WIND DAMAGE AT BOULDER NOT AS HEAVY AS FIRST THOUGHT

The damage done by the gale Tuesday caused thousands of dollars' damage on the reservation. Work was temporarily suspended and many were left homeless and at the mercy of the blinding sand storm.

Families living in tents were unable to build fires and many of them were without food all day.

The roof over the porches of the offices and of No. 5 and No. 7 dormitories collapsed. Damage was estimated between $250 and $300 to the three building salons.

Tiling was torn from the roofs of a number of the government construction.

The canvas roof was torn off the buildings, including the home of Frank Crowe, superintendent of commissary at the New Mexico construction camp and several of the dwelling tents were blown down, including one family dwelling.

Wednesday morning, sand littered practically every home and office in Boulder City. For hours a steady flow of it had whirled through the air with such force that it found its way into even tightly closed rooms.

School was dismissed and the children sent home because of cold school houses. No one was injured, a survey revealed.

OPTIMISM AT R. R. MEET FELT

CHICAGO, Jan. 13. (U.P.)—Eve of the biggest parley yet between railroad capital and labor tonight found both sides quietly confident that their demands would be met.

"Certainly, I think we will be successful, or we wouldn't be here at all," said white-haired Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, who will lead eight other railroad presidents into tomorrow's conference to ask for a temporary salary cut on the part of 1,800,000 railroad workers.

David B. Robertson, union chairman, whose hair is just as white as Willard's and whose gestures are just as emphatic, spoke similarly: "Of course we're optimistic, else we wouldn't have asked the railroad presidents for this meeting."

Robertson will ask that employment be stabilized and that most of his 500,000 jobless men be put back to work in return for all the railroad workers accepting lower wages.

Instead of a battle, thus, the unprecedented meeting in the gilded ballroom of the Palmer house is expected to be an orderly discussion which will result in the men accepting a 10 per cent wage cut for one year and the railroads promising to re-hire thousands of men as forecast definitely in an exclusive United Press dispatch last night.

FORMER QUEEN OF GREECE IS DEAD

FRANKFURT, Germany, Jan. 13. (U.P.)—Former Queen Sophie of Greece died tonight after a serious illness of several weeks.

She was the sister of the former German Kaiser, who unsuccessfully attempted to arrange a visit to her bedside here last week from his place of exile at Doorn.

HANCOCK OIL FORGES AHEAD

The remarkable progress and success of the Hancock Oil company in the face of admittedly uncertain conditions in the oil industry during 1931, is best reflected in the New Year's gift of stock and cash which were presented to all employees of the firm by Will J. Reid, president of the company, shortly before the close of the calendar year.

Each of the several hundred employees participated, and in no case did the gift represent less than two per cent of the salary earned during the year 1931, while those who had been with the firm more than one year were eligible for stock gifts ranging from five to ten per cent of their annual salary, depending upon their period of service.

"I was afraid Grandfather would be Shocked.."

HES rather a bossy old darling, and I didn't know how he'd like the idea of my smoking.

"The first time I lit a Chesterfield in front of him, he sniffed like an old war-horse . . . and I braced myself for trouble. But all he said was, 'That's good tobacco, Chickabiddy.'

"But I still think that if he hadn't been so impressed by the quality of Chesterfield, the old dear might have been less agreeable. Human nature is like that!

"Grandfather raised tobacco in his younger days, so he knows what's what. I don't, of course—but I do know that Chesterfields are milder. It's wonderful to be able to smoke whenever you want, with no fear you'll smoke too many.

"And it doesn't take a tobacco expert to prove that Chesterfield tobaccos are better. They taste better . . . that's proof enough. Never too sweet. No matter when I smoke them . . . or how many I smoke . . . they always taste exactly right.

"They must be absolutely pure . . . even to the paper which doesn't taste at all. In fact . . . as the ads say . . . 'They Satisfy!'"
