TRIO OF STARS AT EL PORTAL

Inaugurating a new policy of presenting two complete performances each night to accommodate the crowds, the Airdome theatre, now featuring Ruth Leslie's Hollywood Pepper girl review, announced last night that the shows would start at 7:30 and 9:30 p. m. The Crimson Flashes, adagio dancing team, who have just completed a contract with Fanchon and Marco, are being featured, and those who have seen the team in action highly praise the work of these youngsters. Making good the promise of the management, a baby will be given away Monday night free.

Because of asserted difficulties in interpretation of the Spanish language, the preliminary examination of Joe Garcia, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, before Judge Frank M. Ryan in the justice court was continued until Monday. F. A. Wells appeared for Garcia and District Attorney Harley A. Harmon for the state. Counsel agreed that they could make no headway and the case was continued. Garcia is accused of slashing Smith's neck in an alley fight.

Three of the screen's outstanding comedy favorites are featured in "Laugh and Get Rich," Radio Pictures' breezy film hit, today only at El Portal. They are Edna May Oliver, legitimate stage star who scored sensationally in "Cimarron," Hugh Herbert, one of the fastest-coming character actors, and Dorothy Lee, diminutive favorite of film audiences. The trio romps through a decidedly bright and merry story in "Laugh and Get Rich," hailed as one of the most amusing entertainments of the season.
