GODSTONE, Eng., Nov. 6 (U.P)-Six persons were killed today and two, a German prince and a retired British naval officer, were injured when the tri-motored Luft-Hansa passenger plane, D-903, crashed against a tree in a fog near nere and caught fire. The dead: C. Milne, director of George Henderson company, Calcutta jute merchants. H. . Gasper, prominent employee of the London office of the same firm. D. L. Jones, connected with a London scaffolding firm.

Chief Pilot Rodchinke Mechanic Ullrich. Wireless operator Niklass.

The injured: Prince Eugene von Schaumberg-Lippe, 30, distantly related to the former kaiser's wife and serving as co-pilot on the plane.

Lieut.-Com. D. C. Glen-Kidston, retired naval officer, sportsman and racing car driver. The plane left Croydon airdrome, near London, at 9:54 a.m. on its regular trip to Berlin when poor visibility caused it to turn back. The pilot lost his bearings over a thickly wooded hill near Marden park and the plane crashed into a tree and took fire. The crash could be heard a mile away.

A young Englishwoman, Mrs. H.

R. Meredith, heard the splintering of the plane. With her gardner and a friend she drove her own car to the wreck as climbed the hill and found the prince lying near the still burning

Mrs. Meredith pulled the prince out of danger, loaded him into her car and drove him to a hospital His condition late today was proncunced grave.

Glen-Kidston managed to extricate himself from the wreckage and went to a nearby farm from which he telephoned Croydon airdrome. #### Former Local W. U. Manager Writes

An interesting letter was received Tuesday by Mrs. B. Fulcher, employee of the Western Union, from Mr. A. M. Hardie, former manager of the company here. Mr. Hardie left about three weeks ago to accept a position as district manager with the company in Arizona. The territory in his jurisdiction includes Imperial Valley and Southern California with his headquarters at Phoenix. In his letter Mr. Hardie expressed regrets at having to leave Las Vegas, for he had made many friends and was active in various social gatherings, especially the American Legion, of which he was a member Due to the successful management of the local office he was promoted to his present position. Mr. Hardie expects to come to Las Vegas for a visit some time before the holidays, and his friends are looking forward to meeting him again in the near future.
