

Get Woman's Goat Then Steal Her Car

LOS ANGELES, March 13. (UP)—First they got her goat and then they stole her Hotstein car and now she is feeling quite irate.

Proof of Mrs. Cecilia Meyerhofer's anger can be vouched for by the sheriff who had considerable trouble in pacifying the woman when she appeared there early today.

First her goat was stolen and killed. Then last night someone entered the barn at the back of her home and walked off with her 399 pound, seven month old calf.

Mrs. Meyerhofer is considering selling her home and car before they are taken too, the sheriff's office was informed.

Monument To Mark Comstock Lode Site

VIRGINIA CITY, March 13 (UP)—A national monument may be established on the Comstock Lode, that old-time producer which brought $7,000,000 of new wealth in silver into the world, according to word received here from Senator Tasker L. Oddie.

The Comstock lode practically financed the Civil war with its great underground wealth pouring into the lap of the Union at a time when it was sorely needed by the nation.

Virginia City was once the largest city between Chicago and San Francisco. In 1864 it had a population of 30,000 and made possible Nevada's admission to the Union, while the camp now has but 558 souls.

'Butterfly' Deaths Follow Single Pattern; Desire To Act Lures Girls To Broadway

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK, March 13. (UP)—The triumph of Broadway butterfly murders weaves themselves into a well defined pattern.

The death of Vivian Gordon, who was found strangled in a Bronx park, was almost identical to the other two, the slayings of Dorothy King and Louise Lawson.

All three were thrust into the madhouse of Broadway by ambition. Miss Gordon left the protecting walls of a Canadian convent to study music here. "She was a clever musician," the nurse said.

Louise Lawson wanted to be a grand opera singer, and it was to further her career that she came to New York. In Texas she had been a church organist and had sung in the choir.

Dorothy King came from a respectable New York family, and it was because her brother had chided her for bobbing her hair that she first moved into an apartment by herself. She wanted to be a great actress.

All three were beautiful girls with desires for fame and success in their artistic careers. But their talents did not prove enough, and they sought to forget their frustrations in Broadway's night life.

Almost overnight each of them suddenly became possessed of luxurious apartments, bank accounts, expensive furs and jewelry. Wealthy men about town were seen with them night after night in night clubs and at private parties.

It was this haunting of luxury that, apparently, lured each of them to circumstances that somehow led to death. Furs and jewelry were taken away by the murderers of Dorothy and Louise. And before the strangled Vivian's body was tossed into a Bronx park, her slayers took a $2,500 diamond ring and a $2,000 fur coat.

After their deaths secret events of their lives were exposed. It was revealed Miss Lawson was not the successful singer people assumed she was. Yet she owned a valuable block of industrial stocks and bonds.

Miss King had become involved with a band of blackmailers who wanted to employ her to force her wealthy admirer to pay $100,000 for silence. She was an acquaintance of a man known as "The Hawk" who forced wealthy women to drink a hypnotic liquid and then robbed them. Perhaps it was blackmailers who feared her, but seventeen days after her murder the case was officially entered as an unsolved mystery.

Miss Gordon's record has more of the criminal taint attached. She had once been sentenced to Bedford reformatory, yet she was a friend of prominent men and always lived in smart hotels and apartments. She had threatened to expose alleged "frame-ups" by members of the police vice squad.

She left behind a diary which gave a complete and graphic account of her life. She hated some men and threatened revenge. She spoke of blackmail cases and it appeared that extortion was one of her eggs; profitable art she practiced. She feared other men and believed that she was in constant danger of being murdered.

Laemmle Sees Movie Advance

NEW YORK, March 13 (UP)—Twenty-five years from now, motion picture theaters will present pictures direct from the studios by television, Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Pictures Corporation, believes. He is celebrating his quarter-century in the film world.

Laemmle predicts that picture advancement in the next 25 years will rival the imagination of Jules Verne. "News weekly films will be sent by television," he prophesied. "Hence, a shipwreck in the China Sea will be broadcast to all the world within a few hours after it is photographed. Within a few years, school houses will be equipped with television sets which will permit famous educators, surgeons, musicians and lecturers to make a motion picture and then have it broadcast to all the world while they themselves take up other work."

"We are living in an age of miracles and the imaginary developments of today will be actualities to our children. The great major changes in film entertainment that have occurred in recent years are nothing compared to those to come."

Quarrel Ends As Husband Killed

NICE, France, March 13. (UP)—Mrs. Fred G. Nixon Nirdlinger, 26, formerly Charlotte Nash, was arrested late tonight on the charge of murdering her husband, a theatrical manager.

The police charged she shot her husband at their private villa on the fashionable Promenade des Anglais. The police said Nirdlinger's body was riddled with several bullets fired from a revolver. His widow is described as an attractive blonde born in St. Louis, Mo. It was understood that she was either the third or fourth wife of the theatre man.

According to the police the shooting was the climax of a quarrel between husband and wife which started as she was studying Italian. The husband was quoted as having said "you just want to learn that for your Italian friends."

It became menacing, it was said, whereupon Mrs. Nardlinger grabbed a revolver and fired twice, the second shot proving fatal.

GUIDING YOUR CHILD SOCIETY

By MRS. AGNES LYNE HIS PLAY

Mothers and fathers in the last decade have come to realize the importance of play in the child's development. They have learned that his play is his work, that the quality of his play is a vital factor in his intellectual and social development.

In planning family living arrangements, adequate space for play has become a primary consideration, and one for which the luxury of a charmingly furnished sun porch or an extra room for adult use may well be sacrificed. Every child should have a sunny spacious room where he may play without the interference of adults.

In selecting his play materials, the thoughtful mother consults the carefully compiled lists gotten out by experts who know that there must be plenty of good playthings of many varieties. Play materials have a definite place in the budget. Another requirement for proper play is the companionship of other children. In his own playroom or in the back yard, the child should have as many visitors as he likes. He should be encouraged also to visit the homes of his playmates, so long as the mother is sure that the children come to no harm. Attendance at a nursery school provides companionship under ideal conditions.

Still another requirement is the opportunity to play alone for some time each day, and at no time to be actually dependent upon adult attention.

Although it is true that children are for the most part best left to themselves in their play, except where there is danger of physical hurt, the value of wise supervision must not be underestimated. Many a time an encouraging word or a bit of help over a last obstacle serves to stimulate the child to new achievements.

The Kentucky court of appeals has ruled that state funds on deposit in an insolvent bank are entitled to no preference over private deposits in the distribution of assets.

Fewer Chicago children were killed by automobiles in 1929 than any year since 1919.
