

So She Took The Prize

Patricia Foley is a brunette, a Gamma Phi member, and a coed at the University of Utah. Also she's the prettiest coed in the institution, a jury of movie stars and producers and theatrical men has decided, in a contest conducted by the university's student newspaper.

KENTUCKY DERBY'S 54 YEARS TELL TALE OF MANY UPSETS

A typical derby day at Churchill Downs, Louisville, showing the crowd from the first turn.

By F. P. HANKERSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 25, (AP)—
Fifty-four years ago this May a little red horse known as Aristides sped valiantly around a race track in this city while some 10,000 persons roared their hopes and delight through the sunny air.

From that date, May 17, 1875, starts the glowing tale of the Kentucky derby, a tale to be written in the ledger of sport for the fifty-fifth time at Churchill Downs here May 18. And what a tale it is! Pages of heart throbs and heart breaks, of joys and sorrows, of dazzling speed and sport un-equaled.

In the first derby, and in many that have followed, the favorite has not always won. It seems that Aristides was not even supposed to win.

As is fitting in the first running of an historic event, there is a tale of pluck and courage handed down from that first derby of 1875. It appears Aristides was to be but a pawn to the ambitions of his stablemate, Chesapeake. Aristides was to set such a dizzy pace that all opponents would be worn down, whereupon Chesapeake was to come dashing to the front and win the race.

Like the gallant racer that he was, Aristides obeyed instructions and whirled off the mile at a high gait. It was now that Chesapeake was to come up and take the lead, but no Chesapeake appeared.

A story has it that Price McGrath, owner of both colts, was standing at the stretch. Grasping the situation, he waved to Jockey Lewis to urge Aristides on. The time for that memorable mile and a half was 2:37 1/2, a great race for such a track, and a great victory for Aristides.

In the second running Vagrant, an outsider, dashed in ahead with the fame and favored Parole out of the money. It was Baden Baden, a field horse, which pressed through in the third running to win, and thus it has been often through the years. The derby has been a derby of upsets.

For 26 years the derby distance was a mile and a half. When shorter distances gained favor, the course was shortened to a mile and a quarter in 1896. Spokane another outsider, established the fastest time for the mile and a half derby course, 2:34 1/2, in 1889, setting a track record that stood as long as the distance was in vogue.

To Old Rosebud, revered 1914 winner, goes the honor of fastest time for the present distance, 2:03 2-5—a record that has withstood attacks of such immortals as Sir Barton, Behave Yourself, Morvich, Zev, Black Gold, Flying Ebony, Omar Khayyam and a number of others.

There are those, however, who argue that Old Rosebud won with only 114 pounds and Spokane with 118, while the present weights are 126 pounds for colts and 121 for fillies.

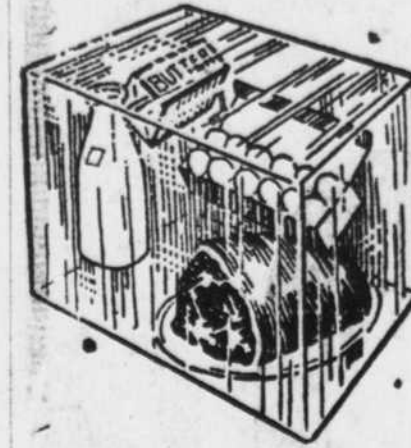

The first race at historic old Churchill Downs was not the Kentucky derby. It was a dash of a mile and a quarter won by William Cottrill's Bonaventure, ridden by a jockey named Billy Lakeland. The inaugural day was May 17, 1875, and the Kentucky derby was the second race on the program.

Now the Kentucky derby is more than a horse race. Kentuckians consider it a tribute to the country, to Kentucky and to the horse.

VIOLA BURNS IS HOPEFUL

Mrs. Viola Burns, who is the only woman candidate for the office of City Clerk at the coming election, is hopeful that she will be the successful one at the election May 7.

Mrs. Burns, who is the daughter of Assemblyman Tom D. Fanatia, old time resident of this city, has had a clerical and business experience during the years she has lived in Vegas, which she is confident fits her for the position she seeks. She has occupied the responsible position of cashier, bookkeeper and clerk at the J. C. Penney Store; and formerly was cashier and bookkeeper at the Overland Cafe and cashier and bookkeeper at the Western Service garage.

Mrs. Burns, as well as many others, believes that the work in the City Clerk's office is work for which a woman is naturally well fitted.
More important still, in her mind, is the fact that she has a small daughter to support and she "needs the job."
