STATE DEMOS TO HOLD MEET

RENO, Nev., Jan. 4. (AP)—The opening oratory of the 1932 political campaign in Nevada was heard here today when Nevada Democrats gathered for a "victory banquet." State Chairman William S. Boyle, in a letter sent to party leaders throughout the state, said that "the purpose of the banquet is to harmonize factions, to discuss matters relative to the party and to the campaign and to endeavor, in general, to bring about an understanding between the factions in Nevada and elsewhere." "We want you to feel," he continued, "that we are endeavoring to make the Democratic party a party for Democrats and that you have as much to say about its operation as any man in the state."

ROYAL MOUNTED FAIL TO GET THEIR MAN; HE BUILDS FORT

AKLAVIK, Northwest Territory, Jan. 14. (UP)—Eight weary, half-frozen members of the Royal Canadian mounted police returned tonight to Aklavik after losing a 15-hour gun battle with a "bush trapper who barricaded himself in a dungeon-like cabin. The police even used dynamite in their attack and blew half the roof off the cabin from which Albert Johnson blazed a hail of lead at them from two automatic pistols. Johnson, wanted for attempted murder of a police constable who once entertained Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, backed into a hillside tunnel when the explosive was tossed, escaped injury, and fought on. For 15 hours the squad of eight policemen fought Johnson in the semi-darkness of the Arctic night, but they could not rout him from his cabin, which is mostly underground and built like a tiny fort. After more than a day of constant fighting, the police were forced to retreat and hurry back to civilization because they were suffering so severely from the cold and were almost out of meat for their dog teams. Johnson shot and seriously wounded Constable A. W. King on Dec. 31 when King attempted to question him regarding tampering with trap lines. E. G. McDowell, another constable who was with King, took the wounded officer by dog sled through 80 miles of raging blizzard to reach Aklavik, where King is now recovering. King is the man who entertained Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh when the American fliers were on their historic trip to the Orient. After McDowell made his report of what had happened, Inspector A. N. Eames organized a squad of eight police and set out to capture Johnson dead or alive. After four days of traveling they reached Rat river and found his cabin in which the trapper had barricaded himself. They shouted to him to come out and surrender. He replied with a burst of gunfire from a cabin loophole. The battle began. Hour after hour, the police kept up their constant fire from behind streamer boulders. Once during the fight an officer advanced under the protecting fire of his comrades to the cabin door and battered it down, but Johnson drove him back with bullets. Later, dynamite bombs were hurled at the cabin and half the roof was blown off in a terrific blast. The officers started in a body across the clearing, but Johnson had backed into his tunnel and, apparently unharmed, kept up his stream of fire. Johnson was said by other trappers to have come into the territory from Yukon last fall. He had no equipment but a pair of snow shoes. He had much money, however. Police and trappers said he was "bush crazy." Indians reported he was tampering with their trap lines and King went out on dog sled to investigate. The shooting followed. The Royal Police retreated but they still hope to "get their man" as they have done fictionally in practically every novel ever written about them.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By RICHARD L. GRIDLEY (United Press Financial Writer) NEW YORK, Jan. 14. (UP)—A heavy volume of realizing sales checked the advance in the stock market today but not until the list had moved into further new high ground on the current recovery.

More than 2,600 shares changed hands as the newly recruited bull forces absorbed offerings of stocks bought by traders in recent week spells. During the morning dealings were so heavy tickers ran four minutes behind actual trading on the floor. Activity lessened somewhat in the afternoon as the market consolidated its morning gains and most of the market leaders sold off from their highs. Closing prices showed moderate gains over the preceding session.

Spurred by prospects of easier money and substantial bank purchases, the United States government bonds continued their sensational advance of the previous session, dragging the entire bond market with them. These gains were relatively larger than in the case of stocks which gained an average of about a point. Trading in stocks opened with a rush as overnight reflection of the trading overnight brought the conclusion that powerful revival forces were at work. This heavy demand was met with considerable realizing pressure, however, which accounted for the heavy trading.

The pace was a bit too rapid and when traders saw the leaders were meeting considerable opposition among their high, new selling was thrown on the market. The railroad and tobacco groups were the strongest, stimulated by special conditions. Carrier shares mounted rapidly under the leadership of New York Central, Atchafson and Union Pacific when the labor conference at Chicago opened, although no new light was shed on the probable outcome of the meeting. Tobaccoes were buoyant after their long decline of the past few months, making belated response to the 1931 income account of the R. J. Reynolds Co. showing record profits for the period. Despite a moderate falling off in sales, tobacco companies have had the full benefit of the price advances during the latter part of the year. Much interest also was attracted by American Telephone and Telegraph, which rose to within striking distance of the $125 level, compared with its recent low, under the 108 mark. President Clifford reassured Telephone's 600,000-d stockholders today with a letter stating that the company earned its $9 annual dividend by a small margin last week. This was taken to mean that no immediate change would be made in the dividend rate, although a large part of the speculative community held to the belief that some downward revision might be made before the end of 1932.
