A Sad State of Affairs

Las Vegas, for the past two years, has from time to time been the target of much unfavorable comment from charges of unfair tactics in some of our gambling clubs. The latest charge, which was made to the Board of City Commissioners, was that after one of the patrons had made a winning of a considerable sum the club refused to pay the debt.

The people of Nevada will not permit the operation of any gambling club that does not operate "upon the level." The unfair acts of one club casts a reflection upon all the rest. It is the duty of the City Commissioners—should the charges against the club in question be proven—to not only revoke their license, but refuse to issue a license to that club for six months.

We are fortunate on the whole with having our gambling clubs operated as they should be. When the time comes that the gambling club must resort to unfair means to get their patron's dollars, it is time that gambling in Nevada ceased.

General Air Lines

Yesterday marked a new era in transportation for the General Air Lines (formerly Western Air) when two giant new Douglas 14 passenger mono-planes made the trip from San Diego to Salt Lake City in a little over three and a half hours—about one half the time required for the trip before. Las Vegas is now only an hour and a half from Los Angeles by plane.

Summertime

With temperatures ranging above 90 almost every day in the week, makes us think that summer is still with us—or just starting in again. To find the middle of October with these temperatures is just a little out of the ordinary—and bad business for the coal man. We can expect a little frosty weather, however, in the next week or two.

Betty Douglas Becomes Bride of J. W. Wilson

A wedding of much interest in Las Vegas occurred in Boston, Mass. October 8, when Mrs. Betty Douglas became the bride of J. W. Wilson of Las Vegas. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Douglas, at four o'clock in the afternoon. The young couple left immediately for a motor trip through Canada. On their return they will reside in the Mildren cottage on South Second street.

FIRST SHOWING OF GOLD MADE IN KING MIDAS TUNNEL

MIDAS, Nev. — The first showing of gold in the King Midas tunnel has occurred about 325 feet from the portal. The bore, after entering the rhyolite, ran head on into an east-west cross-fissure. Samples of the quartz, of which three were taken, assayed $8 to $10 in gold. The tunnel is being pushed ahead to reach the vein opened from the surface more than 20 years ago. About 40 feet of work will bring the bore directly under the old surface workings which followed the pay streak down 100 feet, at an additional depth of 250 feet. The old vein has a north-south strike. When it is encountered and the mine provided with an air compressor, drifting on the new cross-fissure to its intersection with the old vein will be undertaken.

The King Midas, which is one of the oldest locations in the Gold Circle district, was near the scene of a sensational strike in the early days. A prospector named Hamburger uncovered an ore body that yielded several tons of $1000 ore at grass roots. The present King Midas company has an option on the claim in which this strike was made.
