

LINDBERGH NEAR SOLUTION OF KIDNAP CASE

At about midnight, state troopers guarding the Lindbergh home announced that they had received orders from their superiors to "arrest any carload of reporters that attempts to go up the road to the Lindberghs."

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 8 (AP)—Attracted by newspaper stories of an automobile bearing New Jersey license plates which was seen at Raton Saturday night, Gordon Grover of Greeley, Colo., today appeared before sheriff's officers to tell of the car which is hunted in connection with the Lindbergh case.

Grover said he was en route to Las Vegas, Nev., and was picked up by a man and woman in the machine outside of Denver Saturday.

He said the child bore a strong resemblance to the Lindbergh baby as shown in newspaper photographs, except for its hair. The hair was not suited to the child's complexion.

Although the child had fair skin, the hair was black and bushy and did not favor either the man or woman, he said. Grover said he stopped at Raton and he paid for seven gallons of gasoline and a quart of oil. He described the man as 27 or 28, apparently of Italian extraction, and of athletic build. The man seemed nervous and excited and drove very fast. The woman was corpulent and probably an American, he said. He left them at Cimarron, N. M.

Pasadena Minister's Son Held Guilty Of Manslaughter In Hit-Run Accident

LOS ANGELES, March 8 (U.P.)—Merrill Hocker, 22, son of a Pasadena minister, late today was found guilty of manslaughter and hit-and-run driving charges.

He was accused of having caused the death of Mrs. Hulda Ann Kramer, 50, last New Year's eve when she was run down by his car. Hocker and some youthful companions were enroute to a party and did not stop, according to testimony.

Superior Judge Stanley Murray said he would pass sentence on Friday.

MARITAL TROUBLE TO BE IRONED OUT IN L. VEGAS COURT

Filing two suits yesterday in an attempt to clear up her marital status, Olga Mathews Henkle Moore has left one of the most complicated tangles of recent record, to be unraveled in district court.

According to one complaint, asking for an annulment of her second marriage, to Frank Moore, she was first married at the age of 16, to one Lawrence Henkle, but separated from him. Later, according to her statement, she was told and believed, that because of her youth, being under the age of consent, her marriage was not valid. Two years later, still believing that her first marriage was not valid, she married Frank Moore, with her first husband still living and undivorced.

Then she came to Las Vegas for a divorce from Moore, and learned that she had two husbands, and must dispose of the first before being able to divorce the second, as she was not yet legally married to him.

Her first suit, filed yesterday, asks for an annulment of her marriage from Moore, following which her second suit asks for a divorce from Henkle, alleging more than five years' separation as grounds for the action.

MISSING MAN IS AGAIN SOUGHT BY WIFE IN DETROIT

His wife desperately anxious to get in touch with him, Benjamin O. Williams, last heard of in Las Vegas, is again being sought here by local authorities.

Williams disappeared from his work at the Detroit plant of the U. S. Rubber company on July 7, 1931, and turned up in Las Vegas several weeks ago, seeking assistance from the local Masonic lodge.

A wire was dispatched to the Detroit lodge of which Williams was a member, eliciting the reply that they were sending him a ticket home.

The secretary of the Las Vegas lodge informed Williams that the ticket awaited him at the railroad station, and Williams is said to have left to get the ticket.

Since that time Williams has failed to appear in Detroit, and investigation proved that he had not made use of the ticket from here to the Michigan metropolis.

Local authorities started a hunt for the man last night, and have asked that anyone knowing the whereabouts of Williams please communicate with police.

GUNS ROAR AGAIN IN JESSE JAMES HOMETOWN

KEARNEY, Mo., March 8 (U.P.)—Guns roared again today in Kearney, the old home town of Jesse James in which the notorious outlaw is buried, bringing death to a resident approaching an attempted bank robbery.

Ernest Barr, 40, a former service man, was wounded in an exchange of shots with bandits who seized the Kearney night watchman and sought to cut into the Kearney Trust company safe. Barr died late today.

TO DISCUSS PLAN OF L.V. EXTENSION

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday President James H. Down announced that the communication from Tom Carroll relative to extending the Las Vegas city limits would be the special order of business for the next meeting.

A. E. Cahlan's motion that Congressman Arentz be asked to try to have a bill passed for the issuing of special Hoover dam postage stamps was passed.

On motion of O. W. Yates the chamber approved the proposal to have a tariff placed on copper.

Mrs. J. M. Heaton made an appeal of the Chamber of Commerce with radio station KGIX.

FIRST FIRE SALE ON FOOD OPENED BY BUSY BEE CAFE

Las Vegas' first fire sale on food is being staged today at the Busy Bee, in memory of the fire that flared in their kitchen early this week.

The Busy Bee, well known in Las Vegas for its splendid food and reasonable prices, declares that the food on sale is "slightly smoked" (hams and bacon), "untouched by water" (milk and cream), and firemen dashed for these victuals.

Hailed as a clever and unique idea, it is believed the stunt will attract scores today. Everyone is invited.

Rail Splinters

A. E. Hensler made a flying trip to Caliente Monday to arrange the repairing of one of the boilers and putting in some new brick work.

While there Al saw our old friend, Charley Weldon, who bumped into a job in the Caliente store department. He says the water was streaming down Charley's face, not from any water poured on him, but from the real sweat of the brow. We have always given Charley credit of being a hot worker.

The "Will of the Wisp" of the Union Pacific, Jake Pfeister, road foreman of engines, is here, there and everywhere. One hard man to locate, but the trains must run and Jake is the boy who sees that the engines are ok to do their stuff.

Mrs. W. L. Jones, wife of Car Foreman Jones, is spending a few days in Los Angeles and poor Bill wears that sad expression that men generally, as—I was going to say assume, but I guess safer not to. Will say, wear when wifey is away.

Machinist John H. Ward of the U. P. is one patient, hard working fellow. Saw him Tuesday a. m. pushing a push car from the depot to the roundhouse, carrying a heavy driving box and a boiler maker. Tell you folks, either is a load to handle.

Commencing tomorrow, President Lightfoot wishes all card members of the U. P. A. C. tennis club to carry their cards when on court, as he has instructed the special officers to remove all players without a card. This is being done to weed out the "chislers."

One of the "Big Six" engines had the misfortune to have an axle broken, necessitating the sending of the wheels to the local shops for a new axle and driving box. Such accidents are not uncommon but can be quite serious.

Fireman Victor Clapp never does things half way, especially when he is lined up for a few days rest and for that reason he is laying off for ten days, and visiting in California where he has property interests.

EULOGIZE FRENCH LEADER IN HOUSE

PARIS, March 8 (U.P.)—Aristide Briand, to whom France will pay tribute in death within the walls of the famous clock room at the Quai d'Orsay, was eulogized today in the chamber of deputies, where his eloquence and will made him a power for more than a quarter of a century.

"He will remain an example for those freely chosen by the nation to control its destinies," Premier Andre Tardieu declared in praising the career of the former foreign minister and peace worker.

"From the time of his entry into parliament, he labored for peace of conscience and peace between peoples. His idealism brought peace and progress to our struggles."

Ferdinand Bouisson, speaker of the chamber, also eulogized Briand and it was announced that the body of the famous internationalist would lie in state in the clock room, where the high points of his career were enacted.

UTAHAN BOUND OVER SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Mar. 8 (U.P.)—Grant Tyce, 18, was bound over to the district court today to be tried on charges of murdering Edmund G. Hines, veteran Salt Lake grocer last October 2.

MOTHERHOOD ROLES BECOME GLORIA

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 5 (AP)—To the real life role of mother, Gloria Swanson brings in ample measure the grace and sincerity which make for good performance on screen or stage.

About to assume that role again, she announced in London, the screen star has with her in Europe the two best testimonials to her maternal instinct.

They are little Gloria, aged 11, her child by her second husband, Herbert Sonborn, Hollywood restauranter, and young Joseph, aged 9, adopted by the star when he was an infant and given equal status with her own child.

These are the children who will have for playmates, as Gloria plans, the heir of her new husband, Michael Farmer.

Little is known by most of Hollywood about the Swanson youngsters, for Gloria consistently refuses to let the spotlight in which she has lived for years touch them. But Gloria's close friends vouch for the careful rearing, for the devotion that has been lavished on the two children.

Says one of them: "They have a governess, who has been with them for years, but Gloria, even when she's very busy, always has time for the children herself. No matter what she is doing, whether she's giving a dinner party, or entertaining, or studying, if the children have something to tell her she goes to them."

The children attend public school in Beverly Hills, and are driven to and from school daily by a chauffeur. They are as the children of most famous film stars, constantly under adult guardianship to protect them from kidnappers. That is one penalty all movie children pay for their parents' wealth and fame.

But otherwise they live much as other children of wealth. They are well-dressed, have virtually everything in the way of playthings and toys — Joseph has a leaning to boats and airplanes at present — and quite often have little parties to entertain their friends. Little Gloria and Joseph early were started in musical studies.

Gloria Swanson, the star, is very much Gloria, the mother, when she travels. If it's at all possible without interfering with their schooling she takes the children along.

The last time she returned from Europe — when she was busily denying her marriage to Michael Farmer, and getting married — she couldn't get to Hollywood and the children soon enough. She sent for them to join her in New York. Hollywood concedes Gloria the title of "devoted mother."
