Honoring Lindy and His Mother

Have you a Colonel Lindbergh orchid or a Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh tulip in your garden? Probably not, for they are new species and were exhibited at the Fiftieth International Flower Show recently held in New York under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club. The orchid is shown in the large picture above and the tulip is in the inset.

Plain yellow combined with plaid in yellow, white and black is an interesting combination for the sports' frock. Worth exhibits a costume called "Ascalin." The blouse is cut on a surplus line in the front with an inch band of plaid silk in yellow, white and black. A similar trim is at the hem of the skirt.

Lace dinner gowns are the drier cri. There is no doubt about the popularity of filmy material for evening wear, with lace leading the race. A recent model of laciness is of deep ochre over a satin slip with two flounces in back.

Wide satin belts or large bows are the decorative flair on these gowns. Oft-times, the skirt length trails to the floor, giving Madame the appearance of a floating angel. Voila.

"Regardez Moi" in another delectable frock made of black georgette and fashioned by Worth. It flaunts a short jacket of pet cut on simple lines with bell shaped sleeves and collared ermine.

The skirt is bordered with three sets of deep pleated flounces sewn in a semi-colored manner with a slight dip in the back.

This same design may be carried out in black satin with a sleeveless pullover of the black jet which fits the figure snugly, a la Spanish.
