GENEVA, III, July 8, (U.P.)-The perplexing question as to why a man sings lustily as he jumps under his morning shower was given another solution today.

"Reverberations,' said V. Ford Greaves, radio engiener, "There is excessive sound reflection in most bathrooms because walls are smooth and close together. This condition resonates weak or feeble tones and makes them sonorous and frequently majestic. Uncensciously the timid male, who usually shies at the least mention of his demonstrating his vocal talents in public, finds the bathroom the only place he can sink to his own satisfaction."

CHAMBERLAIN, FAMOUS AVIATOR, WRITES BOOK

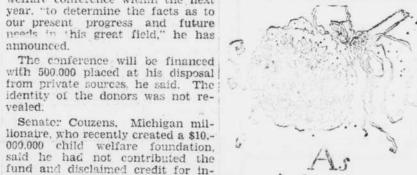

NEW YORK, July 8, (Special)-Colonel Clarence D. Chamberlain, famous trans-Atlantic aviator, has become a successful writer. His novel, "Eagles of An Empire." will be released in serial form this sum-mer, by "Flyers," air magazine, published at New York, and edited by Casey Jones.

It is Colonel Chamberlain's belief that the immense strides that have been made in aviation recently have been due to the fact that the public has been made air-minded by having its attention focused on aviation through the outstanding accomplishments of those who stuck to their ships during the infancy of flying. He believes that the pen is at least as mighty as the joy-stick as a means of pointing out the fact that there is still much to be done in the conquest of the air. His novel, while fiction, deals with the struggles that are going on in the industry today.
