PERKINS VERSE ON LOST CITY

The following original poem written by George E. Perkins, is first presented to the reading public through the columns of The Age. The author, and his two brothers, John and Fay Perkins, have been closely identified with Dr. M. R. Harrington in the work of excavating the ruins of the prehistoric "Buried City," located near St. Thomas.

THE PEOPLE OF YESTERDAY By George E. Perkins

I stood on a wind-swept mesa O'er-looking the bare desert floor, And I thought of the untold ages And the Ancients who lived long before.

I saw the old ruins and dwellings, Long since tumbled down and de-And I drew in my mind's eye a
