

It Quiets the Cough

This is one reason why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so valuable in consumption. It stops the wear and tear of useless coughing. But it does more—it controls the inflammation, quiets the fever, soothes, heals. Ask your doctor about this.

Show Value of Heredity.
A parliamentary candidate was being heckled. One of the questions had reference to the religious denomination to which he belonged.

"Well," he said, "you asked me an honest question and you shall have a straightforward answer. My grandmother was a Scotch woman—a rigid Presbyterian."

Obvious disappointment was shown in the faces of the audience, so the candidate proceeded:

"My grandfather was English and therefore a member of the Church of England."

Still no enthusiasm, but rather the reverse.

"My father, on the other hand, was a good Baptist," went on the desperate candidate, who was still unrewarded by applause. He grew anxious, so hurriedly added: "But my dear old mother, long since dead, was a Methodist."

Instantly all faces were radiant, so he concluded:

"And, gentlemen, I follow the precepts of my dear old mother. I'm a Methodist and I don't care who knows it!"—London Mail.

Presents in Safe Place.
A young millhand having lost his sweetheart through his own botheaded folly first threatened to commit suicide and then became vulgarly insistent in his demands for the return of the presents he had given her.

"What good will they be to you if you're goin' to drown yourself in t' mill pond?" she scoffed.

"Never you mind; I want them back," he replied evasively.

"Well, I'll see that you have them," the girl reluctantly agreed.

But five days passed and the young man still bemoaned the loss of the forgotten trinkets. Once more he requested their return.

"Oh, lad, I wish you'd stop worryin' me," sighed the girl, anxious by now for a reconciliation. "I've given t' presents up long since. They're waitin' for you at t' bottom o' t' mill pond, tied up in a red handkerchief; you can't help but see 'em when you jump in."

Then the humble young man apologized and the quarrel was patched up, in the old sweet way.—London Tit-Bits.

Making the Heart Strong.
The kind of exercise one should take for his heart's sake is extremely important, says a writer in Outing. As I have already said, exercise to affect the heart sufficiently, must be vigorous, though not too vigorous. Ordinary walking, while healthful, falls short of this requirement. That calisthenics and light exercises generally are also deficient in this respect is proved by the fact that, while all humankind naturally indulge in light exercises, yet heart ailments are prevalent among them. Every one that is not bedridden walks more or less; and I have read learned articles which try to prove that walking is the only exercise man requires. But if a man never runs, he could not, if he would, run fairly fast even a half mile. So the argument is in effect that a man need not be able to run. I cannot agree with this conclusion; for walking at a moderate pace affects heart action only slightly.

Running, of all exercises for the heart, is, I think, the best. Of course one who has a weak heart cannot immediately run either fast or far; nor is it necessary for the average individual to learn to run great distances at a high speed. But every one owes it to his health to be able to run, without distress, say a half-mile at a fair pace. Let him begin by jogging one-eighth or one-quarter of a mile, then a half-mile, which distance he may ultimately run reasonably fast.

His Sudden Inspiration.
"I know you are a busy man," began the caller, "and I want to occupy your time only a few minutes. I am handling an edition of the complete works of Rawlsack, which is so cheap that the poorest man on earth can afford to—"

"It's just the thing I am looking for," interrupted Ardup, "only I want an edition de luxe, printed on vellum, illuminated by hand, bound in Turkey morocco and gold, and selling for $500 a volume. Have you got that? No? Then we can't do any business. I'm awfully sorry. Good day."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mozart's Quick Work.
On one occasion Mozart was making merry with his friends at midnight when not a single note was written of the overture to "Don Giovanni," which was to be produced on the following evening. When he had said good-by to his friends he calmly went to bed and slept until 5 o'clock in the morning. Awakening refreshed, he set to work on the overture, dashing off sheet after sheet with incredible rapidity and dispatching them to the copyists. The opera was to begin at 7 in the evening, and a few minutes after that hour Mozart was in his place as conductor, baton in hand, while the parts with the ink still wet on some of them were being handed to the orchestra.

Capt. J. W. Hogan, former postmaster of Indianapolis, now living at Austin, Texas, writes: "I was afflicted for years with pains across the loins and in the hips and shoulders. I had head ache also and neuralgia. My right eye from pain, was of little use to me for years. The constant flow of urine kept my system depleted, causing nervous chills and night sweats. After trying seven different climates and using all kinds of medicine I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy has cured me. I am as well today as I was twenty years ago, and my eye sight is perfect."

Hat Chasers.
A new profession has been established—the professional hat chaser. It fills a long "felt" want—not only felt, but any other kind of a hat would mean as much for him. The winder the day the happier the hat chaser appears. He hangs around windy corners like the Masonic temple—which is a veritable Klondike to him—and when old Boreas peels off the headpiece of an innocent pedestrian he immediately starts pursuit, and, securing the hat, brushes it neatly with a near-hair brushlet which he carries concealed somewhere on his person, hands it back to its rightful owner, and then with an appealing look awaits results—which may be a nickel, or, very seldom, a dime.

It is said these chasers earn from $1 to $3 a day, dependent, of course, upon the weather. Some of them carry a supply of string hat guards, and offer them to whoever has been so unfortunate as to have his hat tossed about on the winds—at 10 cents apiece.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Dellah had cut off Samson's long hair. "It's a trifle coarse," she said, "but I can use it for a switch."

African Manioc.
The native food of the Malunda country, in southern Africa, comprises manioc, and that alone. It is a plant particularly adapted to wet, marshy soil, says the author of "In Remotest Barotseland." It takes two years to arrive at maturity, and while growing requires very little attention.

The root when full grown is about the size, and has very much the appearance of a German sausage, although at times it grows much larger. One shrub has several roots, and the extraction of two or three in no way impairs the growth of the remainder.

When newly dug it tastes like a chestnut, and the digestion of the proverbial ostrich can alone assimilate it raw; but when soaked in water for a few days until partly decomposed, dried on the roofs of the huts and stamped, it forms a delightfully white soft meal, far whiter and purer than the best flour. Then it is beaten into a thick paste and eaten with a little flavoring, composed of a locust or a caterpillar which the natives seek in decayed trees.

Another way of eating this native luxury is by baking the roots, after soaking them, and eating it as you would a banana. Taken as a whole, it forms the best all-the-year-round native food; but I should advise all intending consumers to abstain from any other food for three or four days before giving it a prolonged trial.

Moki Beauties.
The average Moki woman is, perhaps invariably, not large or obese. Short in stature, plump and round of form, of pleasing countenance, with beautiful jet-black hair banded at the eyes, when clad in tasteful and colored blankets she presents a picture fair indeed to see. The manner of wearing the hair distinguishes the married woman from the virgin. The latter wears her black tresses gracefully done up in a large round coil several inches in diameter over each ear and projecting out from the head somewhat. The effect is delightfully novel, and coupled with the fresh and youthful appearance of the girls makes them special objects of interest. They used to be termed "sidewheelers," from their mode of dressing the hair.—Maxwell's Tallman.

The Portuguese attempted to establish cattle farming in Newfoundland in 1553, but all traces of the animals they imported have been lost.

Women Astronomers Startle World.
Being proposed to in a balloon, is the latest adventure of a woman astronomer, writes Dewey Sheldon Beebe in Technical World Magazine. And the women astronomers of to-day have discovered more new stars than the men of science have been able to find in several centuries. But women in astronomical work are not the product of new world conditions alone, for they have been identified with every important advance in that science. From the time when the young and beautiful Hypatia of Alexandria gave her life a martyr to science, a tragedy of the fifth century, to the daring capture of Dorothea Klumpke while making a balloon voyage under the auspices of the Paris Observatory, a romance of the twentieth century, the story of women and astronomy is a record of achievement charged with sacrifice and devotion. Woman's natural carefulness, system, caution, accuracy, and love of detail, have made her indispensable in completing our knowledge of the constitution and distribution of the stars. She has achieved greater success, has met with more courteous recognition, and now occupies a more prominent place in astronomy than in any other branch of scientific activity. She has added greatly to our knowledge of the stars, not only through her untiring efforts and discoveries, but by the inspiration of her example and the stimulus of her devotion.

CATARRH BLOOD DISEASED AND SYSTEM DISORDERED

Catarrh is not merely an inflammation of the tissues of the head and throat, as the symptoms of ringing noises in the ears, mucous dropping back into the throat, continual hawking and spitting, etc., would seem to indicate; it is a blood disease in which the entire circulation and the greater part of the system are involved. Catarrh is due to the presence of an excess of uric acid in the blood. The Liver, Kidneys and Bowels frequently become torpid and dull in their action and instead of carrying off the refuse and waste of the body, leave it to sour and form uric acid in the system. This is taken up by the blood and through its circulation distributed to all parts of the system. These impurities in the blood irritate and inflame the different membranes and tissues of the body, and the contracting of a cold will start the secretions and other disgusting and disagreeable symptoms of Catarrh. As the blood goes to all parts of the body the catarrhal poison affects all parts of the system. The head has a tight, full feeling, nose continually stopped up, pains above the eyes, slight fever comes and goes, the stomach is upset and the entire system disordered and affected by this disease. It is a waste of time to try to cure Catarrh with sprays, washes, inhalations, etc. Such treatment does not reach the blood, and can, therefore, do nothing more than temporarily relieve the discomfort of the trouble. To cure Catarrh permanently the blood must be thoroughly purified and the system cleansed of all poisons, and at the same time strengthened and built up. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. It attacks the disease at its head, goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and makes a complete and lasting cure. S. S. S. removes every particle of the catarrhal poison from the blood, making this vital stream pure, fresh and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, the head is loosened and cleared, the hawking and spitting cease, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and vigorous health restored. S. S. S. also tones up the stomach and digestion and acts as a fine tonic to the entire system. If you are suffering with Catarrh begin the use of S. S. S. and write us a statement of your case and our physicians will send you literature about Catarrh, and give you special medical advice without charge. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores.

"I have been particularly benefited by its use for colds in the head and throat. I have been able to fully cure myself of a most severe attack in forty-eight hours by its use according to directions. I use it as a preventive whenever threatened with an attack."

"Members of my family also use it for like ailments. We are recommending it to our friends."
