

FORMER SECRETARY FALL'S CONVICTION IS AFFIRMED

THREE RIVERS, N. M., April 6. (AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, said tonight that it is remotely possible, but not probable that he will appeal to the supreme court from today's decision of the District of Columbia court of appeals affirming his conviction of accepting an oil lease bribe. Fall said his decision on final appeal will await examination of a copy of the court's opinion from Washington by his lawyers.

The Associated Press reporter found Fall at his Tres Rios ranch a weary old man, his hair white as snow on the Sierra Blanca mountains overlooking his home. A Washington court also affirmed the conviction of Henry M. Blackmer, former official of the Midwest Refining company, who was fined $60,000 for contempt of court in refusing to return from France to testify for the government in the trials of Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil man.

Fall was convicted of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil operator, to influence his signing of a lease on the naval oil reserves at Elk Hills, California.

At Denver, Karl Schuyler, counsel for Blackmer, said an appeal will be taken in his case, asserting that lawyers generally regard this as one of the most important jurisdictional cases of the century.

King-Graham Wedding Gives Vegas Surprise

The wedding of Mr. Rollin Graham and Miss Louise King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. King, which was announced here Sunday, proved of great interest to a host of friends of the young couple, who had succeeded in stealing a march on Las Vegas, and kept the secret for three weeks.

The marriage took place three weeks ago at Goldfield. Although the engagement was known to intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Graham, announcement had been made that the wedding would not take place for several months.

Mr. Graham is associated with J. P. King, his father-in-law, in the Banty Garage, which they recently purchased from the Fred Remick estate.

Mrs. Graham has been secretary to District Attorney Harley A. Harmon for the past six or seven years, and has gained an enviable reputation as a legal stenographer.

It is said that she will retain her position until the late fall, at least, after which she will make her home at Banty with her husband.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

By DUANE HENNESSY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
HOLLYWOOD, April 6. (AP)—The war goes on! But it is only a movie war on the huge Warner Brothers ranch in San Fernando valley.

In an open space of 100 acres, workers tilled for many weeks, digging deep trenches in the rock-filled California soil. Barber wire entanglements were constructed, ruins of shattered houses and barns moved in trees stripped of leaves and charred and blackened debris of broken airplanes, abandoned equipment and uniforms scattered about.

Next, powder men moved in and blew shell holes all over the place. Then the ground was mined for the explosions of battle.

The batter is on in the night! For seven miles around residents can feel the quiver of the earth as the charges are set off.

In the hands of one man rests the lives of the hundreds of thousands of men who are waging this make-believe war. The man is Harry Redmond, chief powderman for Warner Bros. First National.

He sits calmly back of the big instrument board to which hundreds of electric lines lead from the various mines of the battlefield. Clad in an old sweater and soft felt hat, in striking contrast to the uniforms of the soldiers, he is the calmest man on the field. He has to be.

Hundreds of huge sun arcs flood the field. Burning boards provide smoke and huge electric flash torches on the sidelines occasionally light up the surrounding country for a mile in each direction.

The cameras are turning. Soldiers make-believe soldier who has a bit has been told where to move. A soldier falls directly over a mine near the camera. That particular level is passed up by Redmond, who sees the mistake and does not fire. He has never seriously injured a man in 10 years of movie powder work, making some of the most spectacular battle scenes in film history.

Redmond reaches the final levers and buttons on the board. A bugler blows retreat. The cameras stop grinding. Prop men, also clad in regulation uniforms so they may dash into the picture to rescue an injured man without spoiling the scene, rush onto the field to look for casualties.

Doug Fairbanks, Jr., comes out of the fray, dons his raccoon coat (for southern California nights are chilly) and asks for a cigarette.

Bears in Lincoln park, Chicago, their habituating instincts overcome by civilized food, may be tempted from their sleep at any time all winter long by a shoulder of mutton.

Spring Ensemble

Black and white shepherd plaid is used to fashion the dress and scarf of this smart spring ensemble by Bonwit-Teller. The collarless black serge coat buttons straight up the front in most severe style. Beaumont, Tex., millers are urging the public to buy woolen goods available to 1 1/2 cents a pound but declared to be equal in food value to the first grade.

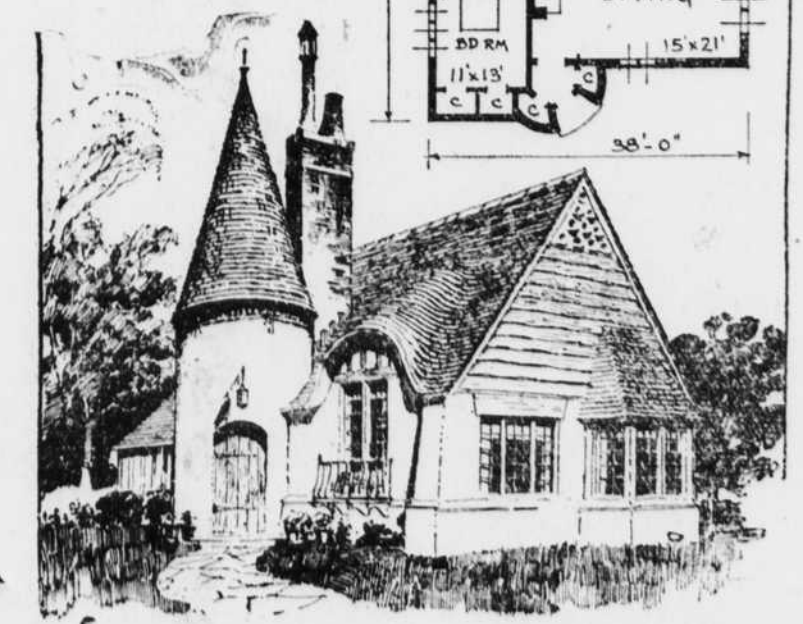

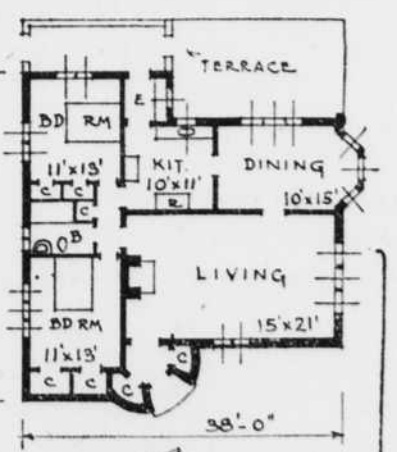

SOCIETY

Mrs. Charles Goumound entertained Saturday afternoon with a bridge luncheon, the luncheon being served at the Oasis. Cards were played at the residence. Present were Mesdames John F. Cahlan, Charles D. Keeler, James Powders, Clair Wadsworth, Ferman King, Darrell Dayton, Vincent Cobley, Vern Perry, Robert Griffith, Roscoe Thomas, Henry Stevens, Walker Pico, Joe Tietz, J. R. Hemphill, Nell Delquist and Miss Alice Henderson. Prizes were won by Mrs. Keeler, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Dayton. Decorations were in Easter colors of lavender and yellow.

Those enjoying a picnic Sunday at Moapa Warm Springs were Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Keeler, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cahlan, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Ferman King, Miss Alice Henderson and Mr. Harvey.

Miss Maude Frazier entertained very delightfully Saturday with a bridge luncheon in honor of Mrs. V. Adams of Reno, who spent the week-end in Las Vegas visiting her daughter, Miss Eva Adams. Purple iris were used effectively about the living room. Mrs. Al Cahlan received the prize for high score and Mrs. Hancock the consolation, while the honor guest received a beautiful picture of Boulder canyon. Those enjoying the occasion were Mesdames Adams, Nesbitt, Burwell, McCulley, Waiters, Hancock, Park, Ferron, Schuyler, Ferguson, Martin, Cahlan and Squires.

CHATEAU INSPIRES CHARMING HOUSE IN THE MODERN MOOD

No less alluring because of its reduced size, this little cottage of French chateau inspiration may well tempt the prospective builder. In it are grouped a few of the units of design from the old French chateaux, so that the house—no matter which view is chosen—will present an interesting silhouette. At the same time, the plan is one having economy as its aim. Interesting is the grouping of the chimney with the entrance tower and the adjoining large living room window with its circular motive over the lintels. The motive is large enough to allow the use of either wood shingles or tile such as used in France. The end gable is covered with rough-hewn clapboard. There is little half-timber effect, but enough to give the quality of the old French. An iron balcony in front of the large window of the living room would add to the effect, also height-
