INTERNATIONAL HOUSE

I had no definite idea of what "International House" was until Miss Eva Adams, teacher in Las Vegas high school, told of her experiences there, at the meeting of Las Vegas Rotary club Thursday.

The great house on Riverside Drive, New York, opposite Grant's tomb, was erected by Mr. and Mrs. Edmonds with the assistance of the Rockefeller family, to be a meeting place for men and women of all nations who may be in America. When Miss Adams lived there for several months beginning in February last, there were students from sixty-one nations trying to arrive at an understanding of the problems and languages of other nations.

Miss Adams address, given to the Rotary Club as part of its study of International Relations, was intensely interesting and proved a rare treat for the members of the club.

JAPANESE LETTER

Speaking of International Relations, we last week mentioned some of the experiences of Doug. Dashiell in Japan last summer.

We are permitted to reprint the following letter written by a Japanese man to his American neighbor as an example of the manner in which the people of Japan are mastering the English language:

Dear Sir:

We have already twice written of your hateful geese. Your hateful geese cry very unacceptable, unbearable, uncommon, uncouth, unquiet and very loud voice. Your hateful geese cry from very early morning and constantly. Your geese cry in ugly and stormy manner. Therefore whenever your hateful geese cry our childs are afraid and troubled and trembled with wonder. In that consequence the

The first streamline train, three cars, is 204 feet 5 inches in length. The second train, six cars, is 375 feet 11 inches in length.

The 900 horsepower, 12-cylinder, V-type Diesel engine, in the application of which to light weight, high-speed passenger equipment the Union Pacific is pioneering, represents the latest development in this character of power designed and built by the Winton Engine Corporation, subsidiary of General Motors.

The engine proper is 20 feet in overall length and weighs 18,000 pounds. It is directly connected to a generator, weighing 11,700 pounds, which provides the electric energy to drive the four traction motors which have a combined weight of 26,400 pounds. The total weight of the entire power plant including engine, generator, motors, auxiliary engine generator set, pumps, radiators, air compressors, etc., is approximately 79,000 pounds. The power car itself, with all its machinery and trucks, weighs 80 tons.

The train is completely air-conditioned throughout. Two of the Pullman cars are of the 10-section type and include also in each car a compartment and a bedroom. The third Pullman is of eight sections and has one compartment and one bedroom. The three cars have sleeping accommodations, assigning one passenger to each upper and lower, for 68 passengers. All Pullmans have two extra-long sections for tall persons. The coach-buffet has seats for 56 passengers. The buffet kitchen is located in the fin-like tail of the rear car and from this meals are served directly to passengers at their seats in the coach and to those in the Pullman cars.

healthy of our childs is very injured. At the same time we all are awakened from very early morning and must heard of the voice of your uninteresting geese. Whenever your geese cry unquietly we all can think no thought. It is very frequent that the thought makes up partly trampled down by your hateful and unquiet voice of your geese. Since you have brought the geese we all have no case to think thought except in the night.

We and our childs are extraordinarily injured material and abstract.

Kill your hateful geese! Kill your geese or carry away them to the distant places and do to make us not be injured by their hateful and unquiet voice.

If you do not so satisfy our want, we all shall injure you in return too.

Your faithful,
ALL NEIGHBORS.
