

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

Summer Camps

The phenomenal growth in the number of summer camps is ample evidence of their popularity. Parents marvel at the changes in their children upon returning home, not merely in physical appearance but in spirit and personality.

Of course one big factor—which parents are reluctant to admit—is the getting away from home. Being on one's own, away from the routine demands of parents, has a broadening effect that should not be minimized. Indeed, the camp is truly an educational institution in every sense of the word. It brings out the best and the worst in child nature, but without stopping there, it makes the best appear worthwhile and it shows up the worst as something to be conquered.

Parents needn't worry over the safety of children at camp. Everything possible is done to insure the maximum protection against accident and disease. As a rule only the best food supplies are purchased, and the meals are usually balanced, well-prepared, and ample in amount. A modern summer camp is indeed a good investment in health, character, personality, and social development. It makes a distinct contribution which neither the home nor the school can quite equal.

Interesting children in drinking milk will be the subject of Dr. Ireland's next article.

1300 GALLONS OF OIL SPILLED INTO CREEK BY R. R. WRECK

Thirteen hundred gallons of oil were dumped into Pine Creek as a result of a wreck on the narrow gauge railroad between Eureka and Palsade.

The wreck occurred when one of the cars in six jumped the track, carrying oil for road work near Eureka. A break in the tank as it struck the ground released the oil into the stream, according to W. M. Raine, resident of Palsade.

The train was delayed five hours as a result of the wreck.

CASE TO BE HEARD BY ANOTHER JUDGE

Judge E. P. Carville, of Elko, will turn back the Little Humboldt river adjudication matter to Judge L. O. Hawkins for assigning to some other jurist.

The case was assigned by Judge Hawkins to Carville in 1932, the Winnemucca judge being disqualified because of his having represented several of the litigants previous to his being elected to the bench.

Judge Carville recently handed down his decision in the matter, deciding the lengthy litigation. Since then, several notices of motion for new trial of the case have been filed.

The action of Judge Carville was necessitated by his appointment as United States District Attorney.

SCOSSAS GET ORE OF BETTER VALUE

RENO, Nev.—The Scossa brothers have made a new strike in the Jackson Mountains south of Happy Creek station in northern Humboldt County.

The ore was taken from a discovery hole located approximately 1400 feet south of the original NRA strike and is believed by James Scossa that would run between $100 and $200 a ton assayed $520 a ton, while samples taken from the dump which appeared to be mill grade ore went $277. The values are in gold.
