

MAYOR OF SUNBURY

Says Pe-nu-na is a Good Medicine.

Hon. C. C. Brooks, Mayor of Sunbury, Ohio, also Attorney for Farmers' Bank and Sunbury Building and Loan Co., writes:

"I have the utmost confidence in the virtue of Peruna. It is a great medicine. I have used it and I have known many of my friends who have obtained beneficial results from its use. I cannot praise Peruna too highly."

HON. C. C. BROOKS.

HERE are a host of petty ailments which are the direct result of the weather. This is more true of the excessive heat of summer and the intense cold of winter, but is partly true of all seasons of the year.

Whether it be a cold or a cough, catarrh of the head or bowel complaint, whether the liver be affected or the kidneys, the cause is very liable to be the same.

The weather slightly deranges the mucous membranes of the organs and the result is some functional disease. Peruna has become a standby in thousands of homes for minor ailments of this sort.

A Simple Device.
By making a hole through a piece of paper or a card with a pin, moving the pin a few times round the hole to give it a smooth edge, holding the pin hole close to the eye, and looking at printed or other matter held at the normal reading distance, there is perfect definition, and any one who requires to use glasses to read can with this device read anything. When a pin hole is held to both eyes at the same time, there is a great improvement over one, with perfect binocular effect. The field of view is much smaller than that seen when glasses are used. There is less light and no magnification. The importance and utility of this simple device in many circumstances is obvious.

Hat Pin Headaches.
Hat pins worn by women to secure their headgear are declared by English physicians to be one of the most prolific sources of headaches. A device recently has been put upon the market in England to relieve the strain and save the women from the headaches.

Lancet, the leading British medical and surgical authority, claims that on a windy day the leverage on the roots of the hair when the large and flapping headgear is endeavoring to sail away, is one of the causes of the headache of which most women complain after a buffeting by the elements. "Il faut souffrir pour etre belle" is an old saying, but many women do not know that they have only their hats to thank for their headaches, while the aphorism does not suggest that the eyesight of other people should suffer for beauty's sake.

As a Precaution.
The old story of the man who saw on the wall of the organ gallery in a little Western church a placard bearing the words, "Don't shoot the organist. He is doing the best he can," has lately been matched by another somewhat like it. A man recently returned from a mining region, where, on Sunday, he attended a service in the only church for miles around. As he entered, the strains of an organ, apparently in great distress, reached his ears, and when he was seated he looked up to discover who the player was. On the back of the parlor organ which stood on the platform was a neatly lettered square of pasteboard which read, "Come up and try it yourself!"

Sonnet to a Stack of Wheat.
Ah, toothsome viand on my breakfast plate,
With sirup ("Pure Vermont") all slathered o'er,
What joy to see a stack of ten or more,
Hot, steaming, thin, my appetite to satiate!
Unkind, indeed, that the strange thing called Fate
Has not placed thy inventor to the fore
Within the Hall of Fame. To thus ignore
Thy name is slighting one that's truly great.

But never mind—whoe'er thou art or where,
Alive or dead, thy memory will live
Adown the ages, past the fleeting years—
Twill reverence be assuredly with care.
So long as Bridget ne'er forgets to give
Our morning stack that fills us up and cheers!

Ancient Hall of Tara.
Many whose hearts have been moved by the wistful strains of the old Irish song, "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls," have wondered as to the origin of Moore's ballad. Some broken ruins are still to be seen of the ancient Hall of Tara, which previous to the seventh century was the residence of the high king of Erin. Later it was the dwelling place of one of the provincial rulers, who held the title of king of Tara. In the thirteenth century it had passed into the possession of a family of Norman descent, the Repentines. In Queen Elizabeth's reign, the head of this family, then an old man of 70 years, was put to death for using treasonable language concerning the queen, and his estates were confiscated, but King James I. restored them to his descendants. During the iron rule of Cromwell the property was again alienated, and after the restoration of Charles II. to the English throne was granted to his brother, the duke of York. After the latter's abdication they passed to Lord Tyrconnel, who, by taking part in a rebellion, also forfeited them. In 1702 they were sold to a manufacturing company, which, not caring to use them, disposed of them to a wealthy gentleman of Dublin. The old palace had long before fallen into ruins, and the lands were at last divided and sold, thus wiping out of existence the ancient estate of the lords of Tara. But in the latter part of the century a descendant of the old family, Penrhyn O'Kelly, bought a small part of the old historic estate and built on it—The Housekeeper.

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

ORPHEUM.
Ned Nye and Six Rollicking Girls head the bill for the week of February 4th. They are good lookers, talented singers and clever dancers, and have a catchy comedy. Warren and Blanchard are billed as the comedian and the singer, and are all that they claim to be. You admire the one and laugh enjoyably at the other. Marcella and Millay will do some exceedingly eccentric acrobatics. Their burlesque wrestling match is one of the most amusing stunts ever offered. Edgar Acheson-Ely, as may be guessed by his double-jointed name, is an Englishman, but he has a very highly developed bump of humor and is guaranteed to raise the laughs anywhere outside a morgue.

During the present week the popular features of the bill have been Searl and Violet Allen's comedy, "The Traveling Man," Rice and Cohen in "The Lover," Miss Wakefield's spoken songs, and Black and Jones, the colored dancers. All four of these will remain for the week of February 4th.

WHERE BRITISH SOLDIERS MET

In All Their Military Finery Among New Hampshire Hills.
There is probably not to be found in all New England a more unique monument than that which occupies a commanding position on the main highway between Durham and Hollis, N. H. It is unique, not only that it stands in a lonely position at some distance from human habitation, but also in what it commemorates, says the Boston Herald.

The attention of the tourist is attracted first at the sight of a monument in so singular a position. He instinctively pauses to learn what great event or victory it celebrates, and is amazed to read the following inscription:

"After the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga in 1777 certain British officers, prisoners of war quartered in this vicinity, but released upon parole, were permitted to enjoy, in all their military finery, a trying place at this spot."

It has long been the custom to commemorate great events and victories by monuments, but seldom indeed has such a circumstance as this been so commemorated.

Those were strenuous days in which Burgoyne met Gates and defeat, and descendants of the sturdy "boys of '76" will tell you, and only events of more than ordinary interest and excitement were notified.

Just who these officers were who were quartered here, or what occurrences warranted the erection of this monument, is not known. The region is replete with interesting traditions of those exciting days that have come down through generations of storytellers. Whether these traditions be founded on fact or not, one thing is certain, those in whose charge these prisoners of war were placed were true Americans, honoring the foe even in his defeat.

Every kindness seems to have been shown them, every possible courtesy granted them. Notwithstanding the repugnance with which the New Englander looked upon the red coat of the British officer, they were permitted to wear it and to enjoy a trying place under the branches of this old tree, whose branches have sheltered generations of sturdy sons and daughters of this land of freedom.

The monument is a plain, well-polished granite slab and stands on a little eminence commanding a view of the main highway. It occupies such a position that the passers by cannot fail to get a full view of this interesting and historical spot.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Ollie Mack and Chas. A. Murray, the odd and original comedians, are back again with a new edition of "Around the Town." Mack says that the reason he has given the old name to the new play is simply because he and Murray have so long been associated with "Around the Town" that the name is the best advertisement they can get. "Around the Town," has always been new and up to date, and Ollie and Charlie are going to stick to the old name. Among the well-known favorites on this season's program are Gladys Van, the original "Red Sourette," and Gus Pixley of "Babes in Toyland." The three acts of "Around the Town" are replete with complicated comicities. There is a fetching and costumed chorus of 24 pretty girls, all singers and dancers. The music of the piece is catchy and melodious. "Around the Town" will be presented for one week only, commencing Sunday, February 3d.

Difference Between Men.
It was said of Cecil Rhodes that his real force was most conspicuously shown in his successful effort to live down such a title as "The Diamond King," and to become known as an empire builder. His most noteworthy associate, who has recently died, earned no such praise. Although his enterprises involved him in politics, even in world politics, and were the proximate cause of pushing to the decision of arms the radical issue in South Africa, which it always seemed to many might have been peacefully decided, yet the war was with him simply incidental to his business. In money getting he was surprisingly successful, inasmuch that ten years ago he was reputed to be the "richest man in the world," and even since then to be, in dollars, a billionaire.—New York Times.

OLD THAMES' DOCKS.

Local Color of London River the Product of Many Years' Growth.
The absence of picturesqueness cannot be laid to the charge of the docks opening into the Thames. For all my unkind comparisons to swans and backyards, says a writer in the Metropolitan, it cannot be denied that each dock or group of docks along, the north side of the river has its own individual character.

Beginning with the cozy little St. Catherine's dock lying over-shadowed and black like a quiet pool among rock crags through the venerable and sympathetic London docks with not a single line of rails in the whole of their area and with the scent of spices lingering over the muddy pavement between its warehouses with the far-famed wine cellars, down through the interesting group of West India docks, the fine docks of Blackwall, on past the Galleons Reach entrance of the Victoria and Albert docks—right down to the vast gloom of the great basins in Tilbury, each of these places of restraint for ships has its own peculiar physiognomy of aspect and expression. And what makes them unique and attractive is their common trait of being romantic in their usefulness.

In their way they are as romantic as the river is unlike all the other commercial streams of the world. The coziness of the St. Catherine's dock, the old-world air of the London docks remain impressed upon the memory. The docks down the river abreast of Woolrich are imposing by their proportions and the vast scale of the ugliness that forms their surroundings, ugliness so picturesque as to become a delight to the eye. When one talks of the Thames docks, beauty is a vain word, but romance has lived too long upon this river not to have thrown a mantle of glamour upon its banks.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SKIN DISEASES

HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

When the blood is pure, fresh and healthy, the skin will be soft, smooth and free from blemishes, but when some acid humor takes root in the circulation its presence is manifested by a skin eruption or disease. These humors get into the blood, generally because of an inactive or sluggish condition of the members of the body whose duty it is to collect and carry off the waste and refuse matter of the system. This unhealthy matter is left to sour and ferment and soon the circulation becomes charged with the acid poison. The blood begins to throw off the humors and acids through the pores and glands of the skin, producing Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum and skin eruptions of various kinds. Eczema appears, usually with a slight redness of the skin followed by pustules from which there flows a sticky fluid that dries and forms a crust, and the itching is intense. It is generally on the back, breast, face, arms and legs, though other parts of the body may be affected. In Tetter the skin dries, cracks and bleeds; the acid in the blood dries up the natural oils of the skin, which are intended to keep it soft and pliant, causing a dry, feverish condition and giving it a hard, leathery appearance. Acne makes its appearance on the face in the form of pimples and black heads, while Psoriasis comes in scaly patches on different parts of the body. One of the worst forms of skin trouble is Salt Rheum; its favorite point of attack is the scalp, sometimes causing baldness. Poison Oak and Ivy are also disagreeable types of skin disease. The humor producing the trouble lies dormant in the blood through the Winter to break out and torment the sufferer with the return of Spring. The best treatment for all skin diseases is S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and removes the humors so that the skin instead of being irritated and diseased, is nourished by a supply of fresh, healthy blood. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., while they soothe the itching caused by skin affections, can never cure the trouble because they do not reach the blood. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and forces out every particle of foreign matter and restores the blood to its normal, pure condition, thereby permanently curing every form of skin affection. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores.

I suffered with Eczema for forty years and could find nothing to cure me until I tried S. S. S. I suffered intensely with the itching and burning; pustules would form from which there flowed a sticky fluid; crusts would come on the skin and when scratched of the skin was left as raw as a piece of beef. I suffered agony in the long years I was afflicted, but when I used S. S. S. I found a perfect cure. There has never been any return of the trouble.

"What is a bachelor, pa?" asked the inquisitive small boy.

"A bachelor, my son," replied the parent, "is a man who has resisted all endeavors on the part of a woman to render his life miserable through marriage."

"And what is a bachelor girl, then, pa?" It says something in this newspaper about bachelor girls.

"A bachelor girl, my child," answered the bright boy's mother, looking up from the book she was reading, "is a girl who has resisted all endeavors on the part of a man to render her life miserable through marriage."

Sport in Newfoundland.

L. F. Brown, the veteran angler and camper, writes in The Country Calendar:

"Brook trout and brown trout are not appreciated in Newfoundland, being far more common than the perch and sunfish of the States. Catching them will soon surfeit the angler who casts his flies from the shore of almost any lake. Such catches are counted by the dozen—one lot of seventy-two dozen being brought aboard the train at Harbor Grace. One dozen ten-inch trout usually sell for 10 cents.

"There are 637 named lakes on the island and 30,000 known ones without names. The island has about 4,000 miles of seacoast, including that of bays like Bonavista, Notre Dame, Fortune, St. Mary's Bonne, St. George, Placentia and Bay of Islands. From one to six streams of clear green water empty into each of these bays. Every stream that reaches salt water is a salmon stream. Back from all that coast are other and easily reached streams that have not even a tradition of a fishnet, rod or hook and lakes never mapped where one may camp and add to the fare wild geese and ducks, willow grouse, whose plumage turns white in winter; ptarmigan, plover and curlew. These camping places bring a unique sense of remoteness and solitude. Only one who has actually seen the wall of darkness around a camp fire in the Newfoundland jungles and over the tundras can understand the tinge of fear that sometimes becomes almost appalling in the vast solitudes."

"Certainly," said the dealer, reassuringly. "He's a regular lady's horse."
"You are sure he's not afraid of anything?" asked Mr. Green, anxiously, and for the tenth time.

The dealer assumed an air of reflection.

"Well, there is one thing that he has always appeared to be afraid of ever since I got him," he admitted, conscientiously. "It seems as if he's scared to death for fear some one might say 'Whoa!' and he not hear it."
