Now that the two major party state conventions are over, the various state candidates can get down to the business of getting votes—for only a little over five weeks remain before election.

Am not just sure what these "state conventions" are held for. I asked several of the delegates that just returned home what they were held for, and they didn't know either. Guess they all meet and find out which one is sore at somebody else—and get him to bury the old hatchet.

Both the democratic and republican conventions got off to a good and "Hot" opening. Washoe county came prepared—as always—to dominate both meetings—and for once went home with an empty bag. It upsets our big sister city of the north to have Las Vegas and the rest of the state tell her what she can have and what she can't have at these conventions.

In a news item from Ely, the city where democrats hold forth, we read that "Kingfish" McCarran "bolted the convention." The democrats will undoubtedly give him enough rope so that he can bolt a long way off before the election, four years hence.

The republican convention at Winnemucca got off to a good start with a lot of fireworks promised, but soon tamed down—after which everyone kissed and made up. Everyone of the delegates promised to work for and support each and every republican candidate for office—

Gen. Jose Mijares Palencia, former chief of police of Mexico City, and present governor of the state of Pueblo, Mexico, is in Los Angeles to confer with the city and government police officials looking toward the installation of more modern police efficiency in Mexico.

which was nice—and which they won't do.

A number of the fair sex attended the confabs, and were high in their praise of the meetings—especially the night sessions.

Local politics are somewhat quiet but are sure to warm up in the next week or two. Governor Griswold is expected to be in Las Vegas the last week. Dick Kirman, democratic candidate for governor is also expected to be on hand the first of next week. L. C. Branson, independent candidate for governor is already here and telling his story to the voters.

New Resort To Feature "Keno"

Announcement has been made that the new Tower Casino will have its grand opening on next Monday evening, October 1st, at 7 p. m. The Tower Casino is located in the building formerly occupied by the Tower Market on the Salt Lake highway in North Las Vegas. The building has been entirely remodeled for the casino.

The Tower Casino will feature the game of Keno. This is the first Keno license issued in the county. Many games of four card draw are now in operation in Las Vegas and the operation of a real Keno game will be watched with interest. In addition to the Keno game, the new Tower Tavern will feature an up-to-date tavern with dancing. The owners of the new enterprise will furnish free transportation to and from the resort. Busses will leave Las Vegas from the Overland Hotel building at the corner of Main and Fremont streets every few minutes

MILK SPILT ON HIGHWAY

More than 150 gallons of spilt milk was splashed on the Boulder City highway early Wednesday morning when a Rancho Grande truck driven by Charles Hale, struck a soft shoulder and turned over twice.

Neither Hale, nor his companion, Art Gardner, Boulder agent for the dairy were injured.
