

White Coats Urged for Traffic Officers

Due to loss of life and limb by traffic officers in cities all over the country during the past several months through inability of motorists to see the policemen on rainy nights, many Pacific Coast communities are now taking steps to equip traffic forces with white rubber raincoats to increase visibility during storms at night. Here Captain Charles Goff, with aid of a Silver Anniversary Buick, is demonstrating one of the new "safety" coats suggested for traffic officers in San Francisco.

Boxing, Acting Skill Help Jack Sidestep Questions As To Future

By JAY R. VESSELS
(Feature Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—His experience as a boxer and an actor helped Jack Dempsey get by in his first major brush with reporters after the death of his tutor and associate, the late Tex Rickard.

Surrounded by fifty men of the press, Dempsey crowded about five rounds of shadow boxing and at least one full act of the legitimate into a tense half hour.

He was sidestepping here and there, weaving by and away from the persistent newspapermen, all the while utilizing his training as a Thespien to retain the poise which he knew was expected of a man now holding such a dominant place in the sports spotlight.

The climax to this weird combination came as the conference breaking up. They were trying to have him say something beyond a business-like statement, regarding his plans for the future. They were emphasizing questions as to his ambitions, if any, to become a promoter—to take Tex' place.

"There'll never be another Tex," shot out a veteran boxing writer, trying one last move to break through Dempsey's impregnable guard.

"No," chorused Dempsey, ever eager to indorse the kind things spoken of his old crony. "It took a century to develop a Rickard and it will take another century to develop his successor." He had expertly parried off that thrust. Dramatically gripping Jack's arm, the veteran exclaimed: "You'll be the next one, Jack!"

The former champion, caught off guard, eased back, straightened up and, it might be said of anyone else but Dempsey—the Dempsey of that day—and "swelled up." His face brightened. "Well," he countered, "I might be of some help."

The old mauler was just as quick as any one to grasp the significance of the "break." A scowl swept his face. The old snarl, characteristic of the Dempsey of old just before a battle, crept back into his voice.

It was a moment jammed with suspense. The crowd around him began to drop back, some taking leave, others stepping to phones to call their papers.

A break came when a scribe beckoned Jack to a corner where he "buttonholed" him for the questions he had been wanting to ask in private.

Dempsey said in effect that he was concentrating his attention toward making comfortable Rickard's widow and would have nothing definite to say for three or four days.

In his prepared statement, he expressed an intention to return to Miami Beach to carry out the plans Rickard had for the Stribling-Sharkey fight there, February 27. Meanwhile, he said, there would be nothing to say as to whether he would fight again.

post until 1920. That year he was the Democratic nominee for Vice-president.

He has been active in many public enterprises, in which he gave such an example of devotion, efficiency and capability that he was literally "drafted" as a candidate for Governor. His career should be an inspiration to all small town youths, and to those who are in any physically handicapped.

On account of a water shortage the inhabitants of Chemnitz, Germany are forbidden to bathe except on Sundays. A small boy's paradise!

CHICAGO MAY GET 1933 WORLD'S FAIR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. (Special)—The proposition has been put up to Congress to have the Government back the Chicago World Fair Centennial Celebration of 1933. Here is a case where if you "ask dad" he can tell you that the greatest of world's fairs was held in Chicago in 1893, in commemoration of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America. Perhaps it was due to the fact that it was the first big world's fair. Afterward St. Louis had one, and then along came Omaha, Buffalo, Portland, San Francisco, San Diego and finally Philadelphia. Perhaps the Philadelphia show of 1926 was equal to any of the fairs that preceded it. But people have given up the idea of walking for days and days through long buildings to see sights that are to be found on display in the big industrial exhibits in all principal centers of population, or in department stores. The movies and other scientific inventions have familiarized everyone with the great wonders which one formerly traveled far to see, 25 or 50 years ago. Barnum, the first great American circus promoter, lived to see the circus waning in popularity. Chicago produced the greatest exposition, and expositions like circuses are no longer what they used to be. Chicago can't do it again, and it will be too bad if the great metropolis of the Midwest insists on trying it.

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

Hints on Cooking
The lower animals in natural state, live on food that is uncooked, and do so, unless they become domesticated. With highly organized man, it is different; for the most part, his nourishment is more perfect with cooked foods.

Cooking serves two principal purposes; tough fibers are made tender—and, heat sterilizes. In these days of many microbes, the latter is a very important item. Infected food is one of the most common causes of disease.

A very common fault is in the over-cooking of vegetables; the humble turnip and the plebeian cabbage are frequently blamed for causing digestive disturbances, when the fault is entirely in their over-cooked. Both of these useful vegetables contain vitamins that are destroyed if kept too long in the kettle; neither should be cooked over fifteen minutes. Old or tough specimens, that will not surrender in less than an hour's boiling, are unfit for use—just so much bulk, of no nutritive value.

Cabbage and turnips should be steamed. Enough water in your kettle to almost cover the vegetable and seasoning, should make enough steam to thoroughly tender them in the quarter of an hour devoted to that purpose.

Frying is a make-shift, a time saver. Fried foods are at the other extreme—they are cooked too fast; the vital principles are driven out by the fierce heat, the hard and indigestible parts being left. Meats should be cooked in a vessel nearly air-tight, and in their own juices. A "Dutch oven" is admirable for the purpose.

BIG MEN FROM SMALL TOWNS

Franklin Delano Roosevelt
The new Governor of New York—the Empire State—is a small town product. Franklin D. Roosevelt is known from one end of the country to the other as a distinguished lawyer and an exceptionally frank, honest politician. Handicapped by physical disabilities arising from an illness of infantile paralysis, he has nevertheless achieved the high position he now holds.

So much in demand was he because of his sterling qualities, that no excuse was taken when he was called upon to run for Governor. Again and again Roosevelt has been brought to the fore while seeking retirement and rest, and has yielded to the wishes of his compatriots because of an un-fish desire to be of service.

Born at Hyde Park, N. J., in 1882, he was admitted to the bar in 1907. He was a member of the New York Senate from 1910 to 1913, when he became assistant Secretary of the Navy, holding this
