Joe Judge, old if the game at 36, but with one of the brightest smiles in all baseball, has given his brother first sacker something to think about.

The wise ones have been counting Joe out of the major league picture for years. In 1928 when Washington signed George Sliker, the former manager of the St. Louis Browns was expected to take over the first base duties and some of the experts said, "Poor old Joe, hope he'll get a good job in the American association, not too far away from home."

Joe is accustomed to being "played down." When he first joined the Senators the objection was that he was too small to be a great first base man.

When Joe's playing days run out, as some day they must, he'll be in line for a managerial post, for there are few major league players who know the game as he does.

When Skipper Johnson, "the Big Train" is forced to leave the track for a time, Judge steps in as second in command, and there have been no Washington slumps under his leadership.

SILVER HITS LOWEST POINT IN HISTORY

Pittman Committee Is Given Endorsement

BY the Associated Press The depressed value of silver and its effects on world trade received attention Friday in widely separated parts of the globe.

At Salt Lake City, the international silver commission endorsed a plan advanced by the senate subcommittee headed by Senator Key Pittman, Nevada, for restoration of the purchasing power of China by a huge loan of silver bullion.

From Shanghai, China, it was reported that the slump in the value of the Mexican silver dollar had reached the lowest level on record and has almost paralyzed foreign business.

Meanwhile bar silver on the New York market dropped to 28 1/2 cents an ounce, a new and historical low in the extending decline from 1929 levels to nearly 47 per cent.
