

Party Enjoys Trip On Lake

Capt. and Mrs. O. W. Yates and Commodore Allye Lawson were hosts to a jolly party on a boat trip on Lake Mead on Easter Sunday.

Through sunshine and showers, interspersed with flurries of sleet and slithering gales, the party rode the billows up through Boulder Canyon and thence a mile or two up the arm of the lake down which the old road to Boulder Canyon once passed.

There a fire was built and a picnic lunch served, under a warm and comforting sunshine. On the return trip a detour was made to the upper face of Boulder dam and the landing was reached at six o'clock, after what all present declared was an interesting and delightful day.

In addition to the hosts, those enjoying the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Baker, Mrs. Hannah Fleige, Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe of San Bernardino, and Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Squires.

LAWS OF LIFE

Whatever else may be said of the machine age it has lifted the great burden of labor off the backs of our citizens, workmen, housekeepers and the vast army of human beings who in former days earned their bread by breaking their backs and bodies—which they called "the sweat of their brows."

Browning wrote that "progress is the law of life." The insurance records show that life is something like fifteen years longer on the average now than it was at the turn of the present century—which proves that Browning gazed into the right kind of a crystal.

So-called mechanical refrigeration and air-conditioning continues to expand its benefits.

There are millions of homes and buildings occupied by 130,000,000 people in the United States, and the evidences are that the demand for air-conditioning and cooling in summer will be as universal as it is for proper heating in winter. There's a master job ahead for our master nation. Who knows but what our children, or their children may live an average age of a hundred years?

DISCOURAGING

It is discouraging for a hotel to discover, after a banquet to experts in crime prevention, that some of the guests have stolen spoons for souvenirs.—Washington Star.

Foreign agents are sounding Washington on what our position would be in a new war. It is a case where the sit-down striker comes in useful, as an illustration. — San Francisco Chronicle.

Easterners To View the West

Acting upon a suggestion made to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes by Hon. Ernest N. Hutchinson, secretary of state of the state of Washington, the National Park Service and the Reclamation Service both being bureaus of the Department of the Interior, are co-operating with leading western railroads in an unusual type of "See America First" tours.

As pointed out by the Secretary of the state of Washington, the national recovery program has made possible the rebuilding of the West through such public works as the Coulee Dam in Washington, the Bonneville Dam, which harnesses the Columbia river, and Boulder Dam, in the southwest. California has joined in the cavalcade of gigantic engineering works with the world-renowned Bay Bridge across San Francisco Bay, and its equally famous Golden Gate Bridge.

These projects are not only stupendous in respect to their engineering achievements, but are so revolutionizing the industrial opportunities in areas formerly stagnant for lack of water and water power that only by actual ocular evidence can their magnitude be realized. Millions of Americans who would welcome the opportunity to see these vast changes in process of construction have been unable to do so because of the high costs of transcontinental travel.

Special low-priced schedules of about three weeks duration for the round trip for easterners therefore have been worked out, through the cooperation of the railroads, with special consideration for the time limits by which the average American's vacation is bounded.

Stop-overs will be made in Yellowstone Park, Wyoming, and Mount Rainier National Park, Washington, where special motor bus tours will enable the tourists to cover the points of greatest interest. An auto tour to the summit of Pike's Peak also is included.

The projects visited will include the Grand Coulee Dam project in the state of Washington, still under construction; the huge Bonneville Dam, which harnesses the Columbia river for the joint benefit of the states of Washington and Oregon and the mammoth Boulder Dam on the borders of Nevada and Arizona, the world's largest finished project of the kind, built in record-breaking time.

Opportunities to see at close range such key cities as Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, and Denver will be afforded by side trips in automobiles.

Educationally as well as scenically the route covered by these "See America First" itineraries offer to the American public a rare opportunity to appraise for themselves the wonders of modern engineering and the grandeur of the nation's natural wonders.

Russia says that her army is the healthiest one on earth. And the best way to keep an army healthy is to see that it stays at home.

Some of those days we expect to hear that an inventor has perfected a sit-down striking machine.

When we see some of the changes that are proposed for the government nowadays we feel certain that William J. Bryan in his youth was an ultra-conservative.
