

CORADETTI TO MOVE INTO HIS NEW HOME

Growth of Business in Las Vegas Tribute To Hard Work

With the completion of his new $30,000 plant on North Main street, Al Coradetti of the Vegas Cleaning Works makes his latest forward movement in the growth of a business which started small, but has been growing every year.

From a small one man plant started by Coradetti in 1916, this cleaner establishment has made a success by keeping just a little ahead of the growth of the city, anticipating with each improvement, the needs of the community.

The latest improvements guarantee to the people of Las Vegas the most up-to-date service in all lines of cleaning, including the cleaning of rugs, perlers, drapes, and wholesale work.

One-day service is given, and when the completed job is returned, there is no odor to linger for several days.

FIGHTS DIFFICULTIES
Fighting against all sorts of difficulties, Al Coradetti may be termed one of the really successful business men of Las Vegas. He went up against plenty of discouragement, however, one of the severest being the occasion when he received such terrible burns that his life was despaired of.

It was not the kind to give in easily, though, and through many months he fought a grim fight from which he emerged victor after a year of pain and torture.

EXCELLENT SERVICE
Besides providing his patrons with service just a little better than that ordinarily found in towns of the same size, the Vegas Cleaning Works has been an important factor in our industrial life, providing employment for many persons. At the present time the payroll amounts to $1,500 a month.

Congratulations and success to Al Coradetti and the Vegas Cleaning Works.

FEDERAL MEN ORGANIZE CLUB

John H. Wittwer, university extension and farm bureau agent, was elected president of the recently-formed organization of eight separate branches of federal activity in southern Nevada. United States Commissioner W. J. Hooper was made vice president and Postmaster C. K. Ryerse, secretary-treasurer.

The purpose of the organization is to bring the various forms of governmental activity in Las Vegas and community, into closer contact with each other and to insure a more complete harmony in their workings. A similar organization has been formed in Reno.

Among those present at the organization meeting were: Walker R. Young, construction engineer; Hoover dam; Bert M. Weaver, assistant Las Vegas postmaster; Leonard Blood, government employment bureau agent; Carl Swanhelm, representative of the U. S. land office; Indian agent Pocock; and George Hardman, agricultural extension agent.

LAUNCHES STRAW HAT SEASON

When it came time for straw hat season in Seattle, the launching ceremonies were put over in a big way, witness the huge straw hat on which Helene Madison, Seattle's famous girl swimmer, is about to ride down the ways.

FLIERS' FIANCEE NEEDS COURAGE: GETS AIR THRILLS BY PROXY WAITING

ALBANY, May 19 (AP)—None will follow the flight of Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn, in their attempt to circumnavigate the world, with deeper emotions than Miss Mary Ellen Farley, Albany society girl fiancee of Herndon.

Miss Farley hopes to be at New York to bid Herndon and his flying partner goodbye when they wing east, Europe their goal. She said she would "certainly" be there to greet them when they speed out of the west at the end of their journey.

The 23-year-old daughter of a former Democratic state chairman and the wealthy Princeton graduate will be married soon after the around-the-world flight.

The Albany girl shares Herndon's enthusiasm for flying and is almost as optimistic that the two men will break the Graf Zeppelin's record of circling the globe—almost as optimistic.

"But I'd rather not talk about that," she remarked, when asked if she had any fears regarding the long air trip.

The romance of the tall, blond, low-voiced young woman and Herndon began at his brother's wedding in New York three years ago. Miss Farley attended her Finch school roommate, Miss Katherine Converse, of Valdosta, Ga., and Herndon was best man for his brother, John P. Herndon.

Mary Ellen Farley, Albany society girl, will be married to Hugh Herndon when he returns from his projected round-the-world flight.

The wedding was, in May, the month Herndon set for the beginning of his adventure with Pangborn.

SCOTLAND YARD IS NEMESIS OF CRIMINALS WORLD OVER

EDITOR'S NOTE: Scotland Yard! The words bring terror to the hearts of arch-criminals and killers, a step nearer to the shadow of the gallows. Following is the first of a series of three articles describing the activities of this, perhaps, the greatest group of man-hunters in the world.

By ARTHUR F. DEGREVE
United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON, May 19. (AP)—In an atmosphere of bombings, robberies and riots, Scotland Yard, relentless nemesis of criminals, was born here 33 years ago.

Since then its stern, determined agents have penetrated jungles where death lurks at every step; braved the scorching heat of desert wastes and the dangers of the world's many underworlds to bring to the gallows or to prison, criminals who broke the laws of the British Empire.

NEARLY ALWAYS CAUGHT
Scotland Yard may not always get its man, as the famous Canadian Mounted Police boast of, but one who kills under the British flag has only the most slender chance of escaping the noose.

It may not be this year, in five years or the "Yard" never sleeps and, criminals say, never forgets.

The powerful agency was a puny child at birth and only the faith of a few far-seeing Britons kept it alive.

Even today, despite the respect in which it is held all over the world, the "Yard" is a popular target of critics and press. If a few members of an American police force are found guilty of irregularities they are dismissed and evens are satisfied.

INTEGRITY MAINTAINED
Not so, however, with Scotland Yard. Any serious mistake made in a murder case or any irregularities in the force of 900 men that make up this famous body, becomes to the press another "Scotland Yard scandal" and editorials that the faith of the people in the police has been severely shaken appear immediately.

Thus it was that one of the finest detectives employed here in 1833 was dismissed from the force "for carrying concealment and deceit into the intercourse of private life" because of his activities in the National Political Union of the working classes. A committee of the House of Commons immediately ordered that any activities by plain-clothes men outside of those to detect and prevent law violations "were most abhorrent to the feeling of the people and most alien to the spirit of the constitution."

Also there is considerable discontent and distrust in the uniformed ranks where it was feared the detectives would be used as spies. The unrest was no, aided by the fact that the pay of the plain-clothes man was higher than that of his colleague in uniform.

ARRESTS ROSE
These and other difficulties were surmounted, however, and the manner in which the new body of police justified their existence is revealed in the figures showing that arrests rose in number from 13,129 in 1879 to 17,522 in 1883. There began a slump in the number of brutal murders and crimes of other serious nature, which, however, was only temporary.

It was in the nineties that the "Yard" laid the foundation of the enviable reputation it holds today. This, observers believe, was due to the greatly augmented force precipitated by the revolting "Jack the Ripper" murders, in 1888, in London's East End. Women were slashed to death in a cruel manner while walking down dimly lighted streets.

All the skill of the souths failed to result in the fiend's capture and high officials of Scotland Yard now maintain he was a maniac and died by his own hand.

TOMORROW: The second article of the series on Scotland Yard describes how the horrible "Jack the Ripper" murders were responsible for starting Scotland Yard on the road to its present-day efficiency.

CRAMPTON TO ARRIVE TODAY

J. R. Crampton in charge of Boulder City administration, expects to arrive in Vegas this morning after an absence of several weeks in Washington.

After spending the day in his office here, he plans to leave this evening for Los Angeles where, Wednesday evening, he will address the convention of the California State Bankers' association.

LAS VEGAS WOMAN IN BETTER HEALTH

Mrs. C. E. Bulette returned home Monday night and reports that Mrs. Mal E. Riley, prominent Las Vegas woman, is well on the way to recovery. Physicians, according to Mrs. Bulette, expect that Mrs. Riley will fully recover her health.
