One of the best things done by this session of the legislature is the repeal of the inheritance tax law. This will in all probability make Las Vegas the headquarters for large capital which would otherwise never look this way.

If there ever has been any doubt on the subject, the manner in which the high school students received the address of Dr. Chas. E. Barker last Monday should convince us that the heart of Young America is true and sound. Las Vegas has always been proud of its young people and now feels more than ever that that pride is justified.

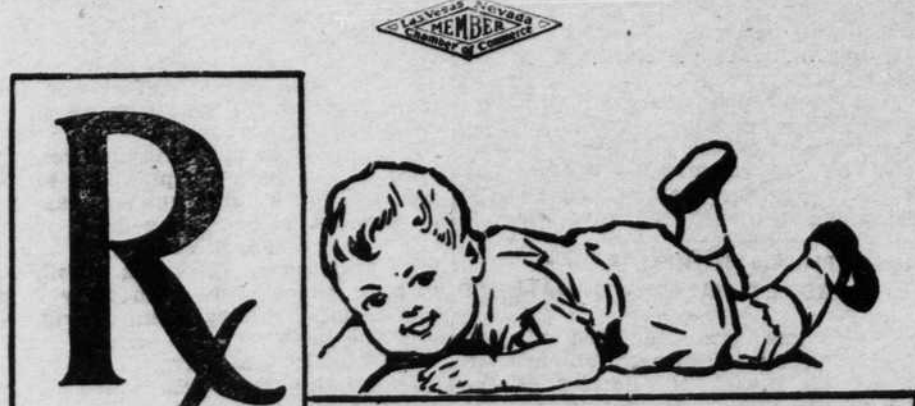

Congress will have passed the appropriation for direct air mail service between Salt Lake City and Los Angeles before its adjournment March 4, according to press dispatches. Las Vegas will, without doubt, be the stopping place for the mail planes, which will necessitate the building of a hangar and repair shop and keeping a crew here. This will add a substantial little payroll to the town.

President Coolidge is, for the moment, heartily disliked by the hotel men and business circles of Washington generally. The reason is that he put the ban on plans for expending $100,000 of the people's money on an elaborate inaugural parade. A great show would bring thousands of visitors to the capital, of course to the benefit of Washington business. However, there is practically unanimous approval of the President's stand throughout the country. It is very fitting that the President should apply his policy of economy to his own inaugural and the country has added respect for him because he has the nerve to do so.

Dr. Chas. E. Barker in his lecture here said one thing with which, on first thought, not all may agree. He made the statement that it is the duty of every man and woman to attend church at least once each week whether a member of a church or not. Of course, most of us attend church occasionally and feel that we are doing our duty. A little careful thought convinces us that Dr. Barker is absolutely right because civilization owes all that is held most dear to the church. It is true, as Dr. Barker said, that nobody would live in a town without churches because nobody could make a living there. So it becomes a plain duty for every man and woman to attend some church regularly and contribute to its support.

Las Vegas is now enjoying the novel experience of reduced insurance rates. The reduction would not have been granted had it not been for the excellent volunteer fire department which Las Vegas has at its service. It is no easy or pleasant thing for men to attend meetings and drills and be at all times ready to respond to alarms at the first blast of the siren. During all the years of Las Vegas the young fellows have braved danger, suffered heat and cold in all seasons, and ruined their clothes to save the property of others from destruction, and all without a cent of pay. Las Vegas has been singularly free from disastrous conflagrations, due almost entirely to the good work of the volunteer fire department. The people should appreciate the fine spirit of their fire fighters.

Baby Says—
"I can't always ask for what I want but I let you know when I get what I want."
What baby wants most of all is the loving care of Mother, especially when Mother is aided by the baby necessities that we can supply. Our entire line of baby goods is made up of the products of manufacturers who have long recognized that Purity Is Essential
We have always used the utmost care in handling goods in this department. Careful mothers can do nothing wiser than to come here for baby foods, nursing bottles, nipples, soaps, sponges, powders, and those internal and external remedies long associated with the care of the baby.

SMALL STORE ADVERTISING
Consistency is held to be the soul of advertising for the small retailer in a pamphlet on "Small Store Advertising" issued by the Domestic Distribution Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The department lays down the general rule that "every merchant must make himself known in order to conduct a profitable business." It then goes on to explain the methods best adapted to the use of the small store owner by which this may be accomplished.
By way of parable the department points to the despised onion. "The onion," it says, "is a plebeian vegetable; tear-compelling, self-assertive and slightly vindictive; a fermenter of domestic strife and a bane upon polite conversation. It is to be tolerated, perhaps, not sought. But turn the basic light of advertising upon the onion and what happens? It becomes an appetizing, health-giving and blood-enriching gift of Nature, more delicious than the ambrosia of Olympus and as salubrious as the breezes from a forest of pines."
With this is coupled advice:
"Although every repetition of an advertisement or a letter costs money, occasional hit-or-miss advertising is usually a loss, whereas steady advertising of the right kind is sure to be productive. The retailer whose business justifies advertising in a newspaper will do better to run a small advertisement every day than to run a large one once a week.
"This principle applies to all forms of publicity. If letters are sent out, it is best to send them regularly; if hand bills are broadcasted, it is best to broadcast them regularly; if window advertising is used, the displays should be constant and changed frequently. Never let the public forget you. Never give even your old established customers a chance to forget you, your store, your goods.—Bozeman Courier.

SO IT IS
"Tis ever thus: A man who writeth for a newspaper is of few days and lots of grief. He riseth in the morning and knoweth not what the day will bring forth. If he telleth the news he runneth a great risk of getting a tin ear put on him; if he telleth not the news the people say he is n g and there is no joy in it. The crafty cajoleth him into giving them a fifty-cent puff for a five-cent cigar, and fond mothers frown on him if he falleth to flatter the freckled face broods. And all his ways are of woe, and his days are full of sorrow.—Nevada Progressive.

REPORT ON EUROPEAN CURRENCY AND FINANCE
Senator Tasker L. Oddie, chairman of the senate commission of gold and silver inquiry, released Friday Serial No. 9, Volume 1, entitled European Currency and Finance, the report of an investigation on which has been under way for more than a year.
The report finds that currency disorders have not been the outstanding factor in the disturbed conditions during the past few years, and that while considerable improvement in currency and financial conditions has recently taken place, the situation is still far from satisfactory. The gold in the United States and its redistribution are discussed and also the question of what the effects of a return movement of the metal on the price structure, national and international, may be. The report recommends that a general currency conference be held at an early date as the most satisfactory method of dealing with the currency question, which is an international one.
The man who chooses money denies himself both leisure and education.

RULES GOVERNING BROWN MEMORIAL ANNUAL CONTEST

The "Robert McCutcheon Brown Memorial" short story contest is open to all high school students in the state.
Manuscripts must be written on one side of the paper only and typewritten if possible. Write only title of the story on the manuscript. Write title of the story and name of author on a separate sheet or slip of paper. Stories must be in the hands of your local committee by March 30, and be sent to the Chairman of Literature by April 15, that the prizes may be awarded on Memorial Day.
Length of stories to be between 2000 and 3000 words. Stories will be graded upon the following points:
1. Theme—The underlying exposition of some life principle and the author's success in treating it; 10 points.
2. Literary Style—To include the writer's powers of imagination and verbal expression; 10 points.
3. Rhetorical Qualities—Such as unity, coherence, force and proportion; 10 points.
4. Description—To include settings, description of persons in story, etc.; 15 points.
5. Plot—Subject of story, handling of incidents, development of the scenes, climaxes and such qualities as action, conflict, suspense, human interest, material, etc.; 25 points.
6. Characterization—To include:
(a) Vividness and power in portraying the dominant characters.
(b) Revelation of character through their words, actions and their influence on others, and what others say of them.
(c) The author's conception of his characters and his success in portraying them; 30 points.

APPOINTEE BOARD NOT FAVORED BY EDUCATORS
pose a one-year tenure of office for that time the incumbent has barely time to become acquainted with the people and needs of the school and has no time to carry through any constructive policy.
Section 11 says: "It shall be the duty of each deputy superintendent to visit any school in this county when so directed by the State superintendent or when requested, in writing, by five or more adult residents of the school district." This would change the State superintendent from the executive of our State school system to an office boy. If the deputy superintendent visited schools only on written request his time would be unequally divided, because some schools would send for him frequently and others not at all. Moreover, some of our rural districts do not have five adult residents. Perhaps the author of this bill does not think they are important enough to be visited.
In Section 13 a compensation of dollars for each day actually employed in the duties of the office is provided for. This might work if the principal of the high school acts in this capacity, but suppose the deputy superintendent is this mythological suitable person; if he is capable of teaching a country school he will do that in preference to accepting a position that has no guaranteed salary. Perhaps the author of this bill intends him to help pave Fremont street during his unoccupied days.
Of course this bill is introduced as an economy measure. We would do well to remember that in the governor's message to the legislature he stated that education is not a luxury but a necessity. And, after much deliberation and consultation with the officers of the Nevada State Educational Association, he did not recommend any change in the State Board of Education nor the present system of school supervision. We are more willing to trust to the judgment of the Governor of the State than to the secretary of the State Survey Commission.

through its grand jury in a piteous plea that this present session give them relief by passing some state liquor legislation. In my opinion, they are entitled to relief, and we should face this question like men and settle it by giving it to them.

CHARLES S. SPRAGUE,
Senator from Esmeralda,

LAS VEGAS STUDENTS WILL COMPETE IN STORY CONTEST
Six Las Vegas high school students of home economics are preparing to combine their knowledge of this subject and their literary ability in an effort to carry off a share of the $2500 in cash prizes offered in the Second National Meat Story Contest. The contest is now being put under way by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, which has headquarters in Chicago.
Miss Harriet Schone, home economics instructor at Las Vegas High, has requested the necessary number of entry blanks for these girls and it is possible that other local girls may enter before the closing date, which is announced as May 1.
To compete a student must write a story or theme of 1000 to 2000 words on the subject of meat and submit with it three meat recipes. The board has placed the national championship prize at $300 and has apportioned the remainder of the $2,500 into other attractive prizes, both national and state. The selection of winners will rest in the hands of a committee of prominent home economics specialists, according to the board. Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, served as chairman of the committee in the first contest held last spring.
The board announcement states that the contest is a feature of a national program of education and research on meat which has the endorsement of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, home economics instructors in universities, colleges, high schools, and others.
