

SCREEN LIFE IN HOLLYWOOD

By HUBBARD KEAVY HOLLYWOOD — A tour of the town: One of the most regular fellows among studio gatekeepers is the rather of a grand opera star who is worth millions. He wouldn't have his fellow workmen know it because it might change their attitude. He likes the idea of the job and its $30 a week wage him, and he dislikes idling. Stride in the advancement of the art of the talking picture: A new item says "Paramount" successfully recorded the purring of a kitten. The three months' old feline had a catty role in "Silence". Conway Tearle, who has done practically nothing in talking pictures, although formerly important on the silent screen, turned down a well paying part the other day because the character was an unsympathetic one. He can't get the part he wants in Hollywood, Tearle says, he'll go back to the New York stage and re-enter pictures by that route. George "Buddy" DeSylva, who was head man of the recently disbanded song writing team of DeSylva, Brown and Henderson, has returned to Hollywood as an asso-

A SOUND IDEA Constance Bennett sleeps with two pillows over her head so noises won't disturb her at night. She also takes a hot water bottle to bed. One of the tiniest stars in pictures wears a size 5 1/2 shoe, which isn't so small, the missus tells me. It is apparent in her pictures that she tries to hide her feet. Spanish players imported to Hollywood to play in American made Spanish films are digging into American A-B-C's during their spare time and most of them are making good progress. There's more sugar, of course, for American stars than Spanish.

FOR STAR GAZERS A restaurant daintily advertises: "Eat with the stars of yesterday, today and tomorrow." Two years ago Rosalie Roy introduced Jean Harlow to the movies. Rosalie then was an extra. Jean immediately got a contract and has been climbing since. Just the other day Rosalie got her turn. She has a contract now, after several trying years of occasional days at $7.50 per. "Oh Sailor Behave" is a picture that will appeal to both young and old. It deals with the romance between a young American newspaper man and his sweetheart and the comical adventures of two sailors on leave, played by Olsen and Johnson. The management has announced as the coming talking feature attraction for the last half of the week of Barbara Stanwyck in "Ten Cents a Dance."

FASHIONS GROW AIR-MINDED AS WOMEN PILOTS INCREASE

The woman who flies her own plane now finds accessories at hand to match her trim flying togs. The green helmet shown above has earpieces of white kid to match the aviatrix's white hand-sewn gloves and the trimming of her green cordknit barrel bag.

NEW YORK, June 20 (UP)—Style-makers have had to grow air-minded to keep abreast of the rushing times. The young aviatrix has contented herself heretofore with a flying costume that was practical, wearing no signs if it vaguely resembled a suit of overalls. But no longer. The new flying costumes are as practical as ever, yet they manage at the same time to achieve a swagger sports air. Practically forbids any fullness about the ankles, lest this interfere with the manipulation of the controls, so the smartest flying costumes avoid this danger with trousers resembling jodhpurs. They are tied at the ankles with strips of kidskin or a similar pliable material. The most practical flying outfits are made of wool or cotton, varying in weight according to the need for warmth. An attractive type of material is a closely woven mesh or a heavy twill. The zipper or talon closing is the choice of many women aviators, because it is simple to get into and much less bulky than buttons or straps. French designers, growing interested in these costumes, have developed some interesting trims. One suit of green cordknit is trimmed with white kid cuffs, belt and side pieces on the helmet. Others are trimmed in kid of contrasting colors.

GUIDING YOUR CHILD

By MRS. AGNES LYNE FEAR OF AUTHORITY In the old conception of the relation between parent and child, an element of fear was thought to be a proper ingredient in a mixture composed otherwise of love, gratitude and respect. The newer understanding of factors in child development points to the conclusion that fear of authority as such is a wholly destructive element. It serves no purpose other than temporarily to make things more convenient for grown-ups. It fails to teach the child how to discipline his own impulses for it imposes standards without helping them to become incorporated as a part of his self ideal. It therefore makes for a sham docility beneath which unregenerate wishes, cowardliness, deception and suppressed resentfulness all play their part in shaping the child's true character. Not only is the child left to make what he can of his inner self, but his fear stands between him and achievement. At school it interferes with his ability to do his best in his studies. With many a child the sound of a teacher's voice calling upon him to recite is enough to drive the best learned answer from his head, and as for really thinking, his brain is paralyzed until the recitation is over. In later life his fear of those in authority, by this time perhaps unconscious, is expressed in his attitude toward his employer, where it serves to make him less capable in his work and to cause friction. Having been always afraid of those who give orders, it will be difficult for him to rise to a position of importance. For so long as an individual remains afraid of authority, he cannot identify himself with it sufficiently to take over a position in which he himself must be authoritative.

PILOT DIES IN SAFETY PLANE

DETROIT, June 22 (UP)—Whirling downward for 2,000 feet in a futile attempt to spin a plane equipped with an anti-spinning device, Robert Langham, 33, test pilot, apparently lost consciousness from the gyrations of the plane and plunged to his death today. Langham was killed at the Wayne county courthouse when the plane, refusing to spin, suddenly went out of control and divided to the ground. Langham was ordered to take the ship aloft and determine if it was humanly possible to spin it despite the safety installation.

RUTH NICHOLS INJURED AS SHE LANDS PLANE

(Continued from Page One) Mme. Ella Schiaparelli, Paris. She also carried a bouquet of roses, pansies and forget-me-nots picked by her mother on the Nichols estate at Rye. Her relatives included chicken sandwiches, a bottle of soft drinks, and the bottle of coffee. Extra equipment included a tall wheel to replace the taliskid on her plane should it be needed at Harbor Grace. Good will letters and messages included a birch bark scroll bearing an invitation to Count de Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic committee, to attend the winter Olympics at Lake Placid, New York. PLANS INDEFINITE "I would like to spend two or three days at Portland or Harbor Grace before leaving for Paris," Miss Nichols said as she stepped into her plane. "I haven't any definite plans for that though." She wore a new suit, heather shade, with a special double skirt; a small close fitting hat, and no flying glasses. Chamberlin announced as he left that he would stop at Boston, pick up Mrs. Chamberlin there, leaving immediately. She had planned to make the trip by boat, but found she would arrive at St. John too late for her to make the return trip with her husband.

Post and Gatty hope to make Berlin the first stop in a round-the-world flight with stops at Moscow, Irkutsk, Yakutsk, Nome, Edmonton, and thence to New York. Meanwhile Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr. were preparing for a round-the-world flight, but it was doubtful if they could get off tomorrow.

The Pioneer Realtor 10 Fremont St.

Las Vegas is the brightest business spot in the United States. This column is the brightest business spot in Las Vegas.

As the Pioneer Realtor, we made barrels of money for our customers and neighbors. This was in the lean years.

Now a lot of newcomers are here. We will make barrels of money for them NOW and in the fat years ahead. It's a simple matter of buying right, and selling right. One of the rules is: Buy from a Pessimist, and sell to a level-headed Optimist.

A Pessimist is a misfit in Las Vegas, but just the same we have a few of these wise guys. It's an awful shock to them to think of Las Vegas having Fifty Thousand population within the next six or seven years because of cheap Boulder Dam power applied to the mineral resources of California, Arizona and Nevada within two hundred and fifty miles in all directions from Las Vegas, and which will be shipped to Las Vegas for treatment in her Smelters and Refineries. The latter will produce the raw material which will make Las Vegas the manufacturing center for hundreds of metallic articles now shipped to the Pacific Coast from Eastern refinery centers.

Here are a few for sale listings which will give the Pessimist curvature of the spine, and which will fatten the bank account of said Optimist.

$29,000 for a 50 ft. corner in the down town district of the Broadway of Las Vegas and Southern Nevada. $10,000 cash and the balance at $4,000 per year for five years until paid out. Before that time this property will be worth at least $1,000 per front foot.

$40,000 for a 75 ft. corner in the same district. $25,000 cash, balance in one year. Another $1,000 a front foot corner.

$13,750 for a 275 foot frontage on South Fifth street. One of the coming business sections of Las Vegas. An ideal hotel location on the Los Angeles Highway near the down town district of Las Vegas. Easy terms.

$ 7,500 terms or $7,000 cash for one of the best 100 by 140 corners down town, and near the Fifth Street highway. An ideal location for hotel or high class down town apartments.

$10,000 for 100 ft. front on South Fifth street in business district. $5,000 cash and balance to arrange. An emergency sale. Worth more like $12,000 to $13,000.

$ 2,500 15 scattered lots. Each 50 by 130 ft. In city. Worth $400 each or $6,000. The Pessimist would need the coroner if he were shown these lots.

$ 1,500 5 lots each 50 by 130 ft. Two corners. City water. Close in. Cheapstuff, but one of the best buys in Las Vegas. $500 cash and easy terms.

ROLPH TABOOS LETHAL PLANS

Gov. James Rolph said he would not sign the bill substituting lethal gas for the gallows in California, because it proposed "experimenting with human misery." The bill was passed by the 1931 legislature and the governor held several hearings regarding it, says the Gazette. "I have held conferences with the board of prison directors, wardens and persons of both state penitentiaries and the director of penology and I have received many written reports from others on executions by lethal gas," said the governor. "These persons were by no means united in their opinions. "After thoughtful consideration on the means of execution I am not in favor of experimenting with human misery."
