Higher Taxes On Beer Seen

CARSON CITY—Proposed changes in the liquor stamp tax law now being considered by a special committee would cut the stamp tax on wines in half and raise the tax on beer, Assemblyman Pat Cline, committee chairman, revealed today.

"We are trying to change the bill so that the income to the state state will average about $240,000 a year instead of the $200,000 that it raised last year," Cline said. "We have talked to liquor dealers, and it seems that their only squawk is that the tax on wine is too high."

"In exchange for a slash of 50 per cent in the tax on wines, they are willing to have the tax on beer raised by 4 cents a case. The present tax on wine is way out of line with the federal tax."

Cline recalled that the federal government recently cut its wine taxes in half. He remembered that the present tax of 10 cents a gallon on wines up to 14 per cent alcohol and the tax of 20 cents a gallon on wines of from 14 to 22 per cent, he cut to 5 and 10 cents, respectively. Instead of allotting definite amounts to the school funds, as provided in the present law, Cline proposed a percentage system. The law now provides that $100,000 a year be turned over to the state distributive school fund and $24,000 to the university contingent fund, with the remainder going to the redemption of the unemployment insurance bonds.

The new plan would allot 50 per cent of the yearly revenue to the school fund, 12 per cent to the university, 20 per cent for state aid to high schools and the balance to bond redemption. The allowance for administrative expenses would be increased from 2 to 5 per cent.

The reduced wine tax, Cline explained, would reduce the temptation now before dealers of violating the wine tax by replenishing supplies in taxed barrels continually, and continuing to draw wine from the barrel into bottles marked with a sticker that the wine had been taken from a tax-paid barrel.

Committee hearings on the bill will continue next week.

Atlanta Mine New Mill Soon

Mining men who are operating the old Atlanta mine, thirty-five miles northeast of Pioche under lease and option from Frank M. Manson, are developing large bodies of ore and expect to build a mill having a capacity of five hundred tons daily this year, it is reported.

The shaft has been retimbered and a large amount of work has been done on the surface and underground on the two hundred foot level the segment of the vein lost through faulting has been found in a cross-cut and is said to be a hundred feet in width, with an average value of twelve dollars a ton, it is understood.

Former operators left fifty thousand tons or more of mill ore on the dump.

New Mineral Is Discovered

Discovery of a new mineral, which has been named "dakeite" for Dr. H. C. Dake, Portland mineral collector, and which may prove of economic importance, was announced by Dr. Esper S. Larsen, professor of petrograph at Harvard university.

Dakeite, which was first picked up by a prospector, Louis Cassinat, near Rawlins, Wyo., and brought to Dr. Dake for classification, contains radium, possibly in quantities commercially valuable.

The specimens were picked up in a road cut where workmen dismissed them as being of some form of sulphur, since they were yellow in color. Dr. Dake found them to be highly radio-active under the violet ray, after ordinary tests failed to classify the minerals.

Now that he is in the molasses business maybe Prof. Tugwell can get his friend, Harry Hopkins, to place pancakes and waffles on the required list on relief diets.

Did you ever notice that the fellow who wants to reform the country by dividing up the jobs and the property always picks something nice and soft for himself.
