

SPEED RECORD BROKEN BY BRITISH DRIVER

By JACK TROY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24. (AP)—Captain Malcolm Campbell, steel-nerved British racing driver, bulletted over the white coral sands here today in his racing super-car, Blue Bird, to establish a sensational new world automobile speed record of 232.963 miles an hour.

Fishing over the smooth strand like a blurred blue streak, Campbell clipped 232.963 miles an hour from his own previous record of 245.753 miles an hour.

Some 10,000 spectators watched the lone, fish-shaped Blue Bird burst through a gloom northeast wind, carrying its driver over the necessary two runs faster than man ever before has traveled on the ground. His first run southward over the 12-mile course averaged the meteoric speed of 237.450 miles an hour, and the second run northward was clocked in 241.773. The average gave Campbell 232.963.

When the tall, lean Britisher started over the beach on his amazing first run, he took timing officials and spectators by surprise, because it had been understood this run was merely to have been a trial. But Campbell, sensing the coordination between the pavement-like beach and a perfect motor, stepped on the gas and plunged ahead in such sensational time that officials could scarcely believe their own timing devices.

Without waiting for an inspection of tires or mechanism, Campbell squeezed into the low cockpit and huddled over the huge wheel, turned the Blue Bird under its own power at the 12-mile post and aimed the blue projectile northward.

He stretched over the course, brought the hurtling craft to a halt and leaped out.

When informed that he had broken the record by nearly nine miles an hour, Campbell danced about the beach, waved his hands to spectators and clapped his mechanics on the shoulder. His grease-smeared face was wreathed in smiles. His hands were out and blistered from holding the huge machine to a true course along the beach markers in the face of a whipping wind. This wind whipped up white caps in the surf, just beyond the course, and the slithering Blue Bird was wet with spray when the runs were completed.

Despite the wind, visibility and beach conditions were perfect. A warm sun beamed down upon the low-slung 34-foot car, and Campbell had no difficulty in discerning his course.

He was delighted with the performance of his car, but expressed confidence that on a calm day he could average 290 miles an hour. He said he might make further attempts for new records at all distances tomorrow, if the beach remains in good shape.

After his first exhilaration had passed, Campbell, rubbing his blistered hands on his white overalls, told reporters he actually was disappointed.

"I am greatly disappointed at the record," he said. "A powerful wind was against me. Going south the motor was turning 2,750 revolutions per minute, but on the north run, the best I could get out of her was 3,400. After finishing my runs, the officials advised me against running again as the tide was too far in."

well-known aviators to Lookout point, and they all expressed doubt that anybody would ever fly through the canyon."

Major Crain said: "I got a tremendous thrill out of the flight. I would not have missed it, but I do not want to do it again. I had previously seen the dam site from the bottom of the canyon and from the top on both sides several times. But once, from a seat on this air in the middle of the canyon 400 feet above the river, is enough."

James Cashman remarked: "I always considered the Buick good enough for me. But now, since Col. Roscoe Turner's 'Gilmore Lion' brought us safely through Black canyon at 175 miles an hour, I feel that I must have a Buick just like it."

"I got a great kick out of the trip, but would not want to make that flight again with any other pilot than Roscoe."

The Editor of The Age, as soon as he could catch his breath, said: "Black canyon is well named. Things looked plenty black down there as Col. Turner sent the ship through at 175 miles an hour. But I see the sun is still shining. With Roscoe Turner at the controls I knew we would come through all right."

BANDITS SLEEP ON JOB; GUARD SOUNDS ALARM

OVERLAND PARK, Kan., Feb. 24. (AP)—Two bandits who went to sleep on the job were frustrated in their attempt to hold up the State bank here today.

The robbers kidnaped George Kaska, janitor, tied him, and then sat down to await the arrival of officials this morning to open the vault.

Kaska heard snoring. He worked the rope loose, crawled in his stocking feet past the sleeping men, and pressed a burglar alarm.

The men, roused by the going, fled before officers arrived.

FRIEDMAN LAUDS USE OF AGE FOR ADVERTISING SALE

Another unsolicited testimonial to the effectiveness of Age advertising was received yesterday when Sam Friedman, who has been conducting the sale now in progress at the Under Priced store on south Main street, praised the efficiency of such advertising for bringing throngs to the affair on its opening day.

The Under Priced store yesterday was jammed to capacity by a bargain-seeking crowd which bought, and then returned to buy again. Friedman was unstinting in his praise of the effectiveness of his advertising in the morning paper, and generously credits it with being a major cause of the success of the sale.

The sale will continue until all stock has been sold out. Bargain tables were cleared last night but will be replenished by this morning.

RAIL SPLINTERS

BY JOHN H. LIGHTFOOT

Charley Bailey, chief clerk for Master Mechanic Willett, spent Sunday in Los Angeles visiting his family.

Machinist Jas. Williams, who has been ill since Feb. 2 with the flu, is now able to be about and ready for work. The attack has surely reduced Jim several pounds.

Engineer Willett has reported for work after being off duty for several days on account of a severe cold. Glad to see you on that old engine again.

Fred Chisko, who has been at tunnel No. 4, near Caliente, is in Las Vegas a few days, working in conjunction with the local power plant crew in making some needed repairs and adding some new work. Fred says it is as cold as it is at the North pole. The only difference being that tunnel No. 4 is near Caliente and the North pole is not.

"School days, school days, good old golden rule days" do in no way, shape, form or manner un-analyze with the railroad's "Bump days, bump days, good old whiskers, bump days." And along those lines, we were in error about the hair on Jimmie Shlayman's "chin-chin." Jim's whiskers are just too short, for one worthy from Los Angeles with a fine crop places Jimmie out of the deal, along with Johnnie Letchworth, and that worthy is named Worthington. Too bad, boys, but whiskers are whiskers and you can't deny the fact.

The Los Angeles and Salt Lake unit safety meeting will be held in this city on the afternoon of Feb. 25 at 1:30 p. m., under the direction of Sup't. A. L. Coey. Get your safety suggestions lined up, boys, and help along a good move.

ARMORED SHIP BRINGS FIRST ARRIVALS FROM SHANGHAI BATTLE FRONT

Exciting and terrifying war scenes were described by passengers returning aboard the liner Tatsuta Maru from Shanghai, where Japanese and Chinese are engaged in bitter, deadly strife. Even the ship was equipped with armor-plated portholes, and was escorted from Shanghai harbor by a Japanese destroyer while warships shelled the city and bombing planes zoomed overhead. Above, Senor Sebastian Romero, left, welcoming Senor H. E. Juan Francisco de Cardenas, new Spanish ambassador to the United States, and Senora Cardenas, who were among the passengers. At right, Miss Lorraine de Forest, Conn., art student, who was in Shanghai when the first battle started.
