Five Teams May Be Tied For Coast Grid Title

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20, (U.P.)—California, only undefeated team in the Pacific Coast conference, has kept its record clean, while Stanford fell a victim to the bucks of Santa Clara's broncos, 13 to 7.

Despite the Stanford upset, the teams from California and Stanford will start their "big game" next Saturday on almost even terms.

Washington, after a season of defeats, put up the fight of her life against Stanford and California on succeeding Saturdays, and field statistics showed that the Huskies actually outplayed California. But they could not outfight her and on the Golden Bears held at the crucial moments. In the second quarter, two long passes from Lom to Norton and Eisan gained California her lone score of the day. The Berkeley boys came out of the Washington game without injuries and with a win, which was all that could be expected.

Santa Clara outfought the Cardinals, who had underrated the Broncos considerably.

Conference results Saturday make the outcome of the "big game" of outstanding importance, for should Stanford defeat California in the classic, five teams may claim a tie for first place, in the conference, Oregon, Washington State, Stanford and Southern California are all tied for second place at present, and a win over California, the leader, might bring the five teams to an equal standing.

HABIT CLINICS

By DR. LELAND B. ALFORD

Cities conduct clinics for tuberculosis and infant welfare schools run clinics for pupils. The "habit" clinic is something new.

The theory of habit clinics, usually conducted for children under 12 or 14 years, is that many disturbances for which pills and powders used to be prescribed are due to nothing more than bad habits.

Little Johnny won't eat his porridge. He is restless at night and over-active during the day. When confused he pulls at his hair and bites his nails. His face and shoulders twitch involuntarily.

Hitherto Johnny would be rewarded for these peculiar manifestations with a carpet slipper, or, at best, a dose of castor oil, with the result that Johnny's twitchings and restlessness would increase.

The modern method is to recognize that he is suffering from an accumulation of bad habits, and that rational treatment is to uproot them.

Such matters of truancy, indifference toward school, stubbornness and general "cussedness" likewise used to be treated by application of the rod, without noticeable effect.

The habit clinic approaches things differently. If Johnny runs away from school, the clinician assumes he is running away from something to something, or for the mere fun of running. He may be running away from a cross teacher or bully, he may be running to a gang of fun-loving friends, or he may delight in pure adventure.

By approaching the problem in this manner, the causes of Johnny's actions are revealed and remedies suggest themselves.

We owe the habit clinic to Dr. Thom of Boston. He started a number of clinics in that vicinity. Then the Commonwealth Fund of New York City established many throughout the country.

of the Union Pacific railroad all the way across the state, including particularly the Las Vegas to Jean territory just north of the site of the power plan of the Boulder Dam project.

With the growing demand for lime in construction work in southern California a lime quarry with small vertical kilns was opened up in 1912 alongside the railroad at Sloan, 17 miles south of Las Vegas. It is now the property of the U. S. Lime Products corporation, and is equipped with two rotary kilns to handle about 200 tons of limestone a day.

Recently a new limestone quarry has been opened up at Jean, by the Blue Diamond Company of Los Angeles, and trial shipments of the limestone made to the company's large vertical kiln at Los Angeles.

In the limestone areas there are also beds of dolomite of high purity. One of these beds lies directly over the limestone bed that is being mined in the Sloan quarry.

Cement-Making Materials

Materials for making Portland cement, such as pure and shaly limestone, shales and clays occur in great quantity alongside the Union Pacific railroad.

Gypsum

Gypsum occurs in great abundance in southern Nevada, not only along the Union Pacific railroad but also close to the vicinity of Boulder Canyon along the old St. Thomas to Bitter Springs and Boulder Canyon wagon road.

At the present time the Blue Diamond Company and the U. S. Gypsum Company are both operating at Arden, 12 miles southwesterly from Las Vegas.
