New School at Logan:
William Marshall, the contractor, is busy preparing plans and specifications for a new school house to be built at Logan. The station will be a handsome one of concrete blocks, 20 by 40, with a 14 foot ceiling. A bell tower will be an attractive feature.

Sewer Bonds Pushed:
Notice of the sale of $30,000 sewer bonds issued by the town of Las Vegas was ordered printed in some Las Vegas newspaper by the county commissioners. The bonds will be dated and delivered March 7, 1910, and will be issued in denominations of $500 each, and to bear interest at the rate of six per cent.

Road Inspectors Dismissed:
In view of the fact that the funds of the various road districts are in a poor condition, the offices of all road supervisors and road inspectors in Clark county were declared vacant by the county commissioners.

Jail Plans Authorized:
The county clerk was ordered to give notice that plans for a jail for the town of Las Vegas to be built at some future time, would be received by the board.

Williams Visits:
Hon. Frank Williams of Good Springs spent Monday and Tuesday of this week in the county seat.

Merrimac Hero to Speak Here:
Captain Richard Pearson Hobson, Merrimac hero and former Alabama congressman, will speak at the Methodist church in Las Vegas on Monday evening. Captain Hobson, it is announced, will give strict and thorough enforcement of the prohibition law.

Community Xmas Fete Planned:
Arrangements for the community Christmas celebration Christmas Eve have been completed by the committees in charge.
The Christmas gathering on Christmas Eve each year has been of value in cementing the community spirit. It is good and fitting that all our people should gather together at least once each year and join in the common pleasure of bringing joy to the hearts of the children.
The program will include music by the grammar school boys' band.

Roast Turkey Chestnut Dressing
Mashed Potatoes Creamed Onions
Spiced Cranberry Jelly Celery
Bread Butter
Vegetable Salad in Gelatin
Plum Pudding Hard Sauce
Grapefruit Straws Coffee
Salted Nuts

- Oyster Bisque, Serving 8
1 quart oysters
1-3 cup butter
1/2 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1-3 teaspoon celery salt
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
8 cups milk
Carefully look over the oysters and remove any shells. Chop the oysters into one-eighth inch dice. Melt the butter and add the flour, mix well and add the salt, pepper, celery salt and onions. Add the milk and cook until the mixture thickens a little. Heat the oysters for five minutes, add to the sauce mixture, and when well blended serve at once in hot cups.
If these is any liquid with the oysters it should be heated with them and added to the sauce. The liquid is rich in flavor.

- Chestnut Dressing
(For a 12-Pound Fowl)
1 pound chestnuts
5 cups bread crumbs
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon celery seasoning
1/2 cup butter, melted
3 tablespoons hot milk
Cover the chestnuts with water and let simmer until the shells are soft. Cut with a sharp knife and remove the chestnuts. The nuts can be mashed, left whole or cut in halves. Add the chestnuts to the rest of the ingredients which have been lightly mixed with a fork. Lightly stuff the fowl.

- Spiced Cranberry Jelly
1 1/2 squarts cranberries
3 cups water
2 table spoons cloves
3 table spoons cinnamon bark
3 cups sugar
Carefully look over the berries and remove any stems. Add the water, cloves and cinnamon. Cook slowly for 15 minutes in a covered pan. Press all the pulp through a coarse sieve. Add the sugar to the pulp and boil for three minutes. Pour into small molds which have been rinsed out of cold water. Set in a cold place to stiffen.

Candied grapefruit or orange strings, arranged in a dainty box, make a most acceptable Christmas gift.

NEW YORKER AT LARGE

NEW YORK—A single share of Fifth Avenue bank stock, par value $100, sold for $3,200 in an auction room on Vespy street the other morning.
A minute later a dollar bought 300 shares of chemical stock with a paper value of $30,000, and notes of a defunct Florida real estate company for $135,000 went for less than $60.
Good and bad securities are knocked down to the highest bidder every Wednesday morning at the Exchange salesroom, John Vespy street a block past old St. Paul's church.
Sometimes they are stocks that must be sold to close up an estate or to liquidate a bankruptcy. Sometimes they are collateral on which banks have made unpaid loans. Sometimes they are stocks sent in by individuals for sale at any price, so losses can be entered on income tax returns.
Often the stocks are gilt-edged securities listed on the exchanges, and often they are worthless paper. The big financial houses have men at the auction ready to pay market prices for good securities. Half a dozen men come to the bidding week after week looking for nondescript stocks which they can buy for a point or two under market price, and sell quickly at a fractional profit, and several make some sort of a living thus.
No matter how worthless, almost every stock and note put on the auction block finds a bidder. There is always the chance that a no-good package of mining stock which turns up in somebody's estate and sells for a dollar may one day be worth face value again. And some people collect worthless stocks like others collect stamps.

Monument to Folly
This is the only stock auction in town, and the bidding is conducted by the firm of Adrian Muller & Son, which has had a monopoly in the unusual field for some 90 years. Lawyers and bankers delegated to settle estates save time and trouble by sending a chestful of assorted stocks to the auction block. But for it they would have to dispose of the stocks one by one at a dozen different markets.
The auction is also useful to men who have bought securities unwisely. The man who has $10,000 worth of stock in a defunct Idaho mine can't enter a $10,000 loss on his income tax report as long as he still has the securities and they still have a paper value. But he can cart them over to the Exchange salesroom and let them go to the first bidder for $2, that gives him the right to mark down a $9,998 loss on his income tax blank.

Real Estate Market
The salesroom is maintained, however, not primarily for the occasional week security sales, but for real estate auctions.
These are foreclosures, or to settle large estates, and a good share of Manhattan's front footage has changed hands there.
In this auction room were sold the realty holdings left by Frank Woolworth, Mrs. Russell Sage, John B. Clafin, the merchant prince, and Matilda Bruce, daughter of the man who brought printing type to America.

C. of C. Helps Boy Scout Work

A. S. Henderson Appointed At Meeting to Work With Executive; Mrs. Donely Quotes Ben Spencer.

The Chamber of Commerce is intensely interested in the local boy scout movement, said Secretary Florence Donely yesterday, in commenting upon the last meeting of the chamber, held Tuesday noon, at which A. S. Henderson was appointed chairman of a committee to continue aiding the boy scout work in cooperation with Scout Executive K. O. Knudson.
"Boy Scout work is building morale and principle in the rising generation. The boy of today is the man of tomorrow, and the boy scout work is building character and leadership and preparing the boys to carry on where we leave off."
Mrs. Donely cited Ben Spencer's "Spinning Wheel," in which the question "what is a boy?" is asked and then answered as follows:
"He is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is to sit right where you are sitting and attend to those things you think are so important when you are gone.
"You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends upon him. Even if you make leagues and treaties, he will have to manage them.
"He is going to sit at your desk in the Senate and occupy your place on the Supreme bench.
"He will assume control of your cities, states, and nations.
"He is going to take your prisons, churches, schools, universities and corporations.
"All your work is going to be judged and praised or condemned by him.
"Your reputation and your future are in his hands.
"All your work is for him, and the fate of the nation and of humanity is in his hands.
"So it might be as well to pay him some attention."

ON THE SIDELINES

by BRIAN BELL

Billy Laval, University of South Carolina football and baseball coach, was once a professional baseball player, serving in several good leagues as a smart, left-handed pitcher. Although he turned his back on organized baseball as a profession many years ago, he keeps in touch from a distance and during the summer months does some scouting in the lower class leagues, looking for prospects, both for the majors and for minors.
Billy was talking baseball in a group of football coaches, and grew reminiscent. "I went down to look at a pitcher in Class D league last year," he said. "On a day when I had noted that the schedule called for a doubleheader and I figured surely the boy I wanted to see surely would work in one of the games.
"The club I visited is owned by a wealthy prospector who likes his baseball and is willing to stand for the losses he suffers each year, as he thinks it is a good thing for the town to have professional baseball."
"When I went to the park, I found that there was no box office open for sale of tickets and apparently no spectators in the stands, although the teams were having infield practice and it was almost game time.
"I finally attracted the attention of a gatekeeper and told him I wanted to come in. You can't," he said. "The crowd razed the ball team when it lost yesterday, and the colonel (the club owner) said they couldn't come out and razz his ball players, so he's gonner to see this doubleheader all by himself and won't let anybody else in."
"I sat out in the colicet, and he ordered me admitted, so he and

I saw the two games, all by ourselves."
"I had another odd experience," Laval continued. "I went up to a little town to look at a prospect playing semi-pro ball. It was a hot day, and I soon grew thirsty. I did not see any soft drink vendors, so I asked a boy if he did not sell drinks in their ball park. "No," he said. "we sell watermelons." I thought he was joking, but, sure enough, in a few minutes a wagon drove up, loaded with watermelons. They were readily sold at ten cents each and cut open on the spot. Almost everyone bought one and ate watermelons all during the game. Did I get one? Of course. It was a new stunt to me, but it seemed to be a pretty good idea. I like watermelon, and this one was first class."

The combination football-baseball man made the unusual mistake of offering one player too much to sign. "I offered him $100," said Billy, "and he was so dazed I thought he wanted more, so I raised the bid to $300. That practically knocked him out, as he could not sense that amount, and I never did get him. I believe if I had offered him $10, or $20 at the most, I would have landed him."

The automobile trade slogan is now "two cars for every family." In the good old flivver days it was "two families in every car." And sometimes three or four.

Ministers complain that the youth of today takes but little interest in the church. But if we can remember correctly, in the days of our youth the boys were so much interested in the preacher's sermon as they were in whether they could justify as an escort home for one of the good looking girls of the congregation.
For generations England and Russia have been bitter rivals over China. Now Russia is moving an army into China and doing about as she pleases. This must make a lot of British statesmen mighty uncomfortable, in view of the further fact that the British government has just thrown its arms around the bolsheviks and called them brothers.
