Project To Beautify Capital Under Way

With $75,000,000 set aside as a starting fund, building certain sections of the national capital to make it conform to original plans of magnificence is under way. The work comes under the jurisdiction of Secretary Mellon (inset). The great plaza (above) and the triangle development (below) are two of the most beautiful units in the vast project, as shown by models.

By HERBERT C. PLUMMER (Associated Press Feature Writer) WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—Restoration of the capital city of the United States to the magnificent plan of its conception is under way.

A little over a century and a quarter ago, Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, French army engineer, aided by Washington and Jefferson, planned the capital city of an infant empire in a swamp along the Potomac.

But for various reasons some of the original plans have gone awry. Deadly effects are in evidence on Pennsylvania avenue, in the Mall, on Potomac parkway and other sections of the city, entirely out of accord with L'Enfant's idea of a national city.

Under President Hoover's approval, and working with an authorization of $75,000,000 by congress, the task of transforming the city according to the original plan and subsequent extensions now is under way.

Much more money is needed—probably a total of $200,000,000—but the present authorization will finance the purchase of nearly all the land and keep the building program in progress until 1933.

The principal construction work will consist of the triangle development, as it is called. This proposal, now under way, will remove every privately owned building in the triangle formed by the south side of Pennsylvania avenue, Fifteenth street, and B street along the Mall.

In this triangle, a mile long, eventually will be grouped all the executive departments except state, war, the treasury agriculture and the interior, which are now provided for.

Already in this triangle there is a huge hole where the new commerce building is to rise. Further down, the interior revenue building also is under construction. Authorization also has been obtained for construction of the archives building. In this same area will be erected buildings for the departments of labor and justice.

Across the Mall, work is in progress on the new structure for the department of agriculture. In the Mall, where are now located the Smithsonian institution, the Freer gallery and the National museum, it is contemplated to erect two more buildings, a national art gallery and a Washington memorial.

Formal gardens will be created, however on the mound where the huge shaft to Washington stands. Department plans call also for improvements on capitol hill to include demolition of temporary structures in Union station plaza. A building for the United States supreme court is also planned on capitol hill. The money has been appropriated for a site corresponding to that of the Congressional library across the street from it, and facing the east portico of the capitol.

Probably the last part of the program will be the building of the parkway connecting the Lincoln memorial with Rock Creek park.

FARM BILL FIGHT CAUSES PARTY FRICTION

WASHINGTON, May 15. (U-P)—The farm relief bill passed by the senate yesterday may be sent back by the house without further consideration on the ground that the senate's debenture amendment infringes the exclusive privilege of the house to initiate revenue legislation, it was learned after a conference of leaders today.

BY PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, May 15 (UP)—The farm relief question became a real issue between the two houses of congress today.

With dire threats and a few hot words the senate sent its bill across the capitol to the house chamber. It carries numerous amendments including the debenture or tariff bounty clause against which President Hoover has lodged strong objections.

House leaders were preparing a cold reception for the debenture provision despite the threats of senate retaliation if it is not granted courteous legislative treatment. They do not intend to let the disputed debenture provision come to a vote in the house if they can prevent it. They are talking privately of refusing to accept the entire bill on the ground that the debenture clause usurps the house prerogative of instituting revenue legislation.

Before passing the bill last yesterday afternoon by a vote of 54 to 33, the senate heard the plans of house leaders. Threats were made openly by some senators that if the house turned a cold shoulder to the proposition they would favor the breaking of all legislative ties between the two houses, thus stalling all legislation. Such a thing has never happened in the history of congress. Ordinarily the house would appoint a committee to meet with a committee from the senate so differences between the two houses might be thrashed out amicably. Eventually this course will have to be taken if any farm relief legislation

'GO TO HELL' DAWES TELLS 'EM

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—"You can go plumb to Hell; that's my business," said the Ambassador, pulling hard on his underling pipe.

That was the answer Charles G. Dawes, newly appointed ambassador to England, gave newspapermen in reply to inquiry as to whether he is taking along a supply of silk knickerbockers customarily worn by diplomats at King George's functions.

Before answering, Dawes had asked whether a diplomatic answer to the question deserved as an order. Dawes was initiated into foreign service amid an air of cheerfulness.

He will sail June seventh.

It is to be enacted at President Hoover's special session of congress. On the final senate floor call, the administration turned against the bill it had sponsored because the coalition of the farm bloc and the democrats had succeeded in putting over the deamortization project. Of the votes cast against the bill, 31 came from such administration stalwarts as floor leaders James E. Watson and republican whip Simon Pess who called those voting for the debenture plan "pseudo-republicans."

In favor of that bill, debenture and all, were 21 republicans including 13 who previously had voted for the debenture plan, and 33 democrats. These republicans in those who had resisted Pess' application of "pseudo" to them, Borah, of Idaho, the leading administration campaigner last fall, Brockhart, of Iowa, Hiram Johnson, of California, and even McNary, of Oregon, Capper of Kansas, and Cousins of Michigan, the latter three having previously voted against the debenture plan.

CIVIL LEGION PLANS MEETING

A new force for good in our country is now in the making. Members of the war time draft boards, four minute men, liberty loan campaigners, war preparedness board and other who in authorized civil capacities, served the national cause during the World War have organized the Civil Legion.

Forty surviving war governors, Judge Frank Comerford of Chicago, Hon. Joseph T. Cushman of New York and Col. Charles R. Wilson of Huntington, West Virginia, past national presidents, comprise the national executive committee.

The prime purpose of the Civil Legion is to create an organization for future national service and in so doing build a monument, more enduring than granite, as a testimonial to those who served in civilian capacities during the World War and because of age limit, essential industry or occupation or other disqualifying factors were denied the privilege of wearing the uniform.

The Civil Legion is the answer

RADIO EXPERT ADDED TO STAFF OF STORE

O. Katz, of the Peoples' Store returned from the east early this week with a carload of furniture for the store.

Frank R. Bates formerly music dealer in Cincinnati, Ohio, has been added to the staff of the Peoples' Furniture store in charge of the music department, according to Katz. Bates is an expert on radios, servicing, building and repairing, and is now at work on a set which, if perfected, will guarantee reception throughout the day, said Katz.

to the boy who asks his father, "Say, Dad, what did you do during the war? The other kids ask me this question."

of the Civil Legion will meet in Washington, D. C., June 15th to complete arrangements for the holding of the fourth national convention to be held in the national capitol November 8th and 9th.

President Hoover and Vice-President Curtis are members of the organization.

Members of the national committee from the state of Nevada are: Dr. Anthony Huffaker of Carson City and Harley A. Harmon of Las Vegas.
