Charles Backler, repeater on the Victoria, B. C., Times, stands head and shoulders above the scribe fraternity - and that's no joke. Charles, 19, and still growing, rises to the remarkable height of 6 feet 8 inches. Above he appears with the Times news editor, Archie Wills, himself a sixfeater. In addition to his ambitien to become a star reporter, young Backler also aspires to reach the seven-foot mark and cinch his title of "the world's tallest reporter."

tournament have indications pointed to such a large contingent of college s'ars as real contenders Among these are Albert Wheeler of Vanderbilt university, Southern conference college king, who eliminated Spicer in 1929 after the Memphis ace had shot a brilliant 69 to win medal honors in the qualifying George Rush of New Orleans, former Louisiana state champion, whose father, R. B. Rush won the Dixie title in 1916, and his Tulane university team mate, Jessa Rainwater jr., present Louisiana champion, together with Wilbur Oakes, jr., form a formidable trio.

Oakes will be playing over his home course which he has negotlated in the high 60's.

Sam Perry, still in his early twen-ties and southern champion in 1929, will return to the Dixie wars after a year's absence. He passed up the southern las: year to represent Birmingham and the University of Alabama in the national collegiate
