

CAT MOTHERS PUPS; DOG MOTHERS CATS—ALL HAPPY

While cats have kittens and dogs have pups, the question is, do they know it? For instance, Fluffy, the cat, is foster-mother to a dog her master, W. H. Gardner, Sacramento, brought home to her, and she cares for him as much as she does for her own kittens. Lady, the Boston Bull, became foster-mother to two kittens because her own brood consisted of but one pup. She is owned by Mrs. Ida O'Connor of San Francisco.

CLUB CAMP TO OPEN IN FALL

Celebrating its tenth anniversary, the annual Nevada Junior Farm Bureau camp, which will bring together about 300 4-H club boys and girls from all sections of the state, will be held on the campus of the University of Nevada August 8 to 13.

Tents in which the young campers will spend the week of study and play will be pitched on Mackay field, university athletic ground, and the halls and the dining room of the institution will be used again this year for classes and for meals.

Even though it is a little harder for the youngsters to earn money for the camp than in previous years, they are energetically hunting jobs to provide them with funds, according to Thomas Buckman, assistant director of the Nevada agricultural extension service and director of the camp, who anticipates that attendance will be about the same as in 1921.

Special attention to the older or senior 4-H club members will be offered at this year's camp, Camp Di-

WALTER HUSTON IN RACKET FILM AT PALACE TODAY

Oddly assorted fan mail is received by Walter Huston, First National star who appears as featured in "The Ruling Voice," which comes to the new Palace theatre today for one day only.

Unlike younger romantic players, Mr. Huston's mail does not contain a preponderance of mash notes, although these have their place. One of them in particular was from a woman who recited all her culinary and dramatic abilities with a view to showing that she would make an ideal mate.

Young children recognize a fatherly quality in him and write to him for advice and help in many things. He also seems to radiate some benevolent quality, for requests for financial aid in many ways, shapes and means pour in on him from all parts of the country.

Huston is now speculating on just what turn his mail will take after the public sees him as a big shot milk czar in "The Ruling Voice." Others in the cast are Loreta Young, Doris Kenyon, David Manners, John Halliday, Dudley Digges,
