Requests for sample copies of The Age are coming in from all parts of the United States. The Age mailing list has always been a broad gauge affair, but its reputation for reliability seems to go ever on.

J. R. Hunter respectfully solicits the family trade for Beer, Wines, Whiskies and Cordials, either in bulk or bottled goods. A postal card order will bring the wagon to your door. Have the largest assorted stock in Southern Nevada to select from.

Eife's for silks and dress goods.

Fixtures and furniture for the new bank building are expected daily, and the quarters are ready for their installation as soon as they arrive. Cashier Park hopes to get into the new building by January 1st, but it may be a few days later before it is ready for occupancy.

Mrs. H. G. Colvin and son, Mr. Edmund Colvin, are sojourning in Las Vegas hoping that the climate may be beneficial to the latter's health. They went from Salt Lake to Southern California, but found too much moisture there. Mr. Colvin is in a weak condition, resulting from a severe attack of typhoid fever about a year ago.

Two saloons have already been opened for business in the Blvd addition and three more parties in town signify their intention of starting up in the same line there as soon as locations can be secured. One individual has erected a tent in which he has placed a few cots and a cook stove; and divides his time by acting as the agent and blowing down town lots and furnishing beds and "home cooking" meals to visitors. The additional brick buildings being erected for Mr. Peter Etol are being rushed to completion, and it is reported applications have already been made for all the store rooms.

Try those Red Colorado Apples at Johnson & Ward's.

CHRISTMAS

Eagles Will Provide Tree For Children

Arrangements for the entertainment to be given by the Sunday School and children of Las Vegas Christmas night are going merrily on. The entertainment, as previously announced, will be held in the large garage building north of Hotel Las Vegas. An excellent program is being prepared, and all are invited to enjoy it.

The local lodge of Eagles has manifested its liberality and the proper Christmas spirit by offering to provide the Christmas tree and a treat for all the children of Las Vegas, so no little boy or girl, no matter what the circumstances of their home, will be entirely overlooked by Santa Claus this year.

Let the people of Las Vegas turn out in force Christmas night and help make the occasion a joyous one for the little folks.

LOCAL NOTES

Life's for holiday books and cards.

Will Stewart is experiencing some busy days getting the assessment work done on his several mining claims. He has a number of men at work to keep supplied with water and food.

Considerable rain fell the fore part of Wednesday night, followed by a cold wind, which set in about midnight and continued all day Thursday. Snow is low down on the mountains.

Eife's "Trustbusters" catalogue prices.

The fixtures are being installed in the new postoffice this week and are both neat in appearance and of convenient arrangement. Postmaster Bracken expects to be able to move into the new quarters some time next week.

Both the railroad and telegraph companies use Pacific time at Las Vegas. The postoffice and community generally use mountain time. Why not change the local time to correspond with train schedules and avoid confusion?

Postmaster Bracken announces that he has no authority to change postoffice hours until so instructed by the department. In consequence the evening mail from the north and east, which arrives at 7:10 (mountain and local time), will not be open for delivery until the following morning.

Charles Culverwell Jr., opened his new meat market on First street this week. Mr. Culverwell comes to Las Vegas from Caliente, where he also conducts a market and where he has the reputation of serving best quality of meats at fair prices. The meat supplied by this market is all grown in Caliente and vicinity and butchered especially for the Culverwell markets. Mr. Culverwell announces that he has come to Las Vegas to stay and hopes to make The Cash Market a popular place to trade. Read his advertisement in this issue.

Eife's for china, cut glass, silverware.

GOOD SPRINGS

Our Correspondent Again "Smokes Up"

Good Springs, Dec. 16.—Well! well! The pipe didn't go out; we only had to borrow a match. No indeed; we are still it. Our "prospects" are "all mines," and assessment work for this year shows it. Never, I say never were there in any camp so many surprises as there has been here. Oveverywhere—good ore—and without egotism or boast. I want to say (through your valuable paper) that when the prospector's feet gets sore, his eyes dim, his burro hungry, he will find a panacea for all ills in the fertile valleys and the prolific hills in the Yellow Pine Mining District. Don't forget this. Tell your friends.

Weather is fine.

Capt. Hardy is happy.

Sam Yount is uneasy. Why? Because Mrs. Y. is in Los Angeles, where she is enjoying a much-needed rest. Wouldn't it be nice on the desert if there were lots of people like Mr. and Mrs. Yount?

Kent is happy. New girl in Long Beach, good ore in mine. Mother and mine feeling and looking well. So is Kent.

The iron-buster of last summer has learned to walk, and never again will he stoop so low as to mount the hurricane deck of a kayuse—no, not he—but as he walks he thinks.

[In explanation of the above paragraph it is necessary to state that during the latter part of summer our correspondent went on horseback trip into hills for several days, and for quite a period after his return found it much pleasanter to take his meals standing. It is hard to surmise what inspired our youthful friend to indite the fore part of the following paragraph unless he is really in love or, mine host Sam Yount has added a new brand, to his excellent stock of liquors at the hotel.]

All is love. Yes, you'll hear the silver moon; and 'neath it's soft lingering rays we would like to tell you how much we love you. Not for yourself, but for the good you are doing to the people of this district through your valuable paper. Good Springs is IT, and next week we will write you a long and "confidential" letter.

LADIES' AID BAZAAR

Clears Over One Hundred Dollars

The three days bazaar given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Church of Las Vegas, closed last Saturday night a splendid social and financial success. The enterprise netted over one hundred dollars, which will be used for church purposes.

Each and every member of the Ladies' Aid Society is entitled to credit for the successful manner in which the bazaar was conducted. The society at present comprises the following members:

Mrs. Johnson, president; Mrs. Fred L. Fallas, vice-president; Mrs. Besson, secretary; Mrs. Lake, treasurer, and Mesdames Lane, Ball, Harris, Kuhn, Collins, Buol, Church, Smith, Bain.

These ladies are outspoken in expressing their gratitude to the other ladies of the community who so generously assisted them in their enterprise, and Mrs. Bain especially wishes to extend her thanks to those who responded so liberally to her requests for contributions of various kinds.

The result of the bazaar places the society in a prosperous condition, and proves that it will be an important factor in the building up of the church.

The church proper has a fund of $500 in the bank allotted by the Methodist Church Extension for a church building. This fund will be augmented by individual and other contributions, and no doubt a handsome church edifice will be assured before the new year is far advanced.

H. E. Freudenthal, of Pioche, has received a diploma of award from the superior jury of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in honor of his work in behalf of Nevada while at the exposition.

NOTICE—We hereby certify that we supply J. O. McIntosh, of the Arizona Club, Las Vegas, Nevada, with our Tom Moore "Old Possum Hollow" pure rye whiskey, direct from our Government bonded distillery warehouse, and that up to the present date his purchases have been of the very oldest goods to be had in bond.

THE PROSPECTOR

Contributed

P. H. SPRINGER, Good Springs

There is probably no class of men who have, by their labor and intelligence, contributed more to the comforts, happiness and welfare of mankind than the prospector.

The man who leaves his home and loved ones to engage in warfare is called a hero, and he who forsakes society and the pleasures of life on land to follow sea with all its perils, is considered a brave man and an honor to his country, and justly are these honors bestowed by an appreciative people upon those to whom honor is due, but let us not forget the big-hearted, brave man and hero who gives up all the pleasures of life for the desert in search of gold, and whose bones, as they lie bleaching under the rays of the scorching desert sun, are the mile-stones of civilization, and whose life has been given in quest of that which makes nations prosperous and life worth living. There never has been and probably never will be a substitute for gold, and still the search goes on, and in memory of those who have perished and an ode to the living, I enclose the following verses:

Watch the prospector, grim and weary,
As he treads the pathless waste;
Hunts he for precious metal
God has hidden in the earth:

Toils he long and faithful,
Spending years in fruitless hope
That some day he'll be rewarded,
And that Earth's secret he'll unfold:

With his pick, pan and shovel,
His hardtack, bacon and beans,
He packs his faithful burro
And all comforts of life he leaves.

Toils he ever and faithful
From morn till the setting sun;
His work is hardy ended,
His labors never begun.

When he finds that the years of hardship
Are sapping his life away,
And he lays down the burden, so heavy,
And dreams of another day—

He may be dreaming of childhood,
Of a mother loving and kind;
Of the scenes of his youth in a far away
land
Which he left, a fortune to find.

Or, he may be dreaming of dearest ties,
Of a sweetheart, or a wife and baby,
For whom he has toiled all these weary
years,
And longs to see 'ere he dies:

But whate'er be your dreams; my brother,
Your reward is yet to come;
For the thread of life is near broken
And God is calling you home!

Where a mansion in heaven awaits you,
A mansion fit built with hands,
And its walls are of the purest Jasper
And its windows are of precious stones.

Yes, God is calling for you! yet ponder;
Where none ever grow weary or old;
To that city above, where all is love;
And whose streets are paved with gold.

And so he passed o'er the River,
And his friends, of the glittering shore,
Met him and took him to "The Great White Throne."
There to dwell in peace eter mine!

I will leave Las Vegas about Jan. 20th, to be away 90 days.
