

GLADIATORS ON CARD TONIGHT PRIMED FOR GRAND DISPLAY OF FISTICUFFS IN LEGION ARENA

Harris Promises That Fans Will Get Surprise

With the exception of light bar punching, the gladiators on tonight's card have wound up their training, and are awaiting the siren whistle that will send them into action at the Legion stadium at 8:30 p. m.

Promoter Art Harris has warned the preliminary boys to be ready when they are called, and so avoid keeping the customers waiting. So far, in the past, the order of events has moved like clockwork, simply because the promoter insisted that the boys have their hands bandaged 30 minutes before the starting bell.

Mickey Wallace and George Grey looked especially good in their workouts and are on the quiver for their six round argument.

Tiger Joe Williams promises to reverse that draw decision given in the last time out with Johnnie Roth. We have yet to see the old reliable Dick Schwartz fail to give the fans a run for their admission fee any time he shows.

Dick is always in shape and states that the only training he needs for this bout is a haircut and shave. If he ever lowers the boom on this boy from Boulder City—well, write your own ticket.

At that, this man Chick Weaver comes here highly touted and may prove a real dark horse. If he packs a wallop like Schwartz, we are taking our notes three rows back from ringside, and that's not perhaps.

Ernie Smith, brother of the absent Johnny, meets Young Tacho in a four rounder. Tacho is fast but does not rate the punch of the little Indian. Harris always pulls a surprise in his curtain raiser and he promises this one to be no exception.

The usual prices prevail. Don't forget, 8:30 at the American Legion stadium tonight.

Coast Games

By United Press

Three runs driven in by Hollywood batsmen in the eleventh inning broke a tie and gave the Stars an 8 to 5 victory over Oakland in a Pacific coast league baseball game today.

Hollywood garnered nine hits to 15 for the Oaks, but bunched them when they counted.

Hemery by Blair and Dittmar for Los Angeles in the fifth could not offset a five run merry-go-round Portland staged in the eighth inning. The Ducks won 12 to 9 at Los Angeles. It was another game in which hits didn't mean runs. The Angels garnered 14 bingles; The Ducks 12.

San Francisco Missions, after dropping two straight to Sacramento, turned on the Senators and defeated them 6 to 2. Flynn, Senator pitcher, was pounded for 11 hits.

Al Shannon, brother of the famous Eddie Shannon, motored into town yesterday afternoon and immediately started issuing challenges on behalf of his new welterweight.

After accepting the usual stogie he resigned himself to listening to a marathon account of the fighting ability of this prodigy.

Al states that this boy is knocking his sparring partners dead in his workouts at the Manhattan gym, Los Angeles.

"I have the kid under wraps," he confided, and we are going to take the local welters like Grant took Richmond." Blushing modestly he broke down, and confessed that at last he had the next champion of the world. Shannon has been the manager of three world champions in the last twenty years, and is too smart in the fight game to take his boy along too fast, as is shown by his refusal of two semi-windups at the Olympic in Los Angeles recently.

"What middleweight, later a heavyweight, do you consider the greatest of them all in the history of the boxing game? Thanks.

PAUL R. LEWIS.

There's an old adage somewhere, admonishing one to let sleeping dogs lie. That question alone has severed more life-long friendships, caused more street battles, and helped to fill more space in the sports sheets, than any other query since time immemorial.

If has slammered down to just two great fighters of former days, viz: the great Stanley Ketchell, and the equally great Bob Fitzsimmons. There starts the age-old argument. In the first place, Ketchell was boxing in a different era than Fitz. Each had an entirely different style of fighting, and were murderous punchers. It has to be pure speculation, as it is impossible to figure the outcome of a meeting between two peerless fighters of different generations. Fitzsimmons was unbeatable until he met the giant Jeffries. He originated the solar-plexus punch, with which he defeated Jim Corbett for world's heavyweight championship at Carson City.

The weird Ketchell shift was the last word in footwork, and has become a lost art since the tragic death of Stanley. To sum it all up, you would have to compare the respective records of these two, being careful to bear in mind the different rules, and various punches used in each fighter's era of boxing. The kidney and rabbit punch, at present banned as foul, were O. K. during the regime of Fitzsimmons and Ketchell.

Men who watched "Fitz" every move are now gray-haired; those who were rabid Ketchell fans are now middle-aged. Just try to get them to agree.

SCRIBE DIES

ST. LOUIS, April 7. (U.P.)—Manning Vaughan, sports writer of the Milwaukee Journal, died here today from a brain hemorrhage, believed by his wife to have resulted from a head injury sustained when he fell from his bed in a Memphis hotel, March 26.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7. (U.P.)—George Lott, America's No. 2 tennis player and Davis cup veteran, was defeated today by Frankie Parker, national boys champion, in the Tulane university invitational tournament here.

SCHMELING TO ARRIVE TODAY PRIMO WINS HIS DECISION

NEW YORK, April 7. (U.P.)—Herr Max Schmeling, weltermeister of the heavyweight schlagers, will arrive tomorrow aboard the New Yorker from Deutschland to begin preparations for his June title tilt with that terrible American fighting man, Jack Sharkey.

In an effort to spike the thunder of the arriving Teuton, Mr. Sharkey called from Boston and announced that he was setting forth tomorrow upon an expedition into the wilds of Maine, where he would commune with nature and wrestle with the massive saggam. Maxie is his destination.

Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs, selected Green Kill lodge, two miles outside Kingston, N. Y., for the champion's training camp, but Sharkey said he had not decided upon his camp yet.

"What's the rush," he inquired pleasantly, "I'm not fighting Dempsey this time. It's only Schmeling Plenty of time yet. I'll probably begin working out at Gus Wilson's, Orangeburg, N. Y., or at Pompton Lake, N. J., about the end of May.

The pride of Cabotville admitted modestly he was in such good shape that he "could take Schmeling right now."

Schmeling will spend three days in New York regaining his land legs, and then pull out for Toronto, where he is scheduled for an exhibition Monday night. Then he will rest for a couple of days at Virginia Beach, Va., before beginning his exhibition tour, at Norfolk, April 13. His hour will wind up at Evansville Ind., April 22.

LONDON, April 7. (U.P.)—Outweighing his opponent 84 pounds, Primo Carnera, the Italian man-mountain, won a ten-round decision over Don McCorkindale, heavyweight champion of South Africa, at Albert hall tonight.

Carnera weighed 266 pounds, and McCorkindale, 182.

Primo floored his opponent for the count of four in the third round, but the African rallied and carried the fight to the big fellow for the remainder of the round.

Carnera determinedly tried to knock Don out but the latter's amazing defense prevented it. McCorkindale frequently worried Carnera by flashing a right cross over the Italian's huge left arm, but Primo's huge size and overpowering strength finally wore down his game opponent, allowing him to win on points.

Carnera faces Larry Gains, Canadian heavyweight, here May 30.

ANALYSIS NEEDS TWO DAYS WORK

SAN FRANCISCO, Apr. 7. (U.P.)—Two more days probably will pass before chemical examination of contents of the stomach of Phar Lap phenomenal race horse, is completed.

University of California scientists making the examination today said no traces of poison had been found.

The Australian "wonder horse" died suddenly two days ago of an ailment diagnosed by veterinarians as gastric enteritis.

MATE STARTS AS FOUR-YEAR OLD

BOWIE, Md., April 7. (U.P.)—A. C. Bostwick's Mate, winner of last year's Preakness, will make his first start as a 4-year-old in the Dixie handicap at Pimlico, it was announced today. The young sportsman, who had hoped to pit his colt against Phar Lap this summer, expressed deep regret at the untimely death of the invading Australian champion.

EVEN GEORGES TO 'COMEBACK'

NEW YORK, April 7. (U.P.)—Georges Carpentier, of France, who reached the height of his pugilistic fame when he met Jack Dempsey in the original "battle of the century" in 1921, is the latest veteran to announce a comeback attempt.

"Glorious Georges" plans to start training in a New York gymnasium for a campaign which he hopes will carry him once more into the "big time" and big money.

Carpentier, since his defeat at Dempsey's hands, has spent most of his time on the vaudeville stage.

GORILLA JONES TAKES DECISION

GREENBAY, Wis., April 7. (U.P.)—Gorilla Jones, world's middleweight champion, won a ten round decision over Bud Saltis, of Chicago, here tonight, clinching the fight in the last half of the match.

A crowd of 2,100 watched the Chicago Pole meet the champion punch for punch in the early rounds, and then slacken his pace to lose in the later frames. Jones has Saltis in a bad way three times during the match, but couldn't slip a knock-out punch across. Jones weighed 154, Saltis 160½, just over the middleweight limit.

300,000 ORDERS GIVEN FOR FORDS

DETROIT, April 7. (U.P.)—Orders accompanied by deposits have been received for 300,000 new Ford V-8's, the Ford Motor company announced today. More than 13,400,000 persons visited dealers' show rooms during the first three days the new models were on display, the announcement added. Production of the new car will reach 1,000 a day by May 1, it was predicted.

The MEADOWS

Above is a French sample of the noble art of self-defense. Just why the boys are wearing boxing gloves is not clear from the photograph, snapped in a Paris gym. The lad in white is the pupil, who is being shown by the maestro the important angle of the sport. That is to keep the wrists from getting tangled with the shoe lace.

Photo of Ben Eastman is one for the boys who have said for years that a quarter of a mile couldn't be run under 47 seconds. The 19-year-old Stanford sensation is in his own hitting the tape in 46.4 in a recent meet for a new world's record. Note his hands aren't even clinched in his drive as he clips a full second from Ted Meredith's 46-year-old record.

Doll Harris, new queen of the country's girl basketball players, is shown above with the cup awarded the Oklahoma Presbyterian college Cardinals following victory in the national A. A. U. cage championship at Shreveport. Doll led the Cardinals to victory in the finals over the Golden Cyclons of Dallas, Tex. She was named captain of the all-American team.

A guy had to climb on a ladder to fit on the gloves of Jess Willard, former heavyweight champ, now a California business man, who hopes to pick up some coin in a series of exhibition matches. Jess, 47, weighs 300 pounds, but he doesn't figure on anything drastic. Just exhibitions, maybe a display with Jack Dempsey, but nothing like that 1919 Toledo affair.

PROTEUS WEIGHT SET AT 126 LBS.

BOWIE, Md., April 7. (U.P.)—Proteus, which A. C. Bostwick bought for $25,000 as a two-year-old last summer to bear his silks in the Preakness and Kentucky derby, is assigned top weight of 126 pounds for the six furlong Rowe memorial handicap, $5,000 feature race here Saturday. Walter J. Salmon's air pilot, holder of the five furlong track record, is next in line with 122, and Phantom Legion must carry 121 pounds. There are 24 eligible 3-year-olds.

EQUIPOISE PERKS UP

BOWIE, Md., April 7. (U.P.)—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, leading juvenile money winner of 1930, which had to be shelved early in his 3-year old season because of foot injuries, turned in a brisk trial here this morning. He rattled off six furlongs in 1:14 2-5 handily, the best move of the morning.
