

GUIDING YOUR CHILD

BURDEN OF OBLIGATION
By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

"My mother says she has given up the best years of her life for me," a 13-year-old girl confided sadly, "and now I've got to go on to high school and it's going to cost father more money than ever, she says."

"I suppose I'll never be able to pay them back."

A strange confession, certainly to come from the lips of a child, but the feeling behind it is, I am sure, by no means unusual.

Parenthood today demands more sacrifices than ever before. Preparing the young for life becomes each year a longer, more exacting and more expensive business.

During the child's first years, modern mothers are more tired down than in the days when there always was some female relative in the home to share the responsibility.

Prolonged and costly training is necessary for both boys and girls if they are to have any sort of chance to make their way in a sharply competitive world.

Time, energy and money—parents have been called upon to give these as never before.

Some carry it gladly, finding compensation in the developing young lives about them. Others, more selfish, less mature, permit themselves to grumble and to vent their resentment by letting their children feel heavily the burden for which they are in no way to blame.

Whatever sacrifices parenthood entails, it is not fair to let the child be aware of them as a depressing and humiliating debt. The child should be permitted to feel his obligation only as an increasing realization that it is up to him to make the best possible use of all his opportunities.

The only return he should ever think of making is in trying to become a good, happy and successful person.

SCREEN LIFE IN HOLLYWOOD

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD—Now that the movie gangster and underworld cycle is about over, the studios are wondering what kind of pictures to make next.

There is only one story glorifying the American hoodlum in production now; two months ago there were more than two dozen.

Thoughts are being turned toward Nevada and its six weeks' divorce law as the newest one.

Best note in Americana. Four pictures with a Reno locale and easy divorce as their theme are in preparation. One of them starring Wheeler and Woolsey will be a burlesque.

That is the only apparent trend at present.

Box office reports on "Skippy" indicate that pictures about youngsters, for adult as well as for child entertainment, are money making propositions. (As a result of his work in this picture, Jackie Cooper is now getting $1,500 a week from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

MUD SLINGING
The scene required a group of racketeers to "throw a bucket of mud over the stock of a newsdealer who dared to play up the rival paper on his stand. Real mud was tried, but it was too thick and besides it photographed more like thin malted milk than mud.

Experiments were tried with clay and black chalk. Neither was just right. Then a properly boy mixed up a solution of thick cocoa, and hat turned the trick.

The actor playing the part of the newsdealer said he never took cocoa, one coffee, but no one paid any attention to his dietary demands.

SERIALS AGAIN
A year or so ago three companies made serials, but the reception given them was not especially encouraging. With few exceptions large theatres refused to book character-a-week pictures, and it was said then, the revenue from the smaller neighborhood houses was insufficient.

In the face of this recent experiment a small firm is making a serial with two of the chief players of "Trader Horn" featured. They are Edwina Booth and Harry Carey.

Former $1.75 Per Day Rail Laborer Voices Government's Wage Warning

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON (AP)—A man who 30 years ago was "highballing" freight trains for $1.75 a day now is voicing the government's warning to industry of what he terms of labor, who was known for years in railroad brotherhood circles as a "master mediator," faces the task of persuading industrial chieftains to keep their pledges to President Hoover to maintain existing wage levels.

Doak and his assistants in the labor department are confronted with problems, aggravated by the depression and unemployment, perhaps as serious as any in the history of governmental activity in the labor field.

Besides the explanation of its job finding service, the department keeps a constant check on unemployment and serves as a conciliator between labor and capital.

Doak brings to the job at hand a knowledge of labor economics acquired in 27 years' experience as a leader in the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

The first secretary of labor born in the United States, he is a native of Rural Retreat, Va.

Young Doak attended public school and a business college before he started railroading at 18 as a switchman in the yards at Bluefield, W. Va.

One of his most prized possessions is an old lunch basket which he used while "herding" freight cars.

He early affiliated with the Republican party, and in the 1928 national campaign he was director of the labor bureau of the Republican national committee.

CLERIC PREDICTS CHANGE IN U. S.

CHICAGO, June 5 (AP)—The same industrial and social readjustments that have taken place in Russia will occur in England and America, it was predicted here by the Rev. T. A. E. Davey, canon of Liverpool cathedral, England.

"What has gone on in Russia will go on in England within the next five or ten years, and in time probably in America," he said.

"England is going to make great industrial readjustments which will bring about the complete enfranchisement of the masses.

"Theories which before the war seemed largely preposterous and radical, today are rapidly coming to be seriously considered by the thinking people.

"The 1926 rail strike in England showed that the working people of England had risen solidly to stand together as a group for the things they believe to be right and this same sentiment will invade America in time."
