ELKS ATTENDING L. A. CONVENTION PROMISED TREAT OF THEIR LIVES

Elks Will Be Shown All the Sights; Royal Entertainment Scheduled, According to Radio Broadcast for Those Outside California; Electrical Pageant Special Feature.

The Elks out in Los Angeles are doing big things these days in the same way Californians always do things. If you who are Elks listening in to what I have to say don't decide to "take in" the Sixty-fifth National Convention after I have finished speaking, you'll be sorry when the rest of the boys come home and tell you what a god time they had.

Most things can be imitated but the show they are going to put on for your entertainment out there cannot be duplicated anywhere in the world. Now that may seem far fetched but it is true.

Nature has done a pretty good job out there to make folks happy and comfy and to please the eye. Now the Convention Committee promises a lot of things it would take too long to enumerate and they will give you all they promise, depend upon that.

Judging from the receipt of applications for hotel accommodations there will be 75,000 Elks during the week beginning July 7th in Los Angeles. There is plenty of room, so don't worry about being crowded, but place your order for reservation without delay. That efficient committee in charge of your entertainment out there in Los Angeles asked me to emphasize the point that they are going to take you places and have you see things.

Will See Many Sights
Get rested up good, while you have the chance, for the countless places and things you are to see.

Here are some samples, trips to the foothills and through the orange groves where luscious golden fruit bends the boughs of even sturdy trees; lemon groves, whole forests of walnut trees, farms where they raise lions, butterflies, alligators, chinchillas. To the mountains, where one stands a mile above sea level a short time after leaving the seashore. Trips to Old Mexico, San Diego, where the great Army and Navy bases are located, to warships, to beach resorts where free entertainment will be dispensed to all Elks.

That is only a few, but here is what you will come home and talk about for many a long day. There is a coliseum in Los Angeles which was built for the Olympic games to be held there in 1932. It holds 100,000 persons, seated comfortably.

Great Pageant Planned
In that colossal stadium will be the greatest parade of the Grand Lodge in the history of the order. That alone will be something to write home about, but the most fascinating and gorgeous spectacle ever produced by men in any time will be the Electrical Pageant to be presented by the leaders in the motion picture industry of California. Don't miss that.

That one event cost $1,000,000 but aside from the cost in money, the patient labor of many months, careful planning and inimitable skill went into its making. There are three men engaged in the motion picture industry out there who deserve much credit for their splendid achievement in producing this marvelous feature. They are Jack L. Warner of Warner Brothers, who conceived the plan, Frank N. Murphy, chief electrical engineer at Warner Brothers who supervised the technical phases of the job and George W. Riley who executed the plans as developed by Mr. Warner.

Better plan to go out there to that Convention. You may have given yourself and family a treat before when it was practicable, but this trip to the Convention will be a red letter event in your life.

Uncrowned Ball Champion Team of City to Play

The Eagles' baseball team, uncrowned champions of this city for the season, will meet the Pacific Fruit Express club of Los Angeles at 10:30 a.m. July 4, the first day of the Elks' Convention, and again at 1:30 p.m. on July 5, the second day of the meet. It has been planned.

The games will be held at the U. S. ball park, across the tracks from the center of town.

The Eagles have romped over every local team that has been set up against them this year, and have traveled abroad in search of new fields to conquer, have conquered them and come home to do some more conquering.

They are still in the conquering mood, according to Captain Murray Golden, and it will take some outfit to trim them after all the practice they have had this season.

Some of the boys who have done themselves proud on the Eagles' team this year, and who are likely to take part in these two games are: Williams, catcher; Jackson, pitcher; Smith, left field; Vega, first base; Davis, right field; Vann, second base and formerly manager; Singleton, center field; Ronnow, third base; Butcher, shortstop; Golden, catcher, and captain; Hall, pitcher; Jacobson, left field; and Bohn, shortstop.

The Elks are getting a double celebration this Fourth of July. The patriotic nature of the organization makes it doubly fitting that the big conventions should be held on the Nation's Birthday.

EXALTED RULER GIVES WELCOME TO BROTHERS AT STATE CONVENTION

Judge William E. Orr Greets Visitors to the "Gateway City."—Visitors Have Opportunity to Learn What Las Vegas Really Is and of Its Future.

To brother Elks from all over the state and nation a most cordial welcome is extended by Judge William E. Orr, exalted ruler of the Las Vegas Elks, in behalf of Lodge Number 1468, to Las Vegas, Nevada, the city which is destined to be the Gateway to Boulder Dam, and which is entering upon an unprecedented prosperity and growth because of that fact.

To Elks from elsewhere in the State of Nevada, this lodge gives greetings, bidding them enter Las Vegas not only to convene and further thereby that great unity of Nevada Elksdom, but also to learn better to understand this community upon which the eyes of the nation are trained, which is drawing the attention of the whole world to Nevada, and which, it has been predicted, is destined soon to become the largest city in the state.

To Elks from states afar, this lodge also extends the hand of welcome, that they may make their short stop here pleasant and most worth while, that they may carry away with them a definite idea of what Las Vegas is and that they may be qualified to tell their friends and associates upon their return to their native states the truth about this city and its possibilities for the future.

Of double significance is the visit of Elks from other parts of the country to Las Vegas. The trip here to convene with fellow members in every respect.

Nevada Delegates to Stay at Mayflower

Headquarters for Nevada's delegation to the National Elks' convention to be held in Los Angeles the second week in July will be Suites 7206 and 7207, of the Biltmore hotel, according to Harley A. Harmon, president of the Nevada Elks' Association and in charge of housing for the convention.

Rooms for representatives from this state should be reserved in the Mayflower hotel, across the street from the Biltmore, and the Nevadans will occupy the tenth and eleventh floors, it is announced.

Mermaid Pool, close to the MacDonald Hotel where most of the Nevada Elks are stopping, is handy for morning and evening plunge. And the Mermaids are there, too, a fact which the Bills are not slow in finding out.

The handsome, new MacDonald Hotel is filled to the limit with Nevada Elks, a fine recommendation for Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald who are well known throughout the state.

Welcome B.P.O.E.
