MICRO RAY IS LATEST IN RADIO

HEILIN, May 19. (AP)—Attempts are being made here by the postal ministry in collaboration with several radio companies to explore the realm of the ultra short waves for the benefit of Germany's radio fans.

Thorough-going tests on seven meters have led to some success, Knaeris believe, that it is only a question of time that regular programs will be broadcast on ultra short or micro-rays.

Ultra short waves differ from higher waves in that they can only be received in a small area. Tests have shown that the usual disturbances emanating from street cars or electric apparatus have not the slightest influence on reception.

The only trouble still to be overcome is the localization of the ignition sparks of automobiles. But the influence of the ignition spark was only noticed when the receiving set was placed in the immediate neighborhood of a running motor.

The postal ministry plans to erect a number of ultra short wave senders at the outskirts of the big cities.

Ultra short wave receivers can be had on the Berlin market at prices ranging from $10 to $50.

CHICAGO, May 19. (AP)—A Chicago radio station has a "song" program of 15 minutes each Friday evening.

GUIDING YOUR CHILD

By MRS. AGNES LYNE TRAINING CONCENTRATION. The capacity for concentrating on a task and carrying it through to successful completion is so important that so-called "schools for concentration" have sprung into existence and certain correspondence schools feature the development of concentration as a definite part of their courses.

The degree to which this type of education is successful is at least debatable, but it is certain that the right sort of training even early enough helps much in developing an individual who will be able to concentrate effectively.

The first important rule is never to interrupt a child unnecessarily. When, for instance, the baby is playing with a rattle, he should not be distracted with having the rattle chains of a rubber doll brought to his attention. When the toddler is building his blocks he should not be necessarily called away. The right of attention to one thing at a time and of thoroughly finishing one undertaking before taking up another is developed from just such humble beginnings.

The approval and appreciation given to a finished task also are valuable since they tend to make the child appreciate the value of his finished work. It may be nothing more than a hole that he has dug or a tower that he has completed, but to him they are jobs successfully carried through and they should be recognized as such. Excessive criticism, excessive dependence upon adult attention, fatigue and over-stimulation are apt to interfere with the child's capacity for thorough-going play and therefore with the development of his ability to concentrate.

When the training of the early years is such as to allow the child to give all his attention to whatever he is doing, later on he will be able to concentrate effectively upon the task of adult life.

SNOW BIRD TYPE PICKED FOR RACE

LOS ANGELES, May 19. (AP)—The one man or monogamy sail boat to be used in the 1932 Olympic games here will be a craft of the Snow Bird classification, Dr. Allyn Squires, representing the Olympic committee and the North American Yacht Racing Union, has announced.

The other two races will be in the eight-meter and six-meter classes, as heretofore. Under Olympic rules, these boats of which there are 65 on the Pacific coast, will be provided by the United States. Each entrant will draw lots for a set of sails, to be used for the seven races of the series, using a different boat each day but the same canvas. The craft measures 19 feet.

TELEVISOR, MADE OF JUNK, COSTS $15 - AND IT WORKS

Ed. L. Cowan of Athens, Ga., who studied radio by mail, has made a television set for only $15. A rear view shows motor, scanning disk and neon lamp.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 19. (AP)—Ed. L. Cowan of Athens, Ga., who studied radio and electrical engineering in his spare time, has built a television reproducer at a cost of $15.

Silhouettes and halftone three-inch squares are received from stations W2XK and W2XCD, Washington, D. C., and Pascon, N. J., and from W2EJR, New York.

The televiser was built upon an ordinary radio receiver. Odd pieces of material, including an old electric fan motor, were used. The receiver is a superheterodyne with short-wave adapter, and the televiser consists of a neon lamp, a magnifying lens, a scanning disk and a motor.

Television signals picked up by the short-wave adapter are passed up to the receiver. The tube, located behind the disk which revolves between tube and lens, reproduces the current as light impulses.

Cowan now is at work on another set embodying several improvements. He has been working with radio apparatus since 1915 when he was a high school student. He first began experimenting with television in the fall of 1923, and received a few distinct silhouettes as early as the spring of 1929. He has rebuilt his present set six times.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

Slip Madigan, football coach at St. Mary's college, thinks freshman football competition is on its way out on the Pacific coast.

There is no point in freshmen teams playing other universities, said the former star guard of Notre Dame. "They have already found that out in the middle west. Notre Dame and others have done away with freshmen competition. The Pacific coast is bound to follow. Freshmen competition defeats its own purpose."

"A freshmen coach strives to find his strongest lineup as soon as possible. He builds up for successive games, endeavoring to win as many as possible. He thinks he is successful if he wins the championship, but he has not done the job for which he was intended. The freshmen coach should bear in mind that his principal duty is to instill fundamentals in the minds of future varsity players."

What a boy comes up from high school, he is not prepared to play college football. There is no big gap between the games. He must learn his fundamentals as a freshman.

FRESH AND FUNDAMENTALS. "Much of Rocky's success is due to his insistence that the freshmen play no intercollegiate games. He wanted his freshmen coaches to teach his men to make every movement count. They had to pass a ball a certain way every time until it became routine. And they became immediate varsity prospects because during their freshman days they learned these valuable lessons instead of worrying about winning games."

"Certainly I have no kick coming on freshmen football because we have had two marvelous fresh teams in the last two years, beating everybody. I simply believe it would be a great thing if all coast colleges simultaneously ditched this competition. Furthermore, freshmen games do not pay for themselves."

WILL FERRELL REPEAT? Wesley Ferrell, still a young man, has a chance to take stand among the immortals of baseball. The young North Carolinian has turned in a no-hit game for Cleveland, the first for a Cleveland since the late Addie Joss blanked the White Sox 1 to 0 without permitting an enemy batsman to hit a first base, more than 20 years ago.

No-hit games have a large element of luck connected with them, but Wesley might pitch another some time and rank with the very few who have won turned the trick. Available records include the names of only one man who pitched three no-hit games in the major leagues. Lawrence J. Corcoran of the Chicago Nationals performed this extraordinary feat in 1880, 1882 and 1884.

Among the pitchers who turned the opposition without a hit in two games are James H. Gallivan of Buffalo (National league) in 1889 and 1891, William H. Terry of Brooklyn in 1886 and 1888, Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants in 1901 and 1905 and Dorgan T. Coy of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1908. Not only did Coy Young have a long stretch between his noteworthy performances, but he pitched one in each league.

There have been few no-hit games in modern times. There were two in 1923, one in 1924, 1925 and 1926, none in 1927 or 1928, one in 1929 and none in 1930.
