Evidence Against Pantages Grows

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14. (U.P.)—Striking the most telling blow since it had Eunice Pringle tell her own story from the stand, the state today rapidly drew to a close its case against Alexander Pantages, accused of assaulting the 17-year-old amateur dancer.

A police woman gave testimony supporting the contention of Miss Pringle that she was attacked by Pantages on August 9 and two of his former employees told again of his asserted attempts to lead officials and the public to believe the charge against him was a frame up.

Possibly the most damaging story came from Mrs. Katherine Bellus, a police woman at the juvenile bureau.

Mrs. Bellus said she undressed Miss Pringle a short time after the girl ran screaming from Pantages' conference room.

"Her clothing was torn and matted," Mrs. Bellus said, "and she had bites and bruises over her body."

The police woman said that in all there were eight bites on Miss Pringle's body.

The clothing, she said, was in the same condition now that it was when she first undressed the girl.

This testimony corroborated that of Miss Pringle and offset the defense intimation that the little dancer ripped her clothing after she got home from the juvenile bureau.

C. C. Harden, theater employee, preceded Mrs. Bellus to the stand.

He said that on order of Roy Keene, assistant manager for Pantages, he helped move a small table into the room where the attack allegedly took place to give the place the appearance of an office.

The order, he said, was given by Pantages, apparently in an attempt to discredit Miss Pringle's story of the assault in the "conference room."

University Old Grads To Assembly on 'Hill'

To renew memories of the days when they were students on the "Hill," University of Nevada alumni from over the west will assemble at the campus in Reno October 25 and 26 for the annual homecoming week-end of the institution.

In addition to seeing the Nevada Wolf Pack griders pit their strength against the eleven from the California College of Agriculture, viewing the potato, apple and livestock exhibits, meeting old friends and taking part in the other festivities, the "old grads" will hold

Boulder Canyon Dam

When operations are in full swing building this great dam, which is to cost $165,000,000, someone is going to make a fortune furnishing Las Vegas and the new town to be built by the government at the dam site with milk.

Miller's improved ranch, consisting of 440 acres, all fenced hog tight, and situated about 8 miles south-easterly between Las Vegas and the dam site, is ideal for dairy purposes, has nine artesian flowing wells, flowing into three large reservoirs, alfalfa, sweet clover, plenty of timber and shade.

Russian Fliers On N. Y. Hop

SEATTLE, Oct. 14. (U.P.)—Safely landed on American soil after completing the most dangerous flight since they left Moscow, August 23, the crew of the Russian monoplane, Land of the Soviets, prepared today for a four-stop flight to New York.

The four fliers, whose arrival here was delayed ten days because of a forced stop at Waterfall, Alaska, on a flight from Sitka to Seattle, landed their big plane on the waters of Lake Washington late Sunday.

They were greeted by a crowd of 500 persons, most of them Russians, who had waited at the landing dock since early morning. Although the airline distance between here and Waterfall is only 420 miles, it took the plane 10 hours and 10 minutes to make the flight.

Simeon Shestakov, first pilot, said the long delay was accounted for by strong head winds. Speaking through an interpreter, the aviators said the flight from Waterfall was "very dangerous" because of the weather conditions.

Since they left Moscow, the fliers the annual meeting of the university's alumni association.

At the alumni banquet, which this year is to be held in the Odd Fellows building at 6:30 Saturday, October 23, officers will be elected for the ensuing year and plans for the organization's activities will be laid.

Glen F. Engle, Carson City, president of the association, has announced that Bernard Hartung, assistant manager of the Revue Chamber of Commerce, is in charge of the banquet preparations, and reservations may be made through him, or, during the homecoming celebration, at the potato and apple show.

Girl Near Death In Auto Shooting

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14. (U.P.)—The victim of a mysterious assailant, 17-year-old Marguerite Ollivares, of Redondo, was near death here today with a bullet wound in the neck.

She was struck by one of four revolver shots fired from an automobile which passed the one in which she was riding with a party of friends near Pomona Saturday night.

According to the girl, passengers in the other machine hurled vile epithets at herself and her companions and then one of them opened fire.

Miss Ollivares said she had no enemies and other occupants of the car in which she was riding said they knew of no reason why they should have been fired upon.

Two Feminine Fliers Missing

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14. (U.P.)—Two young women, prominent in Los Angeles aviation circles, were missing from their homes today and their relatives applied for police aid in an effort to locate them.

The missing fliers are Peggy Paxson, 18, and Lucille Wallingford, 25, both already well known for aerial acrobatics. They planned to seek additional laurels as endurance champions.

The girls failed to arrive at their homes Friday night after visiting an airport in Whittier.

SUITS FILED

Suit for $3,052 with $17.80 interest was filed yesterday against Wm. W. Davis by A. W. Crawford, for payment of an alleged note said to have been dated September 16, 1929.

The Innocent Cheat

He did not go to her at once, but her eyes constantly sought his and he knew that she was waiting for him to tell her what this latest development would mean to them. Would he leave her now, go away and forget her, thinking his duty done?

Duty! Helen hated the word. She wanted love. And Leno did not love her, she was certain of it. His continued attitude of sorrowful renunciation proved it.

And wouldn't he give her up altogether now that he knew her fate was sealed and she must remain with her grandfather? The thought brought anguish to her.

She was deaf to the remarks of the people who crowded about her, offering their congratulations and felicitations. She scarcely heard Mr. Cunningham's meagre explanation of her history.

But when Eva came to her and putting her arms about her, said "I'm so glad for your sake," she wanted to cry out that there was nothing to be glad about—that her life was being sacrificed. Her self-control was leaving her in a panic of fear that she had lost Brent.

Just as she might have said something wild she saw Brent coming toward her. He took her hand and pressed it hard. "Courage, my dear," he said under his breath. Helen barely caught the words but they steadied her. She smiled at him and turned away to those who were still gathering around her.

As she did so Eva unobtrusively slipped a hand into Brent's. He gave it a perfunctory squeeze and let it go. Eva was too excited to note his lack of warmth.

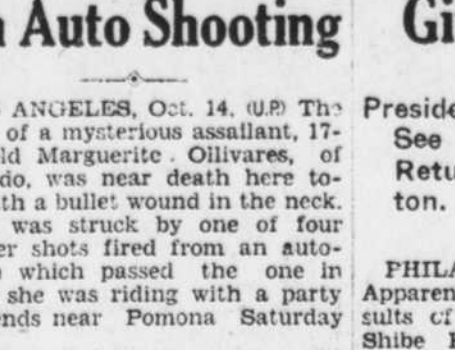

Her act annoyed Brent excessively and he cursed himself for having been a fool about her. He had slipped but rarely in his life and as he looked at Eva he felt desire to choke her for having been the cause of one of those rare occasions.

One word to Helen of his attentions to Eva and he knew he might as well cry for the moon as to seek to win her. He seemed to realize the folly of his conduct with full force now that Helen had become the Cunningham heiress.

But later in the night he had a comforting reassurance of her feeling for him. The guests were departing—long after Mr. Cunningham had retired—and Helen suggested to Brent that they drive Eva home since she insisted that she could not remain over night. She had to leave early the next morning for a music lesson in the city.

"Bob is coming for me," Eva told them, with an appealing glance at Helen. "Oh," Helen said indifferently, and then added enthusiastically to Brent: "Suppose we go and drive the sun up, Leno?" (To Be Continued)

Rally in Ninth Gives A's Series

President and Mrs. Hoover See Finish of Series and Return Again to Washington.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14. (U.P.)—Apparently pleased with the results of the world series game at Shibe Park here this afternoon, President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover departed for Washington at 3:40 p.m. by train.

By FRANK GETTY United Press Sports Editor

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 14. (U.P.)—The Philadelphia Athletics became world champions of baseball this afternoon, defeating the Chicago Cubs in the fifth and final game of the October series, 3 to 2.

A furious ninth inning rally when they were trailing by two runs behind the apparently victorious Cubs gave the Athletics all three of their runs and the Championship.

The finish of the game and series came fifth dramatic suddenness and upheld an old baseball superstition that he who strikes out the first man to face him is sure to meet defeat unless he also strikes out the second one.

Pat Malone shifted Max Bishop for the first man up for the A's on a called third strike in today's first inning and then kept the Mackmen from getting a single runner to third base until the ninth when four of them hit him safely.

In the first eight innings Malone held the Athletics to two singles, one hit to left field by Al Simmons, first up for Philadelphia in the second inning and the other hit by Bing Miller in the fifth when Bing batted with Jimmy Foxx on first and one out. Foxx had reached first on a rank fumble by Hornsby of a simple grounder, the only error of the day.

Miller's hit also went to left field and sent Foxx to second base where he was stranded when the inning ended.

Hoover to Take Hand in Tariff

By PAUL S. MALLON United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (U.P.)—President Hoover is planning to lend a hand to help the administration forces in the senate with their tariff bill which is languishing midway in the special session while the senate is embarking on a series of investigations reminiscent of the Teapot Dome and Daugherty scandal inquiries.

Senatorial leaders have been informed a statement may be issued from the White House this week urging greater speed in consideration of the tariff bill, and in the meantime the various Republican senators are to be called in for conferences about the peculiar situation which has enveloped the legislation, making its adoption this year seem unlikely.

Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee blames the Republican farm bloc group for what he considers a delay in passing the bill. He has absolved the Democrats of any charge of filibustering.

Senator Borah of Idaho, who speaks for the bloc, has replied the bill can be passed in ten days if Smoot will consent to revise it "for the purpose for which the special session was called," meaning elimination of industrial increases and and adoption only of the agricultural rates. Borah frankly says the delay may have come from the sincere effort of his associates to revise it the way they want, and he served notice they would not desist merely to help the legislation through.
