name "vaudeville" is understood to be a corruption of Vaux de Vire, the name of two picturesque valleys in the Bocage of Normandy, and was originally applied to a song with words relating to some story of the day. These songs were first composed by one Oliver Basselin, a pulic in Vire; they were very popular and spread all over France, and were called by the name of their native place (Les Vaux de Vire).

TITLES ONLY FOR WEALTHY.

Englishmen Must Have Certain Income Before Ennoblement.

Sordid questions of finance enter into the consideration of the eligibility of those upon whom an English monarch would confer the distinction of knighthood, and there are many who might use the coveted prefix "Sir" did they possess a larger income.

It is, roughly speaking, a rule that knighthood shall not be conferred upon any one who has not an income of at least $15,000 upon which to maintain his knightly dignity, while a baronet, before his creation, must not only be found to have an income of at least $50,000 a year, but must further be able to purchase a country seat and be able to suitably provide for his eldest son.

While knighthood or ennoblement is a mark of distinction awarded for distinguished merit, it is held that its conferral would only embarrass those who could not afford to keep up the dignity of their station.
