All patriotic citizens should now prepare to purchase as many of the 1919 War Savings Stamps as possible. No more stamps of the 1918 series will be sold, although the thrift stamps will remain the same.

Remember that the stamps are only $4.12 during the month, so you will profit by buying early. The 1919 stamps mature in 1924.

HAS MORE TROUBLE OVER WILSON CATTLE

 deducted from the balance when due. Esser later found the heifer, which he butchered, but not the other animal. When Jim and Tweed Wilson came to town, Esser states, he notified them of having taken the animal and told Jim to go to the shop and get the balance due him. However, Jim swore out the complaint instead of going and getting his pay. Esser also states that Wilson tried to sell the two strays to Morgan for $48, but that the latter declined to buy unless the animals were delivered.

In view of the previous charges of a similar nature pending against Esser, this new case has excited wide interest.

GRIPS GOODSPRINGS

Goodsprings was visited by a snow storm last Sunday evening which lasted most of the night, and Monday morning found the world a beautiful glistening white. It had almost disappeared by night, however, although small patches may still be seen in the very shady spots. After the snowfall the weather turned much colder, and for most of the week the thermometer failed to register above freezing point.

IS FIVE BELOW ZERO AT TONOPAH, NEVADA.

Tonopah, Jan. 2.—The year 1919 was introduced with a temperature of five to eight degrees below zero, according to reliable street thermometers, while the United States weather instrument reported a few degrees above. The difference was due to the latter being made with the thermometer sheltered, while the street instrument on Main street, which represents the bottom of the gulch, give a more accurate reading of the sensible temperature. This completes the coldest continuous record of the year, as it is sixteen days since the mercury rose above thirty, and then for only one hour. Fortunately there is an ample stock of coal and wood in camp, and there was little suffering or distress due to the extreme cold. The chief discomfort was in freezing water service pipes in homes which kept the plumbers busy throughout the day, as it often happened that a house was thawed out and frozen up again in a few hours.—Reno Gazette.

COLONEL MCLURE HAS THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

Mrs. Boyle has received a cablegram from her brother, Lieut. Colonel Lowe McClure, since the armistice, saying that he is well and unharmed. In a letter written just before the closing of hostilities, he said that some time he hoped to tell them of some of his wonderful experiences. He commanded the battalion which was the first to cross the river meuse, and he writes that our soldier boys are wonderful, that at that time they accomplished a feat that Germans did not believe that human could do. After crossing, the lieutenant colonel and his battalion went to rest and delousing camps and fresher troops pushed the Germans on their way to Germany.

One piece of a bursting shell pierced his helmet; again it was pierced by a machine gun bullet and he had a third close call when he was wounded in the thigh. This wound was so slight that he did not go to a dressing station. Mr. McClure's many friends in this part of Nevada wish the wound might have been just enough—but no more—to have secured a wound chevron.

Among his experiences he states that from the first of September until his battalion crossed the Meuse they had not had baths and that for three weeks a small cup of water a day had sufficed him for his ablutions, and after that several days without any at all.—Carson Appeal.

RENO CHURCH SUFFERS HEAVY FIRE DAMAGE.

It is estimated that over $13,000 damage was done to the Congregational church on Virginia and Fifth streets by the fire which broke out there Sunday morning at 11:45 o'clock. The insurance carried amounts to $10,000 with the possibility of a larger amount when final adjustments have been made. The fire occurred just as Rev. Mr. Howe was commencing his sermon and caused a small panic among the congregation when the flames sprang up through the floor of the pulpit from the furnace pipes below.

Rev. Mr. Howe had just announced his text, "Arise and let us go hence," when the flames broke out and made his words very timely for the occasion. The congregation arose and went hence at these prophetic words. The flames broke out right beneath the minister's feet and he remarked that he had been feeling hot and had been smelling smoke for some time. Finally, when everyone had sensed something wrong the carpet was raised and the flames were discovered eating their way up from the basement through the pulpit floor.—Reno Gazette.

U. S. REFUSES TO ACT IN L. V. & T. MATTER

Relief from the Government to prevent the abandonment and scrapping of the Las Vegas and Tonopah railroad tracks and property, connecting Goldfield with Las Vegas, has been refused. For the last several months the state railroad commission, through Mr. Shaughnessy, first associate commissioner has been endeavoring to secure some relief from the federal railroad administration, sending numerous letters to John Barton Payne, general counsel for the administration, to take such steps as would permit the Salt Lake system to operate the road under a lease contract. A letter received this week by Commissioner Shaughnessy from Payne contains the government's final refusal to act in the matter.—Reno Gazette.
