Hoover's Niece, Married, Holds Job As Typist, Says She's 'Poor Relation'

By DAN CAMPBELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO.—(UP)—Some day she hopes to have the President of the United States pointed out as her uncle and a well-known dean at Stanford University likewise recognized as her father.

For the present, Mrs. Hulda Hoover McLain, is content to work in a department store and live on Russian Hill and is proud to be known as Herbert Hoover's niece and Dean Theodore Hoover's daughter.

Senator Heflin's Son Denies Dope Caused Accident

Youth States He Had Been Drinking, Not Using Narcotics, Before Running Into Laundry Truck.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—James Thomas Heflin, Jr., son of Senator Thomas Heflin, democrat, Alabama, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of narcotics when arraigned before Judge Isaac Hitt in police court here yesterday.

Young Heflin demanded a jury trial and his bail of $1000 was continued by Judge Hitt. He was arrested last night after an automobile he was driving struck the rear end of a laundry truck.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP)—James Thomas Heflin, Jr., son of the democratic senator from Alabama, denied to the United Press that he had used narcotics as charged by Washington police.

Heflin, waiting in his bondsmen's office next door to police court to be called to face the charge said:

"I drank about a pint of grain alcohol mixed with two parts of ginger ale at a party with some boys and girls in an apartment yesterday and that's all that was wrong with me when I ran into a truck at Seventh and Pennsylvania avenue.

"I was driving across Seventh and Pennsylvania avenue when the cop flashed a stop sign against me," young Heflin said. "The brakes didn't hold and the car slid on. The driver of a laundry truck which I hit saw me put on the brakes through his mirror and came back and said if I was willing to let everything slide he'd keep on going."

"I was all set to drive away when the policeman came up, took a smell of my breath and said 'come with me.'"

"The cop asked me if I had been drinking and I told him no, but that I had taken a veronal tablet as I had not been feeling well. You see I used the same excuse when I had been drinking at the University of Alabama and avoided getting suspended from school as a veronal tablet affects you like alcohol.

"When they took me to the hospital they said I'd been using all kinds of dope, morphine, cocaine and whatnot. Finally my doctor came in and they let me go home."

Young Heflin said he didn't know what his father would say, but he "feared the worst."

"The senator is in Toledo, Ohio, making a speech, thank goodness," he said. "You know I promised him to stop drinking when I returned from Panama and I really had been on the wagon from April 13 to June 14. When I 'faw down and go boom with a bang!'"

Young Heflin denied he used narcotics in any form.

Heflin, commenting on the arrest of his son in Washington, said:

"I do not doubt that my son had been drinking, although I am saddened to learn of it," the Alabama solon said. "But I do not believe this narcotic charge."

"If there is anything to the claim that he was under the influence of drugs, however, I see in it the hands of my enemies—the Catholics. They will do anything to get me, even to ruining my son," he said.

Texas Mentor Wins 17th Diamond Title

AUSTIN.—(UP)—A record perhaps unrivaled in any school has been set by W. J. "Uncle Billy" Disch, University of Texas baseball mentor, who has captured 17 conference championships in 22 years of coaching.

"Longhorns win baseball title again" has become a stock headline in southwestern papers. By winning the Southwestern conference during this spring, Disch won his sixth consecutive title. In only two seasons since he was obtained by Texas has his team failed to top the circuit.

This year the Longhorns won 16 and dropped four conference contests. They defeated Northwestern University in a pair of pre-season titles.

Hard work is what makes a championship college baseball team—nothing else," he said.

Two of this year's squad, Captain Meredith Hopkins, second baseman, and Tom Hughes, outfielder, probably will receive major league tryouts following their graduation in June.

Anyhow the Graf Zeppelin landed right side up, which is something for a balloon to be able to do, anyway.

Personal Items

Guy Newhard of the Eastman Kodak company, stationed in Hollywood, is in Las Vegas taking pictures of points of interest and for the purpose of "shooting" various festivities in connection with the arrival of the government officials who are concerned with the building of Boulder Dam.

F. E. Youngquist, of the real estate firm Kemp, Youngquist and Cox, returned Thursday night to Los Angeles with E. B. Marley, Hollywood multimillionaire, who spent a few days in this city looking over the prospects for investment in Las Vegas. Marley has extensive mortgage and loan interests.

Mr. Carl Ray, president of the Boulder Lumber company and owner and builder of the new Professional building, left for Los Angeles yesterday on business in connection with the building. He expects to be back in Las Vegas Tuesday.

Suit Is Aftermath in Northcott Case

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(UP)—Mrs. Christine Collins, mother of Walter Collins, alleged to have been one of the victims slain on Gordon Stewart Northcott's Wineville murder farm, today filed suit for $505,300 damages for false arrest against Police Chief James Davis and Detective Lt. J. J. Jones.

Mrs. Collins was placed in the psychopathic ward last year after she refused to acknowledge an impostor who had been identified as her son. She claimed that the humiliation and the experience damaged her in the amount asked in the action.

Hearing of the case has been set for July 9 in superior court here.

30,000 Respond to Legion Test Call

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—(UP)—American Legion officials yesterday declared themselves satisfied with the "service test." At 7:30 p. m. Wednesday night a "service" call was broadcast throughout the state. Within 30 minutes 10,000 legionnaires had reported to their various posts.

At 11 p. m. State Adjutant J. K. Fisk had received reports from all parts of the state advising that 30,000 men and several thousand boy scouts and women's auxiliaries had responded to the call.

The "service test," or mobilization, was to demonstrate the number of persons the legion could muster in event of a major emergency.

LONDON.—(UP)—The American influence: Formerly even in the hottest weather Englishmen insisted on drinking their tea hot. But the U. S. idea has gained ground so that the larger tea rooms and hotels are featuring iced tea on summer menus.

Painleve Tells Vivid Story of Wright's Tests

French War Minister Recalls Airman's Visit of 21 Years Ago; Inventor Met With Ridicule in Pioneering Days.

By RALPH HEINZEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS.—(UP)—Twenty-one years ago Wilbur Wright landed in France, bringing his flying machine with which he continued his experiments on the Leon Bollee farm near Le Mans during the following year.

M. Paul Painleve, present Minister of War, but in 1908 one of the outstanding mathematicians and professors of the faculty of Sciences in Paris, predicted on that day that the young American was bringing with him in his crates a new form of locomotion which within half a century would revolutionize transport.

M. Painleve has seen his prediction borne out before even a quarter of a century has elapsed. But in those days his statements were picked up by the Paris press and subjected to ridicule. Painleve became Wright's first passenger and was in the plane when it set the world's first official records for speed, altitude, distance and duration.

"Those were the kindergarten days of flying, and although France, Voisin and Bleriot were tinkering around with flying machines, we did not put much stock in the reports we heard from America of the real flights of two brothers from Dayton on the sands of Kitty Hawk," M. Painleve told the United Press today.

France "Air-minded" The Wrights were encouraged to come to France to carry on their experiments because France in those days was more air-minded than the rest of the world. He had personally grown very interested in the mathematics of flying, although I had never undertaken to apply that science to flight.

"It took several months for Wright to assemble his plane and build his catapult, for in those days he had not perfected the take-off. I was one of three persons present when he made his first flight in France in December, 1908. So little attention was paid, however, that not a newspaper photographer ever found his way to the Bollee farm for many weeks.

"On December 1, 1908, Wright flew during one hour and 31 minutes and covered 35 miles. It was on December 24 that he made his first flight, two and a half hours, 70 miles and an altitude of 350 feet.

"Enthusiastic by that time, I asked to be his first passenger and on a cold day early in 1909 I flew with him for 70 minutes. I will never forget that experience, although I flew with him often enough after that day.

"The plane was a biplane with two propellers, and he was the first pioneer to dare to suppress the automatic stabilizer. He flew his plane by touch, using both hands, his feet, knees and even cut off ignition by leaning forward to exert pressure on a cord which was suspended in front of us.

"Amazed by Skill" "During the 70 minutes of that first flight I was amazed by Wright's skill. With his left hand he maneuvered a lever which controlled the front rudder. He could never rest a minute, and constantly inclined one way or another the little planes of the front rudder.

"With his right hand, he held a lever which controlled both the rear rudder and the wings. This hand was immobile when the plane flew in a straight line, but when he curved or flew through gusty wind both hands were in motion and in constant sense. You have no idea how difficult that is until you try to write with one hand while beating time with the other.

"But Wright was a marvelous flier, and never appeared strained or worried. Only once during that flight did he get into trouble and that was when the wind blew us off our course over another field. He made a quick turn and brought it back just like a rider turns back a horse which gets off its course.

"I judged from the applause which came up from the people below that he had done something masterful, but was unable to judge for myself, because it was done so easily. Had my eyes been closed I would have sensed nothing because the stability of the plane remained perfect.

Worried About Landing "I must admit that I was frankly worried about the landing. I had heard it repeated for years that landing would inevitably be fatal to any aeroplane. It was argued that either a plane would keep its speed in landing, and smash up, or it would lose its speed and fall vertically into another smash. Either way it was a fall, vertical or horizontal.

"But Wright brought his plane down easily and smoothly. First he pointed down at a long sloping angle and then when just above the ground lifted up the front of the plane stopped within ten feet after the runners touched the grass. It was exactly the same movement as a bird stopping flight.

"For getting off, it was not so easy. Wright studied out a catapult and used it for my flight, but he preferred to work out a way of starting the plane by hitching it to an automobile or putting it directly on a light automobile which would rise into the air with him. On this feature, his French rivals developed the idea of landing wheels before he did, but Wright was a great pioneer.

I AM GOLD
By F. M. DORSEY

I am gold,
I am yellow and a coward.
And yet—
I am all powerful—
When the world was in
The making
When the great iron
Was at its height
When molten rock and
Metal and gaseous vapors
Were fighting for supremacy,
I, being yellow and a coward,
Dodged hither and thither;
Ever seeking a hiding place.
Now finding it in an atom
Of molten metal:
Into the utmost fastnesses
Of the mountains they have Pursued me.
I am yellow and a coward;
I care not with whom I associate.
Nor where I hide—
I am where you find me.
I am gold.

Fire Damages Car Wrecking Yard $1000

A thousand dollars damage was done Thursday noon by a fire which destroyed a small cabin in the wrecking yard of Joe Hayme on North Main, also several used cars.

The cabin, which was occupied by one of the employees of the wrecking yard, was completely burned down, but prompt work on the part of the fire department prevented the flames from spreading to the other automobiles in the yard and to the houses adjacent.

Bottle, Note of Flyer 'Sinking' Mere Hoax

POMONA, Calif., June 21.—(UP)—The bottle-note found at Seal Beach yesterday purporting to have been from a trans-ocean flyer, was placed in the water by T. J. Weaver, whose name was contained in the message. Weaver admitted here.

He said that he had thrown the bottle and its message in the water "just to have some fun." The message was signed "E G Weaver" and reported that his "Honolulu bound plane" was sinking fast. The message asked that T. J. Weaver be notified.

SANTA ANA, Calif., June 20.—(UP)—A note assertedly written by a flyer engaged in the non-stop flight to Honolulu was found in a whiskey bottle at Seal Beach by J. P. Robinson today. Authorities were inclined to regard the affair as a hoax.

The message read: "Sinking fast. Notify my brother, T. J. Weaver, 747 Monterey street, Pomona, Cal."

Judge Errs In His 'Decision; Finds 'Loving Couple' Are Seeking Divorce

CARTHAGE, Mo., (UP)—A young couple, arm in arm, entered the county court room here while the three judges were discussing crime waves and divorce evils.

The county clerk entering the room at the same time, and on seeing the couple directed the judges' attention to them.

"There," said one jurist in an undertone to his two conferees, "is a mighty nice looking pair. See how loving they are. But I hope they will continue that way after they are married."

The clerk broke three matches and held them before the bar, the judge drawing the shortest one to read the marriage ritual.

The two young people were beckoned forward and asked if a license had been obtained.

"We don't want a license, your honor," the male members of the duet responded. "We want a divorce. We're already married."

The two bench members gasped while the third hurriedly recovered his equilibrium. The clerk was not heard from.

"Yes, your honor," the veteran groom continued, while his wife smiled serenely on, "we've been living together all the time.

"We like each other an awful lot, but think we are just unsuited to one another. We've talked the matter over thoroughly and have agreed a friendly divorce is the best thing for both of us. And we want you to divorce us in order to escape a lot of newspaper notoriety."

The judge who had drawn the shortest match referred them to an attorney.

You don't need to gamble with tires

Even if you don't feel that you need the extra mileage which you would get from a Kelly-Springfield tire, and want to get something at a little lower price, it isn't necessary to gamble with "bargain" tires of more or less doubtful origin. For the price you want to pay you can buy Kelly-built Buckeye tires and get the same kind of dependable mileage in proportion to what you spend.

Buckeye tries are built in the Kelly plant and guaranteed by Kelly. At their price they represent an unsurpassed value.
