

San Juan, the Tragedy Steamer

The veteran Pacific coastal steamer San Juan, which went to the bottom a few minutes after it was struck by the Standard Oil Tanker S. C. T. Dodd in a heavy fog off the Santa Cruz, Calif., coast. Seventy passengers and members of the crew are missing. Included in this number is Capt. A. F. Aslund.

Where Wreck Occurred

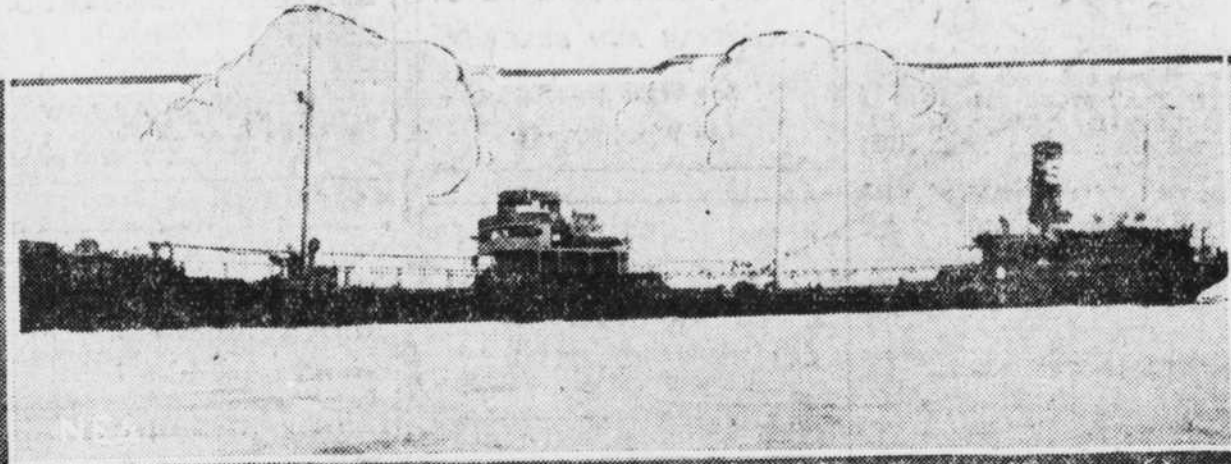

Ambulances Belie Reassurances

Throngs of friends and relatives, hoping against hope that their loved ones were safe, were thrown into a near panic when they found this line of ambulances waiting at the dock as the tanker S. C. T. Dodd approached a San Francisco pier with the first survivors of the San Juan wreck.

Tanker, Figuring in Wreck, Rescuer

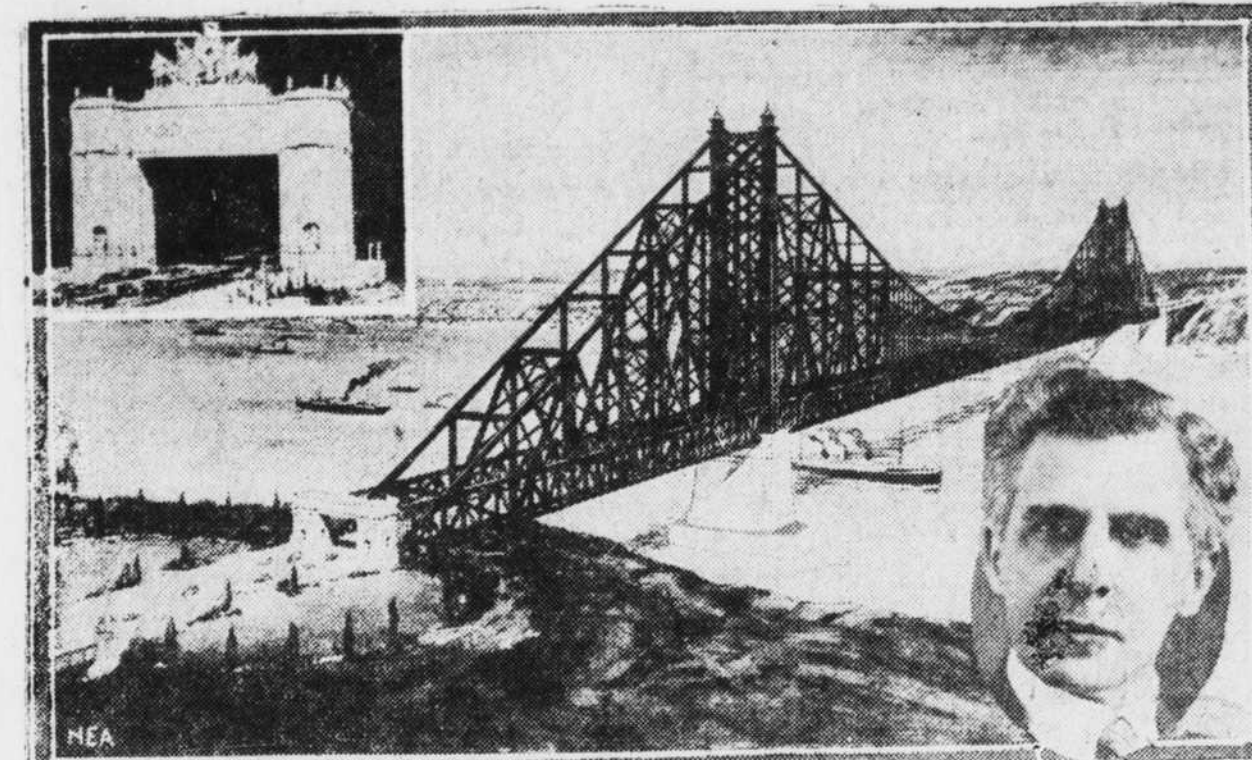

The Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd, which rammed the passenger steamer San Juan off the California coast, and sent the San Juan to the bottom with a heavy life loss. The tanker stood by, rescued many survivors from the water and brought these to San Francisco.

Stretchers for Wounded

Stretchers were used to remove the most seriously injured shipwreck victims from the tanker S. C. T. Dodd at San Francisco. Photo shows a San Juan survivor being brought down the gangplank to a waiting ambulance.

World's Greatest Span for Golden Gate

A 4000-foot span—greatest single span in the world—is proposed for the Golden Gate bridge, across San Francisco bay's famous entrance. Cost has been estimated at $30,000,000, and the preliminary plan, shown above, has been approved by the War Department. The bridge was designed by Joseph B. Strauss (inset), famous bridge builder, and head of the commission to handle the big project.

Child Given to Crew; Mother Drowns

One of the saddest of the tragedies connected with the sinking of the passenger steamer San Juan with heavy life loss was the return of Hollis Pfeiffer, 6, whose mother handed him over to members of the San Juan's crew for safe keeping as the vessel began to sink. The mother was never found. The child is shown between a San Francisco hospital steward and his grandmother.

Colonial Player

Miss Denise Coughlin, one of the troupe who will present the play, "The Man From Golden Valley," tonight at El Patio. The troupe will show "The Lion and the Mouse" again tomorrow evening.

Miss Donna Vickroy, Noted Actress, Appearing With Colonial Troupe

At the height of a stellar career behind the footlights, Miss Donna Vickroy, one of the leading lights of dramatic circles on the Pacific coast, is in Las Vegas appearing for a few brief nights with the Colonial Players, who have been recently playing for Duffy in California. Miss Vickroy, who is leading lady in the plays being presented at El Patio during the company's stay here, has appeared with some of the best known dramatic talent in the West, including Ralph Cloninger, Ferris Hartman, Willard Mack, Marjorie Rambeau and Gilmore Brown. She is now in receipt of a recent offer from Cloninger, who is contemplating opening the Shrine auditorium in Los Angeles for production of heavy drama such as "The Squaw Man," "Smilin' Through," and "The Virginian."

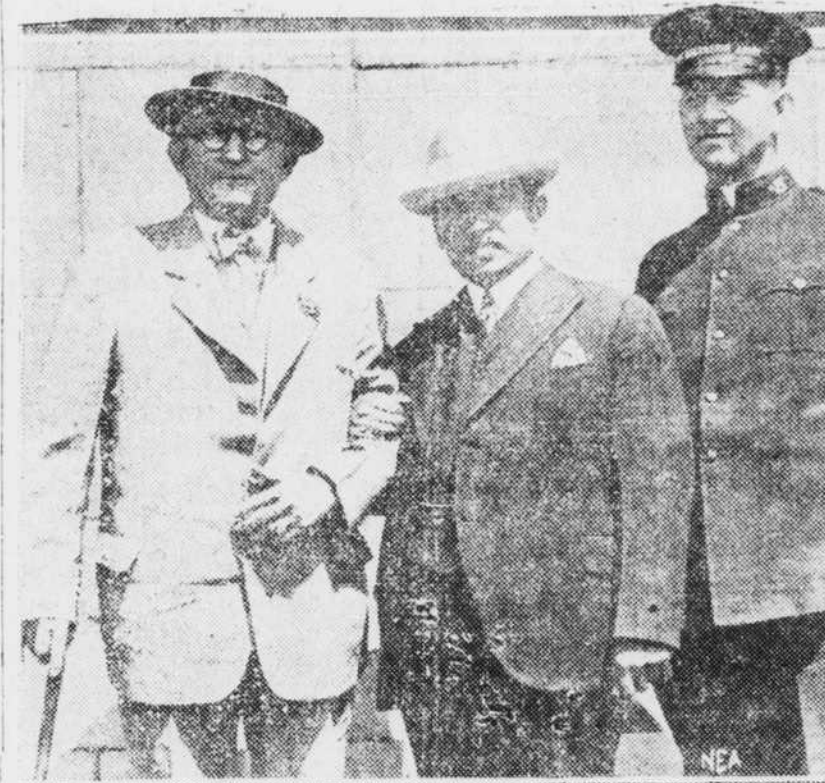

Lincoln's Clock

This clock once served Abraham Lincoln. Rachel McElhiney, University of Kansas co-ed, is holding the timepiece which Lincoln auctioned off when he left Greenview, Ill., for Springfield to practice law. It is now owned by W. O. Swab of McLouth, Kan.

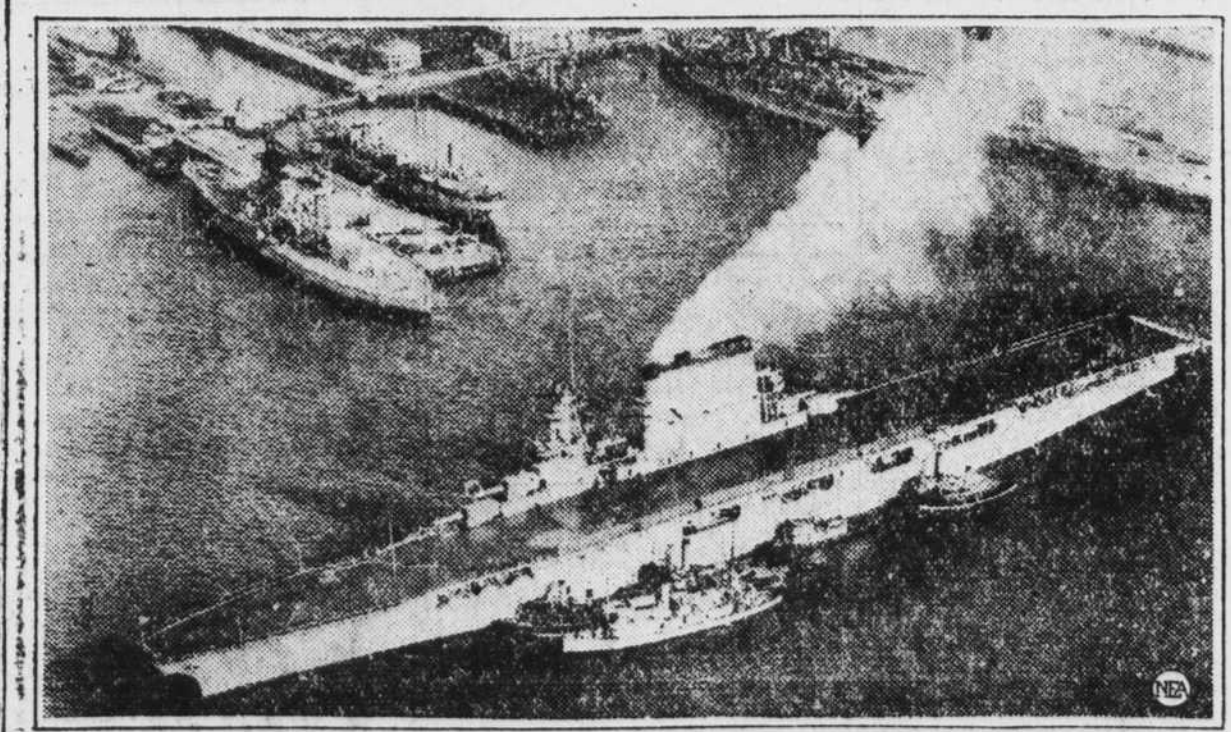

We trust that President Hoover's crime investigating commission will devote a little time to looking into the orchestra which furnish jazz music over the radio.

"Richest Convict" Is Paroled

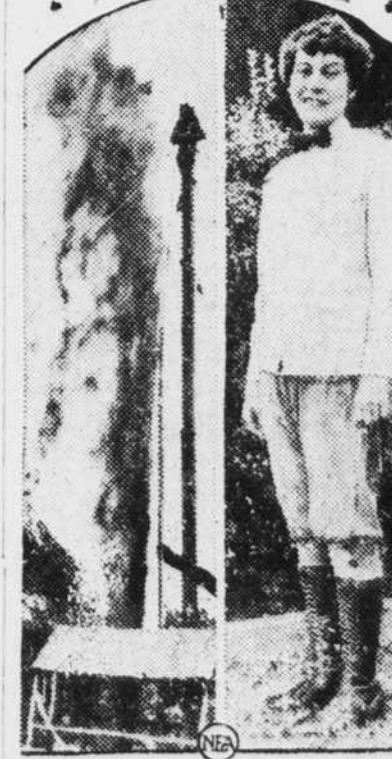

America's "richest convict," Damascus G. Gallur, the famous composer-leader at San Quentin prison, has been paroled. Through his musical compositions while in prison, Gallur (center) amassed $93,000, and leaders in the musical world joined in the fight for his release. Gallur is shown between Thomas D. Van Osten, secretary of the Allied Amusement Industries of California, and Chaplain Stairs of the Salvation Army.

It's the World's Largest Sea-Going Airport

Here's a striking aerial picture of the world's largest sea-going airport, the U. S. navy's Saratoga, an airplane carrier. It shows the immense landing space available for its fleet of planes when engaged in sea maneuvers.

She's Oil Driller

Mrs. Elizabeth Mills of Muskogee, Okla., lost so many oil leases from being unable to obtain drillers, that she decided to take over field supervision of her own leases. And now she's one of the outstanding oil operators in the southwest. She's shown above, with a view of the first producing well she brought in. It was a gusher.

Miss Vickroy has played in Las Vegas before, about six years ago. The play in which she took part at that time was "The Thief."

"I'll never forget that trip to Las Vegas," she said. "There was a cloudburst out on the highway as we came in, and I never saw so much rain in my life." Strangely enough the troupe came in Sunday over roads drenched and cut up by near-cloudbursts which deluged the vicinity that day. The two sedans pulled through without serious trouble, but the truck with the troupe's properties and baggage was delayed by four flat tires and other difficulties.

"But we're all here now," Miss Vickroy said with a smile. The troupe will present "The Lion and the Mouse" tonight at El Patio, with the great air picture "The Sky Skidder" to be shown before the play. This is a Universal Al Wilson picture.

Education is fine but it doesn't always help to make a lot of money. Take the salaries of the college professors for example.

We will believe the millennium has really arrived when Uncle Sam can frame a tariff that will protect his workmen and at the same time please the politicians of Europe.

The principal difference between the pacifist and the ostrich is that the ostrich won't believe he is free from danger until he gets his head stuck into the sand.
