WITHDRAWALS IN COPPER REACH HIGHEST PEAK

SALT LAKE CITY, April 11, (UP)—Heavy domestic withdrawals of copper during the latter part of last year which brought withdrawals to their highest point since 1918, was the outstanding feature of the copper industry during 1928, according to information received here from the United States bureau of mines of the department of commerce.
The price of copper throughout the year increased on a monthly average of 13.95 a pound in January to 15.8 a pound in November, and approximately the same amount in December. Demand, followed by the highest price that has been paid since April 1925, brought forth a response from the mines in the form of greatly increased production.
Smaller production from domestic ores increased about 10 per cent during 1928 and this increase is largely due to the production of 178,000,000 pounds in December, which is 37,000,000 pounds greater than the average for the 11 preceding months. As it requires two or three months for the copper content of ores to reach the refined market, the increased production at the end of the year has not caused a similar retentive increase.
Increased production had not been made soon enough to prevent the withdrawal of stored stocks of refined copper to meet demand. These stocks were nearly depleted at the end of the year, only an estimated 85,000,000 pounds remaining on hand December 31, as compared with 172,000,000 pounds January 1, 1928. Refined stocks also were decreased in 1928.

GOOD MATERIALS

No edifice is sounder than the materials that comprise it. In the long run it is cheaper to employ high quality building materials, thus averting the danger of perennial repairs.

Young Air Chief Navie's Only Ace When Nineteen

By WILLIAM J. BERCHTOLD (Associated Press Aviation Editor)
WASHINGTON, April 9, (UP)—With the respect and confidence that aviators place in fellow aviators, David S. Ingalls of Cleveland, Ohio, was selected to take a place in President Hoover's junior cabinet as assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics.
Ingalls' brilliant war record, which brought him the title of the "navy's only ace" and his active participation in aeronautical developments since the war, place him in a highly advantageous position to carry out the navy's aviation program.
President Hoover sought a man thoroughly familiar with aeronautical problems, preferably a flyer, one who had administrative ability and could be relied upon to understand the viewpoint of pilots, legislators and naval officers.
In the youthful Otis the President chose an ambitious executive who twice was elected to the Ohio state legislature, where he demonstrated ability to combine his knowledge of law and aviation by framing an air code for Ohio. In the Buckeye state he won the title of the "flying legislator" through frequent trips in his own plane from Cleveland to Columbus.
Ingalls was flying with the navy's air forces when 18 years old, and became an ace with four enemy planes and two balloons to his credit at 19. Soon after joining the naval reserve force as an ensign in 1917, he was ordered abroad and was attached to the British air force.
Flying a Spanish Camel August 11, 1918, young Ingalls caught sight of the first enemy plane that was to fall prey to his fire. He and a Royal air force plane accompanying him dived toward the ship. The Albatross turned toward the enemy. Both pursued it, firing at close range. Diving, turning, turning, the enemy plane sought to escape the raking fire from above. Another burst of shells spit out from Ingalls' gun and the German plane went into a slow spin. Young Ingalls had scored his first victory.
Ingalls was awarded the British flying cross, the United States navy's distinguished flying cross and the distinguished service

New Machine Chews Old Electric Bulbs

NEW YORK, April 11, (UP)—The Fumblers, a new device to salvage brass from worn out light bulbs, is announced by the New York Edison company.
The name describes the nature of the machine, the only parts considered worth saving. In shape it is a cylinder, of 500 bulb capacity, with two sets of steel teeth set on bars inside. While the drum revolves, they chew to bits glass and filament, which fall out of holes in the bottom, leaving the shells shiny and clean. The company recycles about 300,000 shells yearly. Until the number was devised, the work was done by hand.

SKULL FINDING BRINGS MYSTERY

MONTELEONE, Nev., April 11, (UP)—The mystery surrounding the finding of a headless skeleton twelve miles west of here three years ago, was deepened by the discovery of a human skull by a sheepherder in the same vicinity recently.
It is recalled that when the original discovery was made there were no identification marks or papers found and the remains were interred at the spot where found. The skull, the lower jaw of which is missing, is believed by authorities to belong to the headless skeleton, although there is nothing available to substantiate this belief. The condition of the skull indicated it had been bleached through many suns. The first molar on the right side bore a gold crown.
Local officers aided by Elko authorities, have been unable to uncover anything that would serve to either identify the skull or the skeleton.

OVERTON NEWS

The senior class of the Moapa Valley High School finally won the annual interschool track meet and the right to permanent ownership of the silver cup. This cup is given to the class that wins the track meet three times in succession and the seniors this year have won it twice before.
The seniors were very hard pushed by the juniors all the way through, and at the first things looked very black for the seniors. The seniors were no match at all in the sprints and longer races.
The juniors took five of the seven races with first place with hardly an effort and it was not until the field events were started on that the seniors had a chance. The high point men were O. Perkins, B. Lyman and O. Tobler, who made 16, 15 and 14 points, respectively.
The score by classes was: Seniors 63; juniors 48; sophomores 0; freshmen 1; 7th and 8th 8.
The events were:
50 yd. dash—B. Lyman, first; L. Mills, second; O. Perkins, third.

The track meet was started a week ago Monday but because of absence of participants it was not finished until last Monday. Because of adverse weather conditions the time was very slow in some events and also distance was small.
Mrs. Lois E. Jones spent last week in Salt Lake City, attending the annual L.D.S. conference in that city.
Mr. U. V. Perkins returned this week from a six months mission in the Central States Mission.
The big event of the season will take place next Friday in the gymnasium. The annual Junior Foremade, which everyone looks forward to, will this year dwarf any previous one in the valley, and this is saying a lot. Snappy music refreshments, sleek floor and a cool Hawaiian decorated hall are the main features this year. This will be next Friday, April 12.
