GUIDING YOUR CHILD

By MRS. AGNES LYNE DRESSING THE BABY

Many a baby has its first temper tantrum during the process of getting dressed. No wonder! It is no fun to be turned and twisted, and regardless of one's wishes have one's arms and legs grabbed and shoved into sleeves and drawers, to have clothing pulled over one's head, shutting one's eyes and pressing down over one's nose and ears.

All this gives a feeling of helplessness and is particularly irritating if done quickly and roughly. It is worth while to make a fine art of dressing the baby, since on his cheerful acceptance of being dressed depends his willingness a little later to be co-operative and later still to take the responsibility for dressing himself. Handling him slowly and gently, drawing his attention to what is happening and thus making the whole affair a time of happy companionship with mother, helps to establish a pleasant feeling toward the dressing situation.

It is important, too, that his clothing be such that it may be put on and off easily and comfortably. By the time he is a year old, the baby shows that he knows just what to expect by stretching out his arms when the sleeve is held open for him, or thrusting his foot into the stocking. It is worth while taking the time to let him do this and to show him how pleased you are at his effort.

Spanish Actors Don't Mingle In Hollywood Social Cliques

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There may be cliques among some of Hollywood's stars, but not in the colony of Spanish actors.

"They're just 'one big happy family'—one of the groups that have sprung up here to appear in talkies made in foreign tongues.

And these Castilian players, with their musical speech and old world customs, have brought an unique charm to Hollywood social gatherings. Music, singing and dancing are their chief diversions, and they don't favor bridge and backgammon parties.

Conchita Montenegro, who will appear in English as well as Spanish versions of talkies, is the social leader of the colony, which includes Alma Real, Dolores del Rio, Rosita Moreno, Barry Noron, Ramon Novarro, Mona Maris, Celia Montalvan, Antonio Moreno, and Virginia Fabregas (a Spanish Marie Dressler).

Many Spanish pictures are supervised by Gregorio Martinez-Sierra, author of "The Cradle Song" and numerous other plays which have been produced on the American stage.

Another recent arrival in the colony is Catalina Barrena, called the Ethel Barrymore of the Spanish theater. Senecia Barrena appeared in a repertoire of plays on Broadway several years ago when she was on a world tour.

Holidays which slip by Americans unobserved, but which are cherished festivals in the old country, are celebrated enthusiastically by the foreign players even though they are far from their homeland.

YOUR BRAIN and YOUR HEALTH

By DR. IRLAND B. ALFORD AVERAGE INTELLIGENCE

The tests which Terman has found the average adult should pass, try out our concentration and reasoning. The grown-up should have used his mind enough to be able to dwell on and grasp the meaning of situations.

First, the definition of words was found by Terman to be the most accurate single test of mental ability. Go through the dictionary selecting one hundred words at random, say, one from each page, and the percentage of correct definitions you can give is a fair index of your intellectual capacity.

Multiply the number you know by one hundred eighty and the product will be the total number of words in your vocabulary.

Next, the grown-up should be able to give the lesson taught by common fables. Then he must give the distinction between laziness and idleness, evolution and revolution, poverty and misery, character and reputation.

He is supposed to repeat backwards six figures spoken to him. Then he must repeat without error 23 syllables read to him, such as: "Walter likes very much to go to..."

There are three problems in understanding: (1) Draw the path a cannon ball follows. (2) Suppose you put a five-pound fish into a bucket of water weighing forty-five pounds. What will the whole thing then weigh? (3) Why is it harder to hit a seven mark with a rifle at one hundred yards than at fifty yards?

Finally there are the box problems which you must solve in a half minute. "This box contains two smaller boxes and each of the smaller contains a tiny box. How many boxes in all?" The answer is five. "How many if each of the smaller boxes contains two tiny boxes?"

Dolores Rene, Seattle baby, went to the zoo one day last week and tried to get Amos 'n' Andy, diminutive bear cubs, to provide motive power for her kiddy car. Amos, on the left, seems to be telling the world that he doesn't think much of the idea, while Andy is still suffering from his old desire to lay down and rest. The two cubs are six weeks old, and were brought to the Seattle zoo by a woodsman after their mother had been killed.
