MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By RICHARD L. GRIDLEY (United Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (U.P.)—A rush of buying greeted the opening of the stock market today, carrying many issues to new highs for the year on gains of one to seven points. The pace was too rapid, however, and most issues relinquished their early gains before the close.

The initial buying surge was in response to overnight announcement by the stock exchange that after April 1 brokers no longer would be allowed to loan stocks for short selling purposes without the specific permission of the owners. This caused excited buying of stocks on the west coast last night after the New York close and at London before the opening today.

Blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares changed hands at the opening, one of the most exciting since the moratorium rally of last summer. Machinery of the stock exchange quickly became clogged with the rush of business and tickers fell four minutes behind trading at one time.

It was all over in half an hour, however, and stocks began their gradual descent with sporadic rallies to the close. Last prices showed a confusing mixture of gains and losses but the bulls again appeared to have the best of the argument.

The market appeared to have lost considerable technical strength on the initial bulge and brokers said later that most of the buying represented hurried covering by shorts prematurely stampeded into covering by the stock exchange announcement. As a matter of fact, they have until April 1 to cover present short contracts and may extend them after that, only specific instructions will have to be obtained from persons who are carrying the borrowed stocks on margin.

After the close of today's market additional light was shed on the short selling question by President Hoover at his weekly press conference. The President again criticized individuals for "bear raiding" and the gist of his remarks indicated that the action of the stock exchange yesterday was inspired in official quarters.

The character of the advances in prices at today's opening showed that many bear traders had taken genuine fright from the campaign against short selling. Among the most spectacular openings today

B. E. Carey and C. H. Smith left by automobile Friday morning for Grand Junction, Colorado, where they may engage in business. They have been employed on one of the tunnels at Boulder Dam for several months, but were laid off recently when tunnel No. 2 was put through.

GOVERNOR TO INSPECT SPAN

Governor Fred B. Balzar arrived in Las Vegas last night, and spent the evening conferring with officials of the local Elks lodge in preparation for the ceremonies to take place when the dedication of the flag pole at the dam site occurs.

Governor Balzar will leave tomorrow for Bunkerville, accompanied by highway engineer Durkee and Leonard Blood, employment official, for an inspection of the new Virgin river bridge.

Monday and Tuesday, Governor Balzar will take part in the Washington's birthday celebration sponsored by the Elks clubs of Salt Lake City.

REES TO MANAGE FUNERAL HOME

Subsequent to a director's meeting of the Las Vegas funeral home, Inc., it was announced yesterday that Mrs. Edith Bettelheim had withdrawn from the active management of the Las Vegas funeral home, effective February 15.

Kenneth Rees, of Portland, Cal., has taken over the active management of the local concern, with Leland Taylor remaining as funeral director. Headquarters of the concern will remain at 332 south Sixth street.

were 10,000 American Can at 73, up 3%; Westinghouse Electric, 8,000 shares at 35 1/2, up 2 1/2; 6,000 General Motors at 24, up 1 1/2, and 5,000 United States Steel at 52 1/2, up 3 1/2. Eastman Kodak opened 7 points higher and Auburn Auto 6 points higher.

These gains, however, were gradually whittled down after the opening as a large flood of selling came in from traders who have accumulated large paper profits over the past week of rising prices. Similar conditions prevailed on other markets, cotton and grains closing only slightly higher after sharp initial gains. United States government obligations on the bond market reacted after reaching new highs for the current year.
