

RENO LADS HAVE NEW RING RACKET

Visions of recovering a valuable platinum wedding ring from the bed of the Truckee at the Center street bridge caused a man recently to spend an hour or more with a fishing pole and hook and line vainly endeavoring to snare the gleaming band from the bottom of the river, says the Reno Journal.

Finally he gave up his fishing when the two small boys who had rented him their fishing pole volunteered to wade into the river and deliver the ring upon the payment of 10 cents each. The offer was accepted and the ring was soon in the hands of the prospector.

He could have purchased several of them for the amount he paid the boys if he had gone to Mr. Woodworth's famous establishment. "That stuff about divorces throwing wedding rings into the river is all hokum," he snorted as he marched away.

The boys, the ring back in their possession, tossed it into the river again and patiently waited for another victim.

Seven Years of Plenty

Is my slogan for Las Vegas—and GOLD MINING—we have had seven lean years—but that is of the past—we are forging ahead—and prosperity has come to stay with us—I'll say so.

Charles Topping

offers something WORTHWHILE in these worth while times in Nevada.

My plan of investment practically eliminates the element of chance—it still has all the speculative features to make it attractive.

It's a two-way shot—the BUILDING of a RESORT and CASINO and the actual MINING and shipping of GOLD ORE.

El Dorado Gold Eagle Mines, Ltd.

the Nevada corporation of which I am an officer and general manager are planning to not only ship ORE but to build a RESORT and CASINO at NOB HILL!

NOB HILL is fifty miles from Las Vegas—overlooks EL DORADO canyon—the mighty COLORADO RIVER—the BOULDER DAM project. It is the scenic spot of Southern Nevada—from an elevation of 4500 feet you can also look into three states—it has been well termed the GRAND CANYON of NEVADA.

Of all the sight seeing trips around Las Vegas, NOB HILL surpasses them all.

As to the MINING program outlined by this company—I would say that all of the company's claims are highly mineralized and I fully expect to put the company on a shipping basis within the next six months.

The last ORE that I shipped from NOB HILL was in 1926 and I don't intend to let the year 1931 close without putting this property on a shipping basis.

My first offering of shares to my friends—and to the public will be at TEN CENTS per share (par value $1.00)

I shall be glad to accept your order on the ten payment plan if you are not in a position to pay all cash.

I want $100, $200, $500 and $1,000 subscriptions.

Here is the attractive part of my proposition to you—with every order fully paid—I will also deliver for the amount of their subscription one of the corporation's duly authorized ORE NOTES—this issue of ORE NOTES pays 6 per cent interest and is liquidated from 50 per cent of all ORE SHIPMENTS made by this corporation.

When these ORE NOTES are paid off plus 6 per cent you retain your stock interest in the corporation which has cost you nothing.

I am hoping that I have interested you so that you will want to write for full particulars. If you can interview me personally I would appreciate it.

But better still send me $10.00 today and make a start.

GUIDING YOUR CHILD

By MRS. AGNES LYNE
FEELING OF INSECURITY

A sense of security is as essential for good wholesome behavior as health and companionship and play.

Children who feel insecure because they feel themselves to be "out of love" or "less than a rival brother or sister" show this insecurity in ways that often appear as showing off, selfishness, or a violent temper.

They brag loudly when they meet new people, they insist on holding the center of the stage or they fly into terrible rages when frustrated.

Any or all of these often are only different reactions to a deep, unconscious sense of insecurity. Such behavior is a kind of whistling in the dark, the child's way of defending himself from his loneliness and inferiority.

The insecure child often cannot help but be a very trying and naughty one. It is hard for him to be good or to make himself agreeable to others. He has to be conspicuous to keep up his courage.

Many school disciplinary problems may be traced back to factors in the child's home life which have put him on the defensive. If his parents gain insight into his difficulty and take steps to remedy the underlying cause, he may regain his poise and agreeable outlook on life with very little recourse to the negative measures of punishment. Indeed, punishment and disapproval are apt to make things worse instead of better.

Children ordinarily are not highly demonstrative in their affections. Much conscious display in terms of caresses and endearments, when it is not simply a superficial imitation of adult behavior, generally may be taken as a sign of insecurity.

A child who does not doubt his parents' love is able to greet them even after prolonged absence with evident joy but without intense emotional excitement.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE GROUP OPPOSES BOULDER PARK IDEA

"TOURIST BAIT"

In conclusion, it is the opinion of the committee that the agitation in favor of the proposed national park has been fostered by clubs, organizations and companies catering to tourists' travel, who have little interest or desire to see the natural resources of the country built up into a prosperous condition, but who seek the revenue to be derived from tourist traffic for their own exploitation and gain.

Before any action is taken by congress to establish the boundaries of any permanent withdrawal or reservation, steps should be taken to notify representatives of Nevada of the wishes of the people in the district to be affected, and that as a final resort insist upon a most thorough and comprehensive survey of the water and mineral resources of the district by the Geological Survey.

RESOURCE SACRIFICE

Attention should be called again to the fact that the proposed park has been promoted by non-residents and therein are almost as a unit opposed to such a sacrifice of the natural resources of the district, which will no doubt become increasingly valuable due to the completion of the Hoover dam project.

It is suggested that the recommendations of this committee be used in drafting a resolution to be sent to Nevada representatives in congress and any other interested parties, and that the special committee herewith be discharged.
