Timber Troubles

Joe Evans was arraigned in Justice Lillis' Court Monday on the charge of impersonating an officer, preferred by E. D. DeClare, manager of the Lincoln County Lumber Company.

It appeared that Evans had assisted J. T. McWilliams in stopping some of Le Clare's men from working on certain lands in Charleston mountain which Mc Williams claims to own. The matter was thrashed out in court, but before decision was rendered, counsel for both sides requested suspension of judgment, hoping to adjust the misunderstanding out of court.

Mr. McFadden of Salt Lake, one of the principal owners in the Lincoln County Lumber Co., and who knows the lines of the various claims, came down and with Mr. Mc Williams has gone to the mountain to straighten matters out.

Traction Engine

R. H. Elsey, a professional engineer, has delivered the traction engine from the sandstone quarry at the sawmill of the Lincoln County Lumber company in Charleston mountains. The huge machine will be used to haul lumber from the mill to Owens siding on the L. V. & T.

The running of the big engine from Las Vegas to the mountains was a difficult task. From Owens siding to the mill there is a good road, but from Las Vegas to Owens, poor roads and desert sands presented serious obstacles. Mr. Elsey has received considerable praise accomplishing the feat.

New Map of Nevada

G. S. Clason was in town this week introducing a new map of Nevada, just from the presses of the Clason Map Co. of Denver, Colorado. This map is the latest and most complete on the market, showing all the new railroads and mining camps, including the famous Greenwater district.

The Age will have copies of this map for sale in a few days. There is a splendid wall map at $5.00, and a nicely bound pocket edition at $1.00. Copies will be mailed to any address upon receipt of price.

Mr. G. S. Clason is a relative of F. H. Clayton of this city.

Gov. Sparks has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation.

Vegas Supplies Meat
Las Vegas Mercantile Co. reports the demand for meat from Bullfrog and Greenwater districts so extensive, that they are frequently required to butcher day and night. The cold weather allows the mining camps to enjoy fresh meat, which is denied them to a great extent during the summer season.

Woodson of Hannibal, Mo., will leave a point on the Colorado river near Searchlight and travel upstream into the Virgin range of mountains and the Grand Canyon, in search of gold.—Searchlight Bulletin
