WELCOME RAIN.

THE STORM of the past few days tempered the heat and was welcome for more reasons than one.

But, as there is no great gain without some small loss, so in this case. The torrential storm northwest of town sent a vast amount of water down through the valley, doing a little damage to places here and there and some damage to the highways. Nevertheless, travel was not seriously interfered with and the highway damage can be repaired by the expenditure of a few hundred dollars.

Comment is sometimes made because in building our highways provisions are not made to carry these great floods. The trouble is that any amount of money within reason spent in the effort to provide for such torrential storms and cloudbursts would be futile. The storms are uncertain and erratic, often striking where least expected. The most elaborate provision for drainage may be of little use for many years, while portions of the highways crossing territory where there is no sign of previous floods may be washed out. Desert roads just have to take their chances with the rest of us.

MINING REVIVAL

THERE IS a revival of interest in mining extending, apparently, over the entire west. And the center of that interest seems to be in Southern Nevada.

There is a good reason why interest in a mining revival here just now should be greater than in most other sections. The certainty that the Boulder Dam project will be built within the next few years and that cheap electric power will be available for the operation of mines and for ore treating plants assures a profit from ores which heretofore were without market value.

Mining activity, we have observed, comes in cycles. Prospectors and miners have their periodical spells of activity. Just now there are so many mining activities going on under way in this section that we may look for the bringing into production of many old properties and the almost certain discoveries of new ore bodies which will mean wealth to many.

A SECURE FUTURE

NOT BECAUSE of, but in spite of wildcat real estate speculators, Las Vegas will, within a few years, become a city of considerable population, wealth and industry.

Unfortunately, a few innocent people hoping to get rich quick have been defrauded by unscrupulous real estate speculators from California and other states and Las Vegas has been forced to endure the obloquy. We not only have suffered in good reputation, but we have lost thousands of dollars in legitimate investments frustrated by the unfavorable notoriety brought to us by irresponsible outside real estate boomers. It is fortunate that the disapproval of scheming methods by the conservative element of Las Vegas has already in a large measure remedied the situation.

The Age believes that our future largely depends upon our ability to keep our feet on the ground and be not carried away by frothy and unstable booming schemes. It is in our own hands.

Las Vegas has now at her call all the elements of success. This city will inevitably become an important center of business and industrial activity. We should and will give support and encouragement to all legitimate enterprises. But we owe it to ourselves and to those whom we are inviting to join with us in the creation of a great city, to frown upon all activities which have reason to believe are unsound or fraudulent.

MARCH OF EVENTS

SURE AS the decrees of fate, as steady and as certain as the grinding of the mills of the gods, the march of events is bringing to us the construction of the Boulder Dam project.

Whether we will it or no, the wheels of government will revolve with relentlessness. We can now neither hurry it nor retard the movement.

Shortly the greatest engineering project of the age will be in course of construction. Millions spent in wages to employees will find their way through our channels of business enriching many. The city must of necessity expand to meet the new conditions. Capital will seek investment in all the various things that go to making a city. Enterprise will seek out our advantages and profit by them.

For us who already are in favorable position the most important thing is to guide the new city into symmetrical growth as an orchardist shapes his trees.

The City Commissioners have already made a step in this direction by adopting a building ordinance which will assure good construction of our business blocks and other structures.

We need now, more than any one thing, a zoning

Clark County Rates High In 4-H Activity

Membership is 86; Growth Of Agricultural Work Is Shown; Members Attend Club Camp in Reno.

Clark County's group of seven 4-H club members, who are in Reno attending the State Junior Farm Bureau Camp at the University of Nevada livestock farm this week are but a small part of the membership of the 4-H organization in this county. There are 86 members in Clark county, according to Cecil W. Creel, director of the State Agricultural extension service.

This county ranks well for membership despite its small agricultural area, ranking well up with the counties of the north in membership.

Increase in the number of 4-H agricultural and home economics club boys and girls in Nevada by nearly 300 in the last year is announced by Creel. The youngsters are pledged to work for the development of agriculture in Nevada.

Where a year ago there were 72 clubs with an enrollment of 607 youngsters, today there are 103 clubs including 897 children, which is a gain of almost 50 per cent. A 4-H club member exists in Nevada for every 90 inhabitants, a record not equaled in any other state. The club youngsters, who are 10 to 19 years old, are engaged in studying and practicing approved methods of farming and home-making, in which they often bring to their parents new ideas.

Of these enrolled 544 are girls, most of whom are in the 55 home economics clubs, although several have taken purely agricultural pro-

'Critical' Admiral Is Back After 'Rest'

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—(U.P.)

Removed from command of the Fourth naval district and the Philadelphia naval district by former Secretary Wilbur after he had written magazine article criticizing the navy, Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder was back in active service today following a twenty-one month "rest."

The rear admiral is now installed on board his flagship U. S. S. Procyon, anchored near Mare Island. As soon as the Procyon has been overhauled Admiral Magruder will proceed to San Francisco to establish his headquarters.

Rear Admiral S. E. W. Kittelle, whom Admiral Magruder succeeds, will leave for the East coast where he will become the president of the board of inspection and survey of the U. S. Navy.

Human nature changes little, if at all, as the centuries roll on, so far as we can see, and we'll bet it after Moses had come down from Mount Sinai with the newly enacted Ten Commandments before prominent citizens had made up their minds which to obey and which not. —Ohio State Journal.

The boys are all in the 46 agricultural clubs.

Churchill county leads in numbers, with 145 youngsters in 16 clubs, while White Pine county has the greatest number of clubs—19, with 133 members. Eureka county, which has only one club of five members, ranks last.

Enrollment in the other counties is: Clark 86, Elko 130, Humboldt 27, Lander 16, Lincoln 86, Lyon 108, Pershing 45, Washoe 99.

Clubs are now being organized in Ormsby county which will leave but Nye, Esmeralda, Mineral and Storey counties without 4-H work.

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

NEW YORK—Less than a month ago the elongated cube of the new Chanin building tower, opposite the Grand Central terminal on Forty-second street, dominated the skyline of midtown New York. Fifty-six stories high, and exceeded in stature only by the Woolworth building and the Metropolitan tower its yellow brick crest loomed above Manhattan's eastern skyline with particular impressiveness when viewed from Times Square, four blocks away, across Forty-second street.

Now it is almost blocked out of view, from that vantage point at the crossroads of the world, by the steel skeleton of the Lincoln bank building in the same block. Although the latter is 424 feet shorter it leaves only a corner of the Chanin building in sight from Broadway's pavement.

From the Queensboro bridge the Chanin building is still dominant, especially by night when its illuminated roof looks like an isolated solar island. But on that side the steel work of the new Chrysler building is rising to blot it out. The Chrysler tower, catanacomer from the Chanin building, at the same street intersection, will be 67 stories and 808 feet tall.

Gotham Mountain Peaks It has been asserted that there are more skyscrapers within a quarter of a mile radius of the Grand Central than in any other entire city of the country.

Excuse It, Please When irate householders are wrenched from their beds at 2 a. m. to answer the telephone and hear "I must have the wrong number," the telephone company isn't always to blame.

City Prisoner Half a dozen floors above the pavement a marmoset plays all day in a cage outside an apartment window on Forty-seventh street.

Cautious Hospitality An insurance company's finding that the summer attire of a city man weighs four times as much as that of his wife or his girl friend is doubtless accurate, but there seems to be nothing the males can do about it.

The better restaurants forbid men

Here's Today's Best Yarn by a Dam Site, And It's on Watson. When the Boulder club opened here a few days ago old timers recalled the time years ago when Walter Watson, one of the owners of the club, was dealing faro bank in Tucson, Arizona. The old timers tell the story with many a chuckle yet, and as Walter does not deny the yarn, there must be some truth in it.

It seems the great gambling hall was crowded with miners and townfolk when a number of eastern tourists walked into the place. Curious to see the sights and get their first glimpse of western life, which they only knew from reading Brete Harte and other authors who had given them vivid descriptions of the wild and woolly.

Among the visitors was an old lady who spied Walter in the look-out's seat, watching the layout. Thinking in her simple way that Walter must be a student studying the game, she leaned over toward him and in motherly fashion, though rather in a shrill voice that carried well around the room, asked: "How long do you think it will be, young man, before you will be able to sit at the table and deal the cards?"

A great laugh at Walter's expense arose and it is said that the question cost him his day's wages when the shift was over.

New Church of L.D.S. to Be Hub For Recreation. Mother Church Will Match Local Fund Dollar for Dollar in Financing of Structure; Old Site to Be Sold.

That the new L. D. S. church, to be built at the corner of Ninth and Clark, will become the center for community recreation among young folks is the plan of those in charge of its planning, according to Bryan Bunker, bishop.

The site, it is pointed out, is one block east of the location of the new high school athletic field, and but little more than a block from the site of the new high school building itself. It is in a high-class residential district which is expected to build up rapidly, and is a location of which the church members will be proud, it is stated. The building will face west and will be on the south side of Clark.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

By DUANE HENNESSY United Press Staff Correspondent HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4.—(U.P.)—After completion of "Taming of the Shrew" in which Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks will be seen as co-stars for the first time, the two players plan to return to individual starring vehicles.

Meanwhile, the picture is nearing completion rapidly and filming should be finished early this month. The movie public long has wanted to see the famous pair in a picture together and after many delays the desire is about to be fulfilled. However, with the announcement of their future plans, Miss Pickford and Fairbanks have shown that they plan to continue their careers independently after "Taming of the Shrew."

By RODNEY DUTCHER WASHINGTON—Probably for the first time ever, the Communists, the Socialists, and the Capitalists—they call everyone else—are all agreed on the same thing.

The Communist government of Russia, the Socialist government of England and our own government meet on common ground when it comes to reducing armaments. The Soviets got nowhere at all when they proposed complete world-wide disarmament to the League of Nations conference at Geneva, but they can now enjoy the sight of the rest of the world stepping in that direction, led by President Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

Russia does not enter into the picture so much except for her initiation of the complete disarmament idea, which caused the other nations to laugh or scold to hide their embarrassment, and her part in a recent demonstration that things are likely to be different. This demonstration came out of her row with China.

A Good Cause for War In the old days China's railway seizure would have been good for a war any old time. But Russia, instead of going to war, agreed to be peaceful and to that extent at least confirmed the sincerity of her disarmament proposals. What made Russia's pacific look so good was that she announced to the world her respect for the Kellogg peace treaty before Secretary of State Stimson or anyone publicly reminded her of her adherence.

The many recent developments favorable to the world peace ideal may be taken by historians as proof that popular government, or democracy, is a strong deterrent to war.

Russia's war sufferings made possible the Bolshevik revolt which upset the Czarist government. The soldiers, workers and peasants just decided that they weren't going to have any more of that war and when the Soviet Union was established one of its strongest tenets was that war was an instrument of the capitalist class which invariably brought great suffering to the masses and hence ought to be abolished. Since that time Russia has been distrusting the rest of the world because of its attempts to invade and destroy her and the rest of the world has been distrusting Russia because of her propaganda for revolutions everywhere else.

All of which hasn't helped the world peace ideal. Nevertheless, Russia claims to be a government of the workers and farmers and unalterably opposed to aggressive war, so if one accepts those claims at face value one finds that history's most radical experiment in popular government produced a government which led all the rest in reducing war as an instrument of national policy.

Voted For Pacifism In Premier Ramsay MacDonald's peace efforts the British people should be said to be getting just about what they voted for. British post-war conditions have been bad enough to cause a political revolution, MacDonald was a hated pacifist 10 or 12 years ago and the Laborites or Socialists whom he led have always had a strong peace policy. So when British voters gave MacDonald and his party a plurality they were well aware that their new government probably would go to great lengths on behalf of world peace.
